and Soviet Russia, burying its ideological differences with Red China, moving its forces into the country in strength. From then on, it would be only a question of which losing side would drop the first H-bomb.

Eaton delivered his warning to the 31st annual meeting of the Economic Club of Detroit, an organization of the Detroit-Windsor industrial, business and academic communities of the area. The audience of close to 1,000 was not antagonistic to it and was not friendly.

NO APPLAUSE

It was respectful to the man who controls a business empire estimated at close to $3,000,000, but there was no applause during the 40-minute address, delivered with only the benefit of notes.

Eaton, native of Pugwash, N.S. left May 6 on his tour of Eastern Europe and returned Sunday night. This was his first report on the trip.

He visited Paris, Prague, capital of Czechoslovakia, Budapest, capital of Hungary, Moscow and London. Everywhere he went, he said, he found an attitude of hostility to the United States and to President Johnson. He found only "anger and bitterness." Of Russia's Premier Alexei Kosygin he said: "I was terrified at this man's attitude." He met Kosygin last Thursday. Of him he said: "I have never met a man so grim, so wrought up, so serious, so concerned."

The controversial industrialist, viewed by many in the United States as a leftist because of his associations in past years with Soviet Russia, said of the Russian premier: "I was very well terrified at this man's attitude."

ISSUE CLEAR

Eaton was contemptuous of Washington that Russia and Red China are so far apart ideologically that they cannot work together. The issue in Viet Nam — socialism versus Americanism — was so clear that the two Communist countries had to work together. "Make no mistake," he said, "they are moving in together."

"America hasn't a friend in Asia other than South Korea and Formosa," he said. In an interview following his address, Eaton said Canada should "speak up." Canada should tell Washington that though the subject of Viet Nam is "delicate, you should shout from the rooftops" that Washington is wrong.

What should the United States do in Viet Nam? "Get out. What is Viet Nam to us?"

"Russia has made a solid commitment. If it doesn't defend socialism in Viet Nam, it will not defend socialism anywhere. There are no real differences between China and Soviet Russia. They will move in (into Viet Nam) together."

FIRST HOLIDAY COLD, WINDY DESPITE SUN

Islanders celebrated the first holiday weekend of the season under sunny skies. However, it is believed there was no mass exodus to the beaches.

Optimists who dug out beach towels and sun tan lotion yesterday soon had their enthusiasm chilled by temperatures that managed to climb to no more than 53 degrees.

And if a look at the thermometer failed to daunt the sun worshippers, perhaps the brisk northwest winds, which reached gusts of 38 miles per hour at the Charlottetown Airport, did.

While many islanders headed for the mainland for the Victoria Day holiday, it was business as usual for the province's farmers and fishermen.

Wind-blown dust swirled across plowed fields as farmers proceeded with spring plowing.

A number of fishermen did not venture out on the choppy water yesterday, however, because of the high winds.

lice orders not to parade through the streets. Authorities had told the demonstrators they were being refused permission to march. But, shouting separatist anthems and protests against Victoria Day, the demonstrators persisted in heading into the streets.

Police blocked their path with two paddy-wagons and drove a wedge in to the advancing crowd. The separatists, many of them teen-agers and girls, dispersed in a shambles.

There were at least several arrests but the exact number was not immediately known.

An earlier demonstration at a monument near Jacques-Cartier Bridge had met a similar end.

There, about a dozen leading members of the separatist Chevallerie de l'Indépendance (Knights of Independence) were taken into custody.

The morning bomb explosion rocked much of the town around the site of the blast—the street outside the 12-storey Prudential of England building on Dorchester at Union Street. Doors and windows were smashed.

Two officers noticed a brown paper bag on the sidewalk, found it contained dynamite and rushed to block traffic on six-lane Dorchester and to call the bomb squad.

Seconds later came the blast.

which rocked their car and sounded over the city like an extended roll of thunder.

Later in the day more alarms were received by the bomb squad. Several proved false but two sticks of dynamite were found on the fourth floor of the main Montreal post office. They were removed safely. The explosives had arrived at the office by mail.

The park demonstration originally was called by Parti-Pris, an organization that publishes a monthly separatist magazine in Montreal. It started at the monument to Dollard des Ormeaux, a 17th-century French officer killed by Indians during a siege.

Reviewing the municipal field, Mr. Revell said that municipal authorities are developing awareness that new industry can only be attracted by providing it with a good place to live. This means adequate plant facilities, good schooling, a reasonable rate of taxation and an ample supply of the goods and services which are necessary to the successful operation of a business enterprise.

Estimating the requirements of 122,000 new jobs by 1970, and a further 112,000 new jobs between 1970 and 1980 to bring the employment picture in the Atlantic area to reasonable full employment Mr. Revell said that the National Employment Service must play its full part in adequately planning the labour force requirements and developing an overall labour market policy.
