

FASHIONABLE FURY WIGS

IN THE summer it was flowery wig hats, so naturally, come fall, the fur wig hat has taken over. It is not at all limited to the luxury class, either. Nicely priced is this one designed by Lilly Dache for the young career woman and the girl who has to stay within a prescribed clothes budget. Titian-haired red fox is the fur in this cozy, becoming wig job, the crown resting on a neat bandeau of tan kid leather.

God Rest Ye Merry, Lady, You've Done A Good Job!

The Women's Institute News for December has this amusing number submitted by Bellevue W. I.

GOD REST HER MERRY
God rest ye merry, gentlemen,
God rest ye merry, lady, who
Has stuffed the turkey, baked the pies,
With hands that number only two;
Has parted combatants who trimmed
The tree; has shined the silver spoons;
Has swept, has scrubbed, has well contrived;
Has led her tribe in Christmas tunes;
Has wrapped the gifts; addressed the cards.

Remembered ancient Uncle Frank;
Has comforted her squire, who mourns
His shrinking balance in the bank;
Has saved the cat the children

From the Beaver Club at the sign of the Queen Elizabeth, Montreal, comes the following:—
Canada is still a man's world. Some Canadian women seem to believe that as Canada becomes less and less a pioneer country the "men only" sign is disappearing. They point to the female invasion of barber shops, taverns and other formerly exclusive male retreats as evidence. This month in Montreal, however, equal (admission) rights for women took a backward step. Perhaps in self defence, Montreal male retreats as evidence. Now, when holy night descends. Exhausted, but still full of love. She views with shining eyes her house. Her spouse, her family. The very heart and queen of festival. God rest ye, lady. Be ye merry!

Canada — Yes, It's Still A Man's World, Or Is It?

From the Beaver Club at the sign of the Queen Elizabeth, Montreal, comes the following:—
Canada is still a man's world. Some Canadian women seem to believe that as Canada becomes less and less a pioneer country the "men only" sign is disappearing. They point to the female invasion of barber shops, taverns and other formerly exclusive

male retreats as evidence. This month in Montreal, however, equal (admission) rights for women took a backward step. Perhaps in self defence, Montreal males have reorganized the ancient Beaver Club which for more than half a century met in Montreal without ever admitting a woman to membership. Members of the original Beaver Club were a brave, swashbuckling crew of French Canadian and Scottish fur traders, each of whom must have passed a winter in the north-west. Members of the 20th. century version which meets at the sign of The Queen Elizabeth in Montreal may be less colorful than their ancestors, but they are none the less determined to carry on the customs and traditions of the most famous of all Canadian clubs.

In co-operation with the curator and staff of the Chateau de Ramezay, founders of the new Beaver Club have incorporated many of the procedures of the original group including the services of the voyageurs. They have also continued the ban on women members.

Paradoxically, the woman assistant curator at the Chateau points out, much of the background information about the club was secured from the most authoritative history of the Canadian fur trade, written by a woman.

EATON'S

Greetings

Once again, it's time for the pleasant custom of sending Christmas greetings, and from happy associations throughout the year, there are many friends I want to remember. I would like, particularly, to wish a "Merry Christmas" to the customers we count among our friends. Best wishes, too, to our business associates and suppliers at this festive season... and a special word of appreciation to our own loyal staff. May the blessings of Christmas bring joy to you and yours!

John D. Eaton

PRESIDENT
EATON'S OF CANADA

"And how did little Tim behave?" asked Mrs. Cratchit...
"As good as gold," said Bob, "and better. He told me, coming home, that he hoped the people saw him in the church, because he was a cripple, and it might be pleasant to them to remember upon Christmas Day who made lame beggars walk and blind men see."
