

HACKETT-KELLY NUPTIALS

Maureen Anne Hackett, daughter of Mrs. P. Hackett and the late Patrick Hackett of Toronto was married to John Lawrence Kelly in Holy Name Church, Toronto, recently. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Kelly of Prince Edward Island. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly were in Toronto for the ceremony which was performed by Rev. P. Carley of St. Vincent de Paul Church. The bride given in marriage by her brother Brian wore a gown of white satin brocade with scoop neckline and cathedral train. Her satin headpiece caught her bouffant veil and she carried a white pearl prayer book covered with red roses and white Stephanotis. The matron of honor was Mrs. Frank Stokes and the bridesmaids were Rose Marie McElroy and Norma Bayley. The junior bridesmaid was Bonnie Gratto. The best man was Douglas McGrath and the ushers were Peter Scott and Herman Zander. Following a honeymoon trip to Florida the young couple took up residence in Toronto.

MARY HAWORTH

Clergyman Suspects His Protege Has Secret Love

Dear Mary Haworth: I am a member of the clergy and you may wonder why I don't take my problem to a colleague. I have consulted several and get bits-and-pieces of advice, but none satisfactory.
 About two years ago a close friend died, leaving his widow and teen-age children. I sort of adopted one of the boys. He was active in church work and sports and got high grades and was highly respected by teachers and townsmen.
 Now he is away at college and writes me often about his busy life there. His language seems to be typical Joe College and his comments, at times, a little foolish, concerning life, girls, his future and such. But I accept this as average adolescent conversation.

 Recently I visited him and there read a letter, to him, from a girl, which leaves me suspicious of his character. I realize I shouldn't have read his mail; but that is past history. I find myself doubting his every word. I challenged him about the letter, the implications of which he denied emphatically. And when I saw how upset he was, I felt worse than ever.
 I am still terribly distrustful of him and find it affects our relationship. I fear it may wreck our friendship. How do I go about getting over it? I sense a possibility that he is lying, which is incongruous, as he has always been an exemplary boy.
 Is it possible he has been pulling the wool over our eyes all these years? We are told to take people at face value. Should we? I would appreciate your views; and even a lecture, if you think I deserve it.
 Dear A.G.: There is an element of emotional sickness in your attitude. You seem almost more jealous of a possible heart interest (or sex interest) in the boy's life, than maturely concerned about his welfare and progress in the field of intensely private and personal boy-girl relationships.

 Are you a bachelor, perhaps? And inclined, with more intensity than good sense, to regard this lad as the apple of your eye - with a brand of fervor that should be invested in a more appropriate love object: say, a wife or sweetheart?
 To get yourself straightened out, to recover your poise and equilibrium in the "adopted uncle" role, you should discuss your agitation with a psychologist, or psychoanalyst, who can give you curative insight into, and perspective on, the real significance of your undue distress.
 Whatever the truth about the boy's character, you are over-reacting, in an acutely neurotic way, to the notion that he has secrets from you.
 Dear Mary Haworth: What is a fair amount that a parent can ask from a youngster who starts to work? I do need the money to help me meet household expenses; but I want to be fair, as my son is overly generous in his concern for me. Thank you.
 Dear V.K.: Circumstances alter cases. If your son is a student, doing part-time wage earning, you might assess him a nominal sum, say $5 a week for his upkeep, to apply to the grocery bill.
 But if he has finished his schooling and is taking a well paid job as a first step towards becoming self-supporting, though living at home, you might have him pay you just about what it would cost him, for board and-sleep, if he lived away from the family. (That might be $15 to $20 a week, or even much more.)
 Inasmuch as you are hard pressed financially, this would seem a fair arrangement. It makes your life easier and also gives him a good return on his money, because at home he will have his laundry, mending, health needs, etc., looked after "for free." I assume, whereas in the open market he'd have to pay extra for such benefits.
 However a word of caution: In making a mutually helpful adjustment, in the light of present conditions, try to see it as a temporary arrangement, that won't stand in the way of his leaving home and getting married in due season. M.H.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

O'Leary UCW Discuss Last Minute Plans For Tea

The April meeting of the Dr. Florence Murray Unit of the United Church Women of O'Leary was held in the manse with the president, Mrs. E. MacDougall in the chair.

Following the opening devotions plans made for the Easter Tea and Bazaar were completed. The Easter Thanksgiving envelopes, which were taken at the general meeting of April 24, were distributed.

Mrs. D.S. Gorrill was appointed in charge of worship for the next meeting and Mrs. W. E. Turner will have the study for the meeting.

Several knitted squares for crib quilts were handed in. Mrs. D.A. MacPherson gave a reading entitled "The Christian's Moral Witness" and Mrs. W. J. Jolley gave another reading on the application of the Christian. The community friendship committee reported that 18 home calls, 7 hospital calls, 19 cards and 10 treats had been looked after during the month.

Mrs. MacWilliams presented the study on the church and the community. She was assisted by Mrs. Turner who read "Outside The Structure." An impressive worship service was conducted by Mrs. A. Gorrill.

The meeting closed with the benediction and refreshments were served. A social hour followed.

SUMMERFIELD CWL

Mrs. St. Clair Croken, Emerald, entertained the members of the Summerfield Parish Council of the CWL for their April meeting. The meeting was held under the direction of Rev. J.B. Croken and chaired by the president, Mrs. Lyala Deighan.

In the absence of the secretary the minutes of the last meeting and the correspondence was read by Mrs. Joseph Croken.

Father Croken distributed literature for the study groups and Mrs. John Sullivan donated a hand made wool rug to be lotteried as a fund raising project. Father Croken was asked to purchase an appropriate gift for a boy of the parish that had recently joined the Redemptorist Order at St. Mary's College in Ontario.

Following the meeting lunch was served by the hostess and a social hour was enjoyed.

EBENEZER W

Mrs. Alex Ford was hostess for the April meeting of the Ebenezer Women's Institute. The president conducted the meeting which opened with the Mary Stewart Collect followed by roll call which was answered by nine members.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and correspondence discussed. It was decided that the group would enter in the rural beautification contest again this year.

The treasurer reported that the annual fees had been sent and the sick committee report was heard. The new sick committee is Mrs. Norman MacRae and Mrs. Chester Dover.

Members appointed to the school committee were Mrs. Ken MacRae and Mrs. Cliff Matheson. Mrs. MacRae and Mrs. Matheson were also appointed to the lunch committee for the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Alison MacLeod.

The birthday box was opened and it was decided to continue with this for another year.

Following the meeting lunch was served by the hostess and members of the committee and the surprise package was won by Mrs. L. MacRae.

NEW HAVEN WI

General education was the topic of a talk given by Mrs. Edward MacPhail at the April meeting of New Haven WI held at the home of Mrs. Alton Newman.

The meeting opened with the singing of "Old MacDonald Had

A Farm" and the creed. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, and a roll call was answered by the donation of an article for a family whose home had been burned.

The school committee reported that paper towels were needed for the school, and the sick committee reported giving one treat. There was some discussion regarding the holding of a pantry sale in the near future. Correspondence was read and discussed.

Mrs. Brewer Boyle will be hostess for the next meeting, it was decided. Roll call will be answered with a get well card and the member's shoe size multiplied by two. Members appointed to the lunch committee were Mrs. G. Tierney, Mrs. M. Pollard, and Mrs. Kenneth MacKinnon.

Mrs. M. Murphy was the winner in a flower contest, and Mrs. Alex MacPhee won a game. The hostess and committee in charge served lunch.

Household Hint

A new paperback cookbook, "Magic With Leftovers", offers you 300 recipes, from appetizers to desserts, which provide you with new and delicious ways to use up those odds and ends you find in the refrigerator.

Exposure to sunlight not only impairs the flavor of milk but robs it of riboflavin content.

Fruit stains should always be rinsed out with clear water; soap will make it set.

Always squeeze water from sponges, wringing tears fibers and causes the sponge to disintegrate.
