W.C.T.U. NOTES
EASTER
He is Risen! Mark 16:6

The first Easter morning brought to womanhood the privilege of being the first of His disciples to behold the Risen Lord and the joy of hearing Him say, "Go and tell."

The darkest day in human history had closed in the lives of the disciples. The hope that their beloved Master would fully restore the Kingdom to Israel had now been swept away. All their plans were shattered. It is interesting to note what the women did at this time when darkness gathered around them. First, they made sure where the body of Christ had been laid. Then they went home to prepare spices and ointments to anoint His body. Beautiful devotion! Let us likewise find there is something we can do when the cloud of discouragement hangs low, some ministry for the Master.

It is a marvellous record that loyal hearted women have made along the years since. Their devotion and fidelity in serving the Risen Christ through the W.C.T.U. and through the Church has inspired enthusiasm in our hearts so often as we follow in their line. Their gifts have been offered freely in a service of love for God and Home and Country.

Think of their reward that early morning as they arrived at the Sepulchre:

1. They found the stone, which caused them concerned, rolled away.

2. The Tomb was empty.

3. Heavenly messengers made the glorious announcement, He is Risen! The miracle of the ages had taken place.

There is always a sure reward as we persevere amid the darker experiences of life.

We are happy also to note that these devoted women not only were rewarded in being the first to receive the Angel's message, but were also commissioned to break the wonderful news of the resurrected Christ to the disciples.

Our world today needs a fresh vision of the Living Christ. We need a fresh anointing to give the glorious message effectively. The Holy Spirit will impart the power as promised in Acts 1:8, to you and to me.

May this mid-century year become more and more beautiful in all our lives. May the beauty of Jesus in unflinching love and courage be evident in all our ministries.

Lift your glad voices in triumph on high. For Jesus hath risen, and man shall not die: Vain were the terrors that gathered around Him, And 'short the dominion of death and the grave.

He burst from the fetters of darkness that bound Him, Resplendent in glory, to live and to save; Loud was the chorus of angels on high. The Saviour hath risen, and man shall not die.

—Mrs. Mary A. Finlay

THE NATIONAL L.T.I. SECRETARY

Dear White Ribbon Sister: Our Loyal Temperance Legion is an organization sponsored by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union for under-teen-age children. A special programme is planned for girls and boys from the age of six to thirteen.

One of the objectives of the L.T.I. programme is to bring before our young citizens directives that will guide them to an understanding of nature and effects of alcoholic drinks and the value of personal total abstinence; to give young citizens incentive for growth in civic consciousness and Christian service.

Our aim for 1950: Every W.C.T.U. organization sponsoring a Loyal Temperance Legion or Band of Hope. Please send at once to Miss R. Duff, 11 Prince Arthur Ave., Toronto, Ont., for an L.T.I. outfit. Let's double our membership before National Convention.

Sincerely, Ora Patterson

Literature And Life
By BOOKMAN
LOOKING WESTWARD

During the war soldiers used a beautiful phrase, "Going West," about their companions who fell. It was full of poetry. That was the quarter where the sun set when the story of the day was over. So they were pictured as going beyond the rim of the world.

A British essayist many years ago wrote of the subject "Westward of Fifty"—dealing with men's thoughts after life's meridian was reached. They had to admit that they were no longer in the class of athletes, but there were many things that they still could do, and do better than ever. Ulysses speaks for old age thus:

"Tho' much is taken, much abides, and tho' which in old days Moved earth and heaven;—that which we are, we are;—One equal temper of heroic hearts Made weak by time and fate, but strong in will To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

Sir William Osler, some years ago, said that men did their best work by the time they were forty and should be chloroformed at sixty. The world took him too seriously. It all depends on the man, some start out in life and give great promise, but later are a disappointment to their friends. I rather think the late Lord Roseberry was of that class.

The well-known sonnets of the present poet-laureate John Masefield on "Growing Old" are bathed in spirit of resignation.

"I cannot sail your seas, I cannot wander Your cornland, nor your hill-land, nor your valleys, Ever again, nor share the battle yonder Where the young knight the broken squadron rallies."

There are several things that are usually noted when the fire is taken out of life's mid-day sun, when a cooler temper and pleasant breeze suggest the afternoon. One is apt to be impatient in youth. We start out thinking that the world is sitting down by the side of the road waiting for us, till we go by. But later we realize that it is not so. The contest disillusion us. Besides, we reinterpret things and are more quiet.

Then we have learned a good deal. We see that there are things that we can do without. The years bring what Wordsworth calls the "philosophic mind." This is why age often smiles at the rashness of youth, and why there is a mildness sometimes about age.

It is nice to see people grow old sweetly and gracefully and without reluctance. Some try to cheat the years. It cannot be wrong to try to keep the heart of a child. That is very different from never really growing up. Hartley Coleridge said very pathetically about himself:

"I waked to sleep no more; at once o'er-taking The vanguard of my age, with all arrears Of duty on my back. Nor child, nor man, Nor youth, nor sage, I find my head is gray."

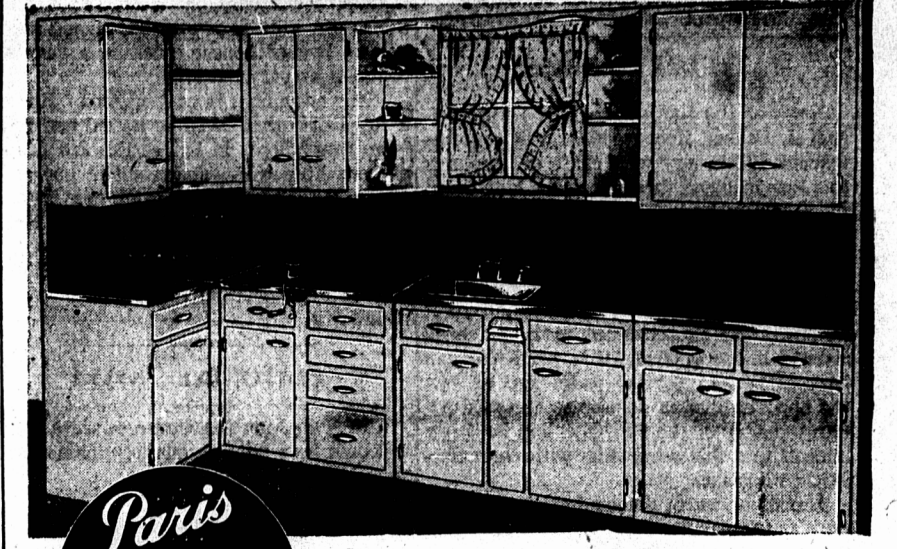

There is one tragedy about age and it is when body and mind do not grow old together. One writer says: "The tragedy of growing old is the remaining young." That is the spirit does not age as fast as the body.

After all, is not the best thing to live one day at a time, stepping westward cheerfully, following the sun?

Foundation in American magazines, under the title of "The American Home Series." This advertising is beautifully illustrated by highly paid artists, is reproduced in color, and the titles show clearly how subtly it has been designed to appeal to youth: "Gathered Around the Piano," "An Evening of Bowling," "Television Party," "Meeting Her Parents," "Getting Ready for Summer," "Planning the Vacation Trip," "Around the Tennis Court," "Showing Off the Flower Garden," "Week-end at the Lake," "Housewarming," "Surprise Birthday Party for Dad," "Thanksgiving Dinner" and "Decorating for Christmas."

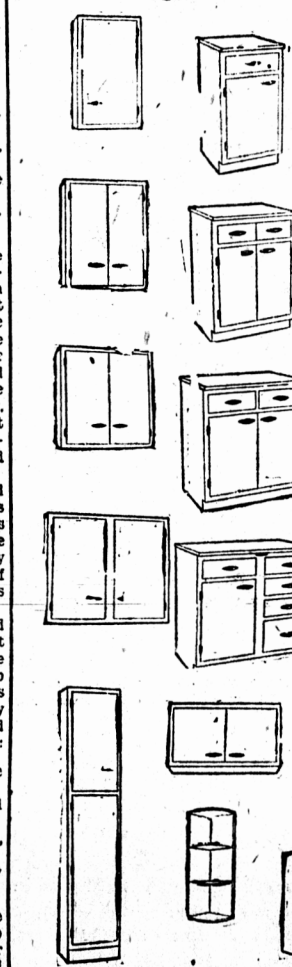

In an effort to be helpful, the editor of the Clipshet suggests some new titles for the 1950 program: "Beating Baby to Death," "Killing His Best Friend," "His First Drink," and "A Black Eye for Mother." The editor adds, however, that he expects no thanks for these suggestions.

Dorothy Dix Says

ness never gets a woman anywhere matrimonially speaking. Men don't marry women who look and act so much like their brothers so that they forget they are women. It is the woman whose femininity hits them in the eye that gets them.

Don't wear your heart upon your sleeve, but neither hide your affections behind a barrage of coldness and indifference. Above all, remember that love begets love, and nothing so convinces a man that a woman is of superior taste and judgment as to know she is crazy about him. Many a man has married a woman just because she cried for him.

So, after all, the way to get your man is just the way to get anything else you want. Go after him.
