GRAPPLING HAY FORK

That we are after your orders for

Horse Hoes, Turnip Drills, Baggies, Road Carts, Hay Carriers (for wood and steel racks), Single and Double Hay Forks and Grappling Hay Forks, FROST & WOOD "Tiger" and "Ithaca" Rakes, "New Backeye" Mowers, "Daisy" Rippers and "Single Apron" Binders. The above goods are made by the best American and Canadian manufacturers, and are warranted to give satisfaction.

LOOK HERE!—If you have a Woolen Trunk, let us send you a Porter Reversible and Adjustable Hay Carrier that will give you more satisfaction than anything else that you ever had for the same purpose. The great feature of this one—its adjustability. It will adjust to any sized trunk from 24 to 44 inches, and it is the only Carrier that is adjustable. No more fastening and pinning the trunk to make it fit the Carrier, but you can fit the Carrier to the trunk in three minutes. And it is perfectly reversible. Will work either way from the stop without changing Carrier on the track. In fact, you can take one fork full to the right and the next to the left, if you wish, by using an endless draft rope. See it before purchasing. We have all other necessary HAYING TOOLS constantly on hand. Also—Flour, Cornmeal, Oatmeal, Seed Oats, Ontario Beans, Chopped Feed, Shorts and Family Groceries. Write for Prices and Illustrated Catalogues representing the largest lines of Haying Tools and Machines manufactured. Agencies at all principal places on the Island.

OTTAWA LETTER

Proceedings in Parliament

THE RE-DISTRIBUTION BILL

(Special Correspondence of The Examiner.)

Monday afternoon's session was devoted to the consideration of the criminal law.

Monday evening the redistribution bill was again taken up. Mr. Somerville, after a long and irrelevant speech, during which he was several times called to order by the Speaker, moved that the bill be not read a second time, but that it be resolved that, in the opinion of this House, the readjustment of the representation of the people in Parliament should, for the present, be confined to those provinces where it is rendered necessary by the recent census.

On Tuesday the debate on the redistribution bill was resumed by Hon. David Mills, who was followed by Mr. Davies. After speaking for some time on the general principles of the bill, he turned his attention to the rearrangement proposed for the Island. He condemned the breaking of county lines which had existed for more than a century. Why should the Island be treated differently from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, several of whose counties elected two members—for instance, Pictou County, Cape Breton County, Halifax City and County, St. John City and County? The county lines should not be disturbed. If the Island was entitled to only five members, then let one be taken from King's County, which had only a few thousand more than the unit, while Queen's County had more than sufficient population for two members, and Prince County was a few thousands short. The same state of things existed in New Brunswick, yet it was not proposed to treat county lines to equalize constituencies. For instance, Restigouche has 8,309, and is allowed one member; Albert, 10,971, and is allowed one member; while Westmorland, which has 41,478—enough for two members—is allowed only one member. Mr. Davies declared that the rearrangement of the Island had been prepared by some one, having a local knowledge, for the express purpose of gerrymandering himself and Mr. Yeo out of the House. There was no other possible combination of townships which human ingenuity could suggest which would have any chance of gerrymandering them out of their seats. He was not so enamoured of political life that he cared much about it; but he would make a fight for his life.

Mr. Davies was followed by Mr. A. C. Macdonald, who spoke as follows:

I have listened with a good deal of attention to the remarks made by the hon. gentleman from Queen's (Mr. Davies) and I am certainly very much surprised at the position he takes with respect to the proposed division of Prince Edward Island. He has told us in the course of his remarks that we have introduced for the first time into the Lower Provinces the principle of gerrymandering, but I venture to say that when the members of this House and the people of the country understand the position that the hon. gentleman himself and his political friends have taken in Prince Edward Island in gerrymandering that province in the interests of themselves and their friends in the Local Government, they will come to the conclusion that Mr. Davies is not correct when he says that this is the first time that the principles of gerrymandering were introduced into the Lower Provinces.

I do not intend to argue that because Mr. Davies and his party do a wrong, that we should do another. I contend that the subdivision of Prince Edward Island under the bill before the House is the only just and reasonable measure that could be introduced under the circumstances. We find that under the census recently taken Prince Edward Island had to lose one of its representatives, and in order that the number should be reduced Mr. Davies says: Why not do as they have done in Nova Scotia, amalgamate two counties; why not apply the same rule to Prince Edward Island that you have done to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick? That could not be done in Prince Edward Island, because we had no small constituencies that could be doubled up as so easily in the case of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Mr. Davies is quite willing that one of the members of King's County should be legislated out of his seat to make room for him, forsooth, or for some of his friends. That is a very plausible story from his own standpoint, but let me inform him again that the Government have made a fair and equitable division of the ridings. I dare say myself would have preferred to have left my own County of King's whole as it was, but under all the circumstances of the case nothing else could have been done than to make the division proposed by the Government. I am speaking from a Prince Edward Island standpoint, and I find that the Government have made a very fair and reasonable distribution of the population and of the ridings. It was quite necessary under the circumstances to interfere with the county lines in order to make that division, but this Government never went so far in interfering with the counties as the hon. gentleman and his friends have in the Local Legislature. It seems as if Mr. Davies has given them a leaf out of the book of the leader of the Government in Ontario and his political friends in the different provinces, because we find that he and his political friends have not only interfered with the county lines, but they have interfered with township lines as well. They have interfered in the same way with the township lines in the local constituencies in Prince Edward Island; but in this Bill the Government have not interfered in any way with township lines. To show the absurdity of the extent to which these hon. gentlmen have been willing to go in order to keep themselves and their friends in power, if my information is right, with the sanction and approval of the hon. member for Queen's, I will just exhibit a little of what they can do when they are left to themselves. (Here Mr. Macdonald produced a map of the local gerrymandering of King's County by the Peters Government, and explained the operation of that abortive measure. The exhibition caused great amusement to the Government side of the House, while the respectable members of the Opposition were ashamed of it.) The real portion in the centre of this map which I am showing is the local constituency. They took two half townships from the next local constituency and joined them to this in order to give the Conservatives. They took another Conservative township from the next adjoining local constituency and also added it to this constituency. They then jumped across a township and took two half townships from another constituency and added them here, in order to give their political opponents and turn a majority of eight against them into a majority of eight in their favor. This was done in order to keep in power a Government which ruled with an autocratic sway by a majority of one, and it shows what these hon. gentlemen, who are so indignant with us for making a fair redistribution of the Province of Prince Edward Island, will do when they have the power. I must say that the present redistribution is a fair and reasonable one. Mr. Davies says that the object of it is to gerrymander Mr. Yeo and himself out of this House. That, on the face of it, shows how far astray the hon. gentleman is. What are the facts? The facts are that the hon. gentleman himself, according to the proposed redistribution of Prince Edward Island, will have a majority of about 400, and Mr. Yeo will have an equal majority. If the bill had been designed to keep the hon. gentleman and his friends in power, and to cause my hon. colleague and myself to step out, it would have been all very well; but instead of that, we have made a fair and reasonable distribution, and we take our chances in our county as it now stands. Yes, a fair and reasonable chance and a fighting chance. I am prepared to take the constituency either as it now stands, or with the whole county; and the bill leaves a fair fighting chance in the adjusting constituency, which includes the balance of King's County. Then Mr. Davies will still have a constituency in Charlottetown, with a good fair majority, and I do not think he has any good reason to grumble. I would be all very fine if we redistributed the Province of Prince Edward Island so as to put the honorable gentleman and his friends in such a position that they would be sure to come back here. The Government have not done that, I dare say; but they have given the hon. gentleman and his friends a chance to get back here again if they can. These hon. gentlemen are also very loud-mouthed in favor of the principle of one man one vote, and the extension of the franchise; but when we find themselves and their friends doing in the Local Government what they find themselves doing in the Provincial Government, this is another of these magnanimous things which our hon. friends are so loud-mouthed about. They also, in their local bill, gave a vote to every man holding a mortgage, thus giving the power to the most idle men of the country over the industrious, hard-working farmer who might unfortunately have a mortgage hanging over his head. Now, the Bill before the House has not broken a single constituency in the Province of Prince Edward Island. Mr. Davies—Does the hon. gentleman mean to say that no local constituency has been broken up?

Mr. Macdonald—I beg the hon. gentleman's pardon; I meant to say a township. There is one township broken up in Prince Edward Island by the present redistribution, as there has been by the Local Government of Prince Edward Island, and by the hon. gentleman's friends in the Province of Ontario. The only interference with the present bill, however, is that which has been established with county lines; but that was unavoidable in making a fair redistribution; and therefore I contend that the bill all through is as fair a one as it is possible to make while redistributing the population of the province as a whole. Now, the population of the old constituency of King's County was 26,631, the population of the present constituency is 21,694, which is as close to the unit as it is possible to come. Queen's East under the present bill will have 23,456 and Queen's West 22,210. Prince East will have 20,723, and Prince West 20,957. These, as will be seen at a glance, are as close to the unit as it is possible to get them without breaking into the township lines. I myself would never have consented to breaking into the township lines, and any little discrepancy existing between the unit and the figures I have given could only be made right by breaking into the township lines. The redistribution, as a whole, is a proper one in every sense of the word, and as fair a one as it is possible under any circumstances, to bring about.

Mr. Yeo spoke at length in opposition generally to the Bill and particularly to the proposed redistribution on the Island and the breaking of county lines. In his opinion if an election took place on the Island to-day not a Conservative would be returned. It was a matter of regret that the Island should lose a representative; such a thing had never been contemplated. But on the contrary it was anticipated that, as years went on, the representation would increase. But the bright prospects which had been held out to the Island on going into Confederation had not been fulfilled, and the best of the people were every day leaving for the United States. If the present state of affairs were to continue, it was highly probable that after the next census the Island would lose another member. He had been on the Island recently, and everyone he had met, irrespective of party, had denounced the proposed gerrymandering. "What the Liberal party of Prince Edward Island want is fair play. They do not ask for any favors."

These words were taken down verbatim, as they were uttered by Mr. John Yeo, of Port Hill, on Tuesday, June 14, 1892. They are evidence of how evil communications corrupt good manners and of how a man of sterling integrity and probity will fall if constantly exposed to corrupting influences. Shades of Coles and Webster! John Yeo going security for the righteousness of the Liberal party! One can almost hear William E. Clarke turn in his grave. There are many of your readers who can recall the conflict of 30 and 40 years ago between Yeo the Tory and Warburton the gadabout, who must surely smile when they hear of John Yeo, the off-bee, honorable, upright man, for none can say otherwise, standing up as the champion of the Liberal party. But it is in my that we become accustomed to strange even a Mr. Yeo may yet get in change his status, and, as the story-book runs after the marriage of the Lorraine, live happy "ever afterwards."
