

ARE WOMEN PEOPLE?

Rev. Mrs. Phyllis Edwards, who is the first officially recognized woman minister of the 306 million member Episcopal Church answers "yes" to the question. "The Episcopal Church long has recognized three orders—bishops, priests and deacons—all male. Since 1864 we have had women as deaconesses. But they were set apart. They were recognized neither as clergy nor lay in status. One had to ask are women people?" (AP Wirephoto)

Broadcasters Are Opposed To All-Powerful CBC Agency

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Association of Broadcasters voiced vigorous opposition here to a proposal of the Fowler committee on broadcasting for an all-powerful agency to run radio and TV broadcasting.

A statement issued by the C.A.B.'s board of directors said the concept of a Canadian Broadcasting Authority as outlined in the Fowler report would "seriously damage the ability of Canadian broadcasters to provide programs Canadians have demonstrated they want; result in an inferior and less acceptable standard of programming; and drive a majority of Canadian listeners and viewers to U.S. stations."

The Fowler report, presented to the government last week after 16 months of investigation, called for the creation of an authority that would control directly the programming policies of the CBC and indirectly those of private stations by holding life-or-death control of licences.

Car Price Differential May Be Cut

TORONTO (CP)—There is a "chance" that the price differential between Canadian and United States-built cars may be narrowed in 1966 model cars, Earl K. Brownridge, president of American Motors (Canada) Ltd., said here. "The price differential has been a source of speculation since the auto free trade agreement between Canada and the U.S. was approved in Ottawa early this year. Mr. Brownridge said at a press conference that such a closing of the gap will not necessarily mean lower Canadian car prices. Some economists have said the only economic justification for high Canadian car prices, with the agreement in force, is to subsidize the large-scale capital reorganization Canadian companies must make to take advantage of the agreement. The companies have said that pricing policies are far more complex and that a narrowing in the gap can only be undertaken gradually. Mr. Brownridge said the prices of American Motors products, which will not be revealed until Oct. 7, will depend partly on what competitors do.

The Canada Pension Plan and its benefits

Here is what the Canada Pension Plan will do for people like Joe Costello, a 52-year-old unmarried labourer who earns $50 a week.

If Joe continues to work full time until age 65 he can look forward to retiring with a monthly pension of $54.16 from the Canada Pension Plan and $75 from Old Age Security—a total of $129.16. That's almost 60% of what he was earning.

If he is ill or out of work for as long as two years, or if his earnings for a period of up to two years are below his regular wage, he will receive the same pension at age 65. This is because under the Plan a certain number of months of low or no earnings do not affect the amount of the pension.

If Joe wishes to continue working between 65 and 70 and earns higher wages than previously he can improve his pension. For example, if he works until age 69 and earns $3,600 a year, his pension will be $61.74 a month instead of $54.16.

If Joe becomes disabled after 1970, having contributed for at least 5 years, he will get a disability pension of $65.62 a month until he gets both his retirement and Old Age Security pensions at age 65.

All benefits under the Plan will maintain their value. The actual benefits payable will probably be higher than those given here since benefits will be adjusted to meet changes in living costs and in wage levels before they are paid and changes in living costs after they become payable.

What will the Plan cost you?

If you, like Joe Costello, are employed and have earnings of $2,600 spread evenly over the year, you will pay at the rate of 69¢ a week. Your employer will pay the same amount.
