Correspondence.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—Seeing Mr. Pope's name so often in the columns of the Daily Patriot, I was a little curious to find out how often the editor of that paper has taken the trouble to insert Pope's name in his columns for the last six weeks. After a careful examination, I find an average of 21 "Mr. Pope's" in each issue of the Daily; 126 each week, and 756 in six weeks. All this attention to Mr. Pope goes to show that, as a politician, he is a complete failure!!

Yours, etc.,

Ch'town, May 23, 1878.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—An American company employs an agent for one year, and gave him, to start with in cash $ 32 17
Gave him in goods at the same time 57 54
The agent sells during the year, for cash 102 97
He buys through the year 59 91
He keeps for his own salary 25 00
He returns goods at the end of the year 31 37
It was rather a small business. Small as it was, the company and the agent could not settle satisfactorily. Perhaps you or some of your readers will show how the agent was standing at the end of the year with the company. Yours, &c., C. H.
May 22, 1878.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—The Patriot seems disposed to ridicule the fact that the offers of the Lieutenant Governorship of this Island and the office of Minister of Marine were made Mr. Pope by his political opponents. I, for one, can quite believe Mr. Pope when we look at the fact that the Grit Party are so hard pushed in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia that, despite so many of their friends hungering for office, they were so anxious to keep Lieutenant Governor Tilly and Archibald out of the field on the Conservative side at the forthcoming elections, that they made them offers of their Governorships for a second term. Knowing, as they do, that the Conservatives of this Island, with Mr. Pope as leader, can carry, at least, four out of the six seats, it is not to be wondered at that the Grits should endeavour to conciliate so powerful an opponent, and prove that the leader of the party are better judges of character than the Editor of the Patriot pretends to be.

Yours, &c.,

Charlottetown, April 23, 1878.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

SIR,—I had no intention of reviewing the discussion started by Mr. Hartz, but since the aforesaid gentlemen lectures us on what to do and what not to do. You know, Mr. Editor, it is the nature of man to do just what he pleases, and submit to no dictation. Mr. Hartz took the liberty of signing, I suppose, his own name. (I do not know the gentlemen, either by sight or name.) I suppose any correspondent may take the liberty of signing as he pleases; there being one exception in respectable papers that no direct personal attack on a man is permitted to appear, unless signed by the writer.

I do not intend replying to anything Mr. Hartz has said. I would advise him to re-peruse my last letter, in order to clear his mind of his labouring misconception; and also not to judge others too rashly, or call names, because they do not choose to follow his example; all that is so easy. Last of all, it is really too bad to add postscripts to letters, for that alone has made me waste five minutes, in order to show how ineffectual these printed postscripts are.

In tender compassion to your readers, Mr. Editor, it would be well if some correspondents preferred to remain the "Great Unknown," or little unknown, if they please; it is enough for you to be afflicted with our bad writing, and Oh! spare the name.

With kind regards to my unknown friend, I will still subscribe myself

FAIRPLAY.

May 23, 1878.

Our Washington Letter

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 21, 1878.

The last few weeks have been strongly suggestive of the spring and summer of '75, when the common and general salutation was in the form of the question, "Are you going to the Centennial?" Now it is, "Are you going to Paris?" Perhaps more people will attend the Paris Exposition from here than from anywhere else in the United States, in proportion to the population. It is even within the reach of Department clerks to go across the water, since such arrangements have been made that one can go for two months for less than $200, which includes all expenses. The clerks are entitled to one month's absence without their salaries stopping, and can easily obtain an additional month's leave without pay. And so all our little world is going abroad. The moment Congress adjourns, our legislators, with their families, will start in a body, for, poor things! they feel as if they were already in need of rest or recuperation.

A correspondent who has gone from New York to the French capital to "write up the Exhibition," gives an account the reverse of glowing of our exhibit there. He says the American position will be the laughing-stock of the whole Exposition and a disgrace to our Republic. He adds that Commissioner General McCormick, who has charge of the United States interests there, has done the best he could with the paltry appropriation granted, and is depending very much upon haul yet to be applied for the appearance of the U. S. Building. But our own Lucy H. Hooper, who has resided in Paris for years, writes us that England's department is interesting and the nearest ready of any, and "Next to England, her go-ahead daughter, the United States, promises to come out 'a good second,' notwithstanding her tardiness in participating. Most of her show cases are up and many of the things in order." She mentions Prang's chromos, Blabon & Co.'s oilcloths, and other displays, adding, "But it is almost impossible to see anything to advantage, owing to the busy hurrying to and fro and the excitement that pervades the representatives of our irrepressible nationality."

Congress has been in session almost continuously since October, and history asserts that no previous Congress has ever attempted so much and accomplished so little in the same period of time as the one now in session. Of nearly 6,000 bills that have been introduced, not over 100 have passed both Houses and become laws, and of these but half a dozen or so are of a general nature and in behalf of the national interest.

Whether or not the loud communistic mutterings heard all over the land, and growing fiercer and louder each week will amount to anything more than growling and teeth-snapping threats, remains to be seen and experienced. But one thing is certain, powers not faintly smouldering exist that could execute the threats, and those who know, say that the power to stop that execution does not exist.

There are many reasons why the Army and Navy of the United States should be in its very best strength and condition just now. Everybody knows at least that the country is literally swarming with tramps, vagrants, and under-paid laborers who are more than ready to join any lawless movement against right and authority. Then the Indians are promising us more trouble, Mexico is already giving it, there is prospect of an extensive European war, in case of which we must be necessarily more or less implicated. Fenians are threatening in Canada, and surely our military force would scarcely be deemed efficient for all these should they come upon us at once. There is no question but the country's Chief Executive should be vested with power to increase our army in an emergency by at least 100,000 men, and to have on the stocks a few ships of war useful for defensive purposes. The riots of last summer contained good lessons, and it behooves the ruling powers of the land to profit by them to the fullest possible extent.

MERRILL.

The appearance of things in the Province of Quebec favors the belief that the Lieutenant Governor will find it necessary to again dissolve the Assembly, and allow his Government to make a second appeal to the country. The Montreal Star says:—

"The Conservatives are apparently confident that every member of their party will stick to the ship, and that Mr. Joly will fail in the purpose attributed to him of forming a coalition. The Premier has evidently been depending upon his ability, through personal influences and on public grounds, to detach a number of more moderate members from the Conservative party, and thus securing a working majority. The leaders of the Conservative party have been cognizant of this, and have, it is said, taken measures to consolidate their followers into a compact opposition. Out of 34 Conservatives elected, 35 have given either written or verbal pledges to oppose the Government, and the 34th, Mr. Price, of Chicoutimi, is reckoned upon as cock-sure. The Conservatives are, therefore, just as doggedly positive of defeating Mr. Joly in the House as they were before the first of May of defeating him at the polls by fifteen or twenty of a majority. We shall see how they fare in the Legislature."

To keep flowers from withering, drop a few grains of salt in the water in which they are kept, and they will remain bright and fresh-looking for some time.
