

Testifies To Pay-Off To Chief Constable

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer
VANCOUVER (CP)—Police chief Walter Mulligan shared in a series of $500 payoffs to protect Vancouver gamblers, Det.-Sgt. Len Cuthbert, 54-year-old veteran officer, testified Thursday before a royal commission.

The payoffs also included bottles of whisky.

"In each case I would keep the whisky and take the $500 to the chief constable's office where I would get $250 in return," Cuthbert said.

Cuthbert, former head of the gambling squad, was testifying before the inquiry into alleged corruption of the Vancouver police force.

The hearing was resumed after a 14-day adjournment called by commissioner Reginald H. Tupper to give Cuthbert time to recover from a gun-shot wound which top level police officers say was a suicide attempt.

The detective in his first direct evidence told in detail of the underworld payoffs with which his name had been linked many times during the earlier sessions of the hearing.

His testimony followed a demand by counsel for Mulligan that the Toronto tabloid Flash—whose articles on corruption preceded the appointment of the commission—be charged with contempt.

Cuthbert said he had made arrangements with Pete Wallace, mentioned as a big-time gambler, to allow him to operate a book-making establishment.

TOLD COMMISSION

His testimony was prefaced by an address by H. A. D. Oliver his counsel, who said Cuthbert was there to "accuse himself and accuse others with him." The sergeant testified without protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

"He will disclose that after 23 years of loyal service he improperly accepted sums of money" during a six-week period in 1949.

"He will also disclose that he made a full disclosure to the police commission at that time," Mr. Oliver said.

ATTACKS TABLOID

T. G. Norris, counsel for Chief Mulligan, who is on leave of absence, reviewed at length the articles published by Flash and the laws governing contempt of court. He maintained that articles published in the issues of the tabloid on July 2, 9, 16 and 23, contained matters that were "belous and scurrilous" to members of the community, the government, public servants, council officers, officials and citizens.

"It is filth and obscenity, the like of which has not been seen in this part of the country before," he said.

He asked the commissioner to cite Ray Munro, west coast representative of Flash, for contempt along with Lewis Ruby and Howard Somerville, both of Toronto, whom he identified as executive officials of Flash.

Mr. Tupper, who said he had received an apology from Flash for an editorial published July 23, said he would take the question of contempt under consideration.

A far cry from the modern fire engines of today is the ancient relic of 1843 seen in the picture being hauled along in true fashion by bearded firemen with red shirts and black helmets. "Ye Olde Tyners" is the sign of the parade, which brought rounds of applause from the enthusiastic audience. Whistling and time-beating by fiddling fans as various popular numbers were played, marked this phase of the program.

Jamboree At Forum Delights Audience

Last night at the Forum, which for many years has echoed applause as the Old Time Fiddlers played their way to championship honors, or did the best they could for the honor of their own settlement, Buddy Spicher, the 16-year-old boy from Wheeling, West Virginia, really rattled it off.

Dusty Owens, billed as the star of the Jamboree, lived up to appearance notices with his rich singing voice and ability to keep the show moving at a fast pace.

It was the fiddling of Buddy Spicher, in a style unknown here, which brought rounds of applause from the enthusiastic audience. Whistling and time-beating by fiddling fans as various popular numbers were played, marked this phase of the program.

The members of the 14-man show gave ample evidence of being carefully selected for the position each one filled and in the minds of many in the audience each was a star in his own right.

The Rodeo Boys, including Spicher and his fiddle, Willie Schults on the steel guitar and Carl Savage playing rhythm guitar, were a good trio. Carl does a nice job of singing.

Mr. Barton proved to be a success both as a vocal duet and a comic team. Buddy, former Texas State fiddling champion, showed there are plenty of merry tunes left in his fiddle and thrilled the audience with his version of "Listen to the Mocking Bird."

Lazy Jim Day's quiet humor was very effective. Lazy Jim, with oversized comb and overall and all the rest, knows just how to make an audience.

Dusty proved himself a wise campaigner by including the appealing Donna Darlene in his show.

One could not help being impressed with the physical prowess required of the fire fighter of the past century. Before the steam fire pumper drawn by horses came along, fires were responded to by men hauling their hose and ladders. There was little room for any person who was not in the soundest condition. In fact many configurations were a real endurance test before they were brought under control.

Adding colour to the parade which attracted thousands of citizens, was the appearance of the REECE Band which was carried on a large float. This band in its colorful uniforms has added much to the Centennial celebrations thus far.

Even the oldest citizen could not remember seeing some of this equipment in action. The hand pump and hose reel drawn by red shirted black helmeted, bewiskered men lent an authentic air of antiquity. The flimsy ladder truck, also hand drawn, was no doubt adequate for the usual fires of the present day.

Last in the procession were the modern fire fighting units of the local department which demonstrated the evolution that has taken place over the years in fire fighting procedure.

The parade was organized by Firemen Brendon Hennessey and Hawley Crockett. Mr. Austin Trainor, C.D.A. with Mrs. Trainor were in charge of the makeup. The fine team of horses hauling the Beaver steamer were loaned by the Charlottetown Experimental Farm and were driven by Mr. "Mac" MacEachern.

Bottomley said he finds the export trend "very disturbing." Britain should not allow the natural advantage of the United States to detract from efforts to sell British goods in Canada.

Ancient And Modern Fire Equipment Seen In Picturesque Parade

Memories of by-gone days were revived last night when the Charlottetown Fire Department in connection with Firemen's Week and the Maritime Firemen's tournament put on a picturesque parade of fire fighting equipment, the oldest of which dated back to 1843, twelve years before the City's incorporation.

Even the oldest citizen could not remember seeing some of this equipment in action. The hand pump and hose reel drawn by red shirted black helmeted, bewiskered men lent an authentic air of antiquity. The flimsy ladder truck, also hand drawn, was no doubt adequate for the usual fires of the present day.

There seems to be possibilities for such British goods as deep-frozen soft fruits, plumbing and building trade accessories.

Supplies for Canada's expanding development of natural resources and jet engines offered promising fields.

Robert Edwards, Labor member for Bliston, said it seems strange that Britain should go out of its way to encourage U.S. investment in Canada in basic industries such as mining, paper and oil.

Compliments Police Force

Members of the City Police Force looked sharp yesterday afternoon when His Worship Mayor Stewart, accompanied by members of the Police Committee, held an impromptu inspection at the City Court Room.

The Mayor complimented Chief MacArthur on the fine appearance of his men and at the same time congratulated them on the excellent work they have done during the Centennial celebrations. He described their appearance as being 100 per cent satisfactory, stating that nothing adds to the morale of the force more than smartly dressed men.

It is the Mayor's intention to carry out from time to time such inspections as were held yesterday. Accompanying His Worship in the inspection were the Chairman of the Police Committee, Arthur Gormley; Coun. F. G. Hutcheson; Coun. Elmer Mac-

Imports Up Of British Woollens

TORONTO, (CP)—The Canadian woolen and knit goods manufacturers association said Thursday Canada imported during May the highest total of British woollen and worsted cloth in 16 months.

Shipments totalled 1,671,000 yards during May. This was an increase of 1,026,000 yards over the previous month, and the largest volume reached since January 1954, when 1,812,000 yards were received.

Former Husband Weds Widower

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Tamara Edell Rees, 31, a former combat paratrooper who underwent a sex-change operation in Holland, Thursday confirmed he has been married to a young Los Angeles widower.

Tamara, an entertainer at a local theatre, said the wedding took place Saturday in Reno, Nev., to James E. Courtland III, father of two children.

As Robert Rees, the entertainer served through the Second World War in the paratroops. He was wounded twice. The sex-change operation was performed after Rees had been discharged from the army.

Before going overseas, Rees was married and his parents said he was the father of two children. He was divorced before the operation two years ago.

When a reporter asked about the children, Tamara answered: "I have no children of my own."

Addresses Group Church Laymen

"The Church deserves a portion of your time" said Mr. Robert G. Groom, C. C. of Tilsonburg, Ontario speaking to a group of about 100 laymen of the United Church gathered at a luncheon meeting yesterday.

"There is a job for you to do and that job is right here and now" continued the Ontario lawyer who through his outstanding work in lay circles has received recognition as one of the most outstanding lay leaders in the United Church of Canada. Mr. Ivan Sinclair, vice-president of Trinity Men's Association presided at the meeting. The speaker was introduced by Mr. Allison MacKinnon, secretary, and thanked by Mr. R. G. Howard, past president and secretary of the Association. Rev. Dr. A. S. Weir opened the meeting with Grace and closed it with the Benediction.

Taking as his subject "First Things First", Mr. Groom told his audience that he was very much interested in the work of Alcoholics Anonymous. He said that he had attended a course at Yale University in an effort to learn more about what makes an alcoholic "tick" and some of the problems confronting these individuals.

The speaker pointed out that in his capacity as a town and county magistrate he became aware that men and women battling with alcoholism were dealing with a very difficult situation and he felt that by having a better understanding of that problem he would be in a more favourable position to help them. He intimated that he works very closely with the local AA Group in his town to bring about rehabilitation to many.

Policy On Uranium Purchase

OTTAWA (CP)—Western Nations, including Canada, soon may make declaration to clarify their policy on purchases of uranium. Prime Minister St. Laurent said Thursday.

He made the statement at a press conference after stating he understands the government's policy is to purchase all uranium produced in Canada until 1962 at a maximum $7.25 a pound.

This was directly opposite to a statement in the Commons July 20 by Trade Minister Howe that the government has agreed only to pay a guaranteed price for uranium concentrates it purchases until 1962. Mr. Howe said the government never has said it will absorb all uranium production until that date.

Mr. Howe was not in the capital Thursday and could not be reached for comment.

The prime minister was asked whether there is to be an international announcement with respect to policy on purchases of uranium.

"There might be a declaration to clarify policy. I have heard of no suggestion that there is to be a change in policy," he replied.

Araigned Following Night Club Brawls In Montreal

MONTREAL, (CP)—Frank Pretula, alleged kingpin gambler who was arrested following a series of night club brawls, today was arraigned in criminal court on charges of assault and "pointing a gun at a citizen."

Pretula, 36, released on $2,200 bail, was ordered by Judge Andre Loranger to appear again Aug. 4. Ned Roberts, operator of a chartered club, was named as the victim of the alleged assault.

Meanwhile, Louis Freco, 42, also arrested following the brawls, appeared before Judge Willie Proulx in sessions court on four charges of illegal possession of a dangerous weapon. He was freed on $4,000 bail—$1,000 for each charge. He also was ordered to appear Aug. 4.

FIVE ARRESTED

In all, five men have been arrested and two still are sought in connection with four outbursts on two consecutive nights last week at four night clubs—the Downbeat, El Morocco, the All American and the Montmartre, all within a few blocks of St. Catherine St. The mai houthright was Charles Chase, 24, Canadian middleweight boxing champion, and Ronald Jones, 27, both surrendered to police Wednesday, accompanied by their lawyers.

The two and William Rowman, 41, arrested earlier, will be charged with public mischief, police said.

Still sought on similar charges are George Desmond and Lionel Paul Cudmore and Joan Murphy, Red Cross field supervisors conducted the tests.

No Cracks At Wall Street

MOSCOW, (Reuters)—Krkodil Russia's humor magazine noted for its cartoons satirizing the United States, came out Thursday without a single crack about "Wall Street imperialists."

The latest issue of the magazine, usually prepared several weeks in advance of publication, was dated and should have been published July 20, but came out eight days late without explanation.

The delay was attributed here to an abrupt change of format by the editors to keep in line with the Geneva spirit, reflected in other sections of the Soviet press of goodwill to all—including Americans.

The previous issue, which appeared several days before the Geneva "summit" conference devoted four of its 16 pages to cartoons and stories lampooning the United States.
