Q. Is an unmarried woman presented to a married one when making an introduction?
A. Yes, unless the single woman is considerably older than the married one. A bride of twenty years should be presented to a woman of fifty, regardless of whether the latter is married or single.

Q. Even if a wedding is to be a very small, informal one, would it be all right for the bride to wear a white bridal veil?
A. Yes, provided it is not her second marriage.

Q. Is it good form to use ruled paper for social correspondence?
A. No; use plain, white, unruled paper of good quality.

Chocolate Stains
Soak chocolate-stained fabrics in cold strong borax water for half an hour. Pour boiling water through and wash in the usual manner. For stains on silk or other non-washables, sponge with chloroform.

Clean Combs
Remove the dirt from between the teeth of the comb with a toothpick. Swish to and fro in a basin of cold water containing a few drops of ammonia, and wipe as dry as possible.

Queen Elizabeth To Ride Train Coach Built For Grandfather

By RICK STEVENS

SYDNEY, (Reuters)—The "museum piece" Royal train to be used by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh during the New South Wales section of their tour of Australia has roused a storm of protest here.

Critics, mostly women, claim that the coach in which the Royal visitors are expected to travel is "uncomfortable" and in "shockingly bad taste."

The coach was built 53 years ago for the Queen's grandfather, the late King George V, when, as Duke of Cornwall and York, he visited Australia to open the first federal Parliament May 9, 1901.

The New South Wales transport authorities who are responsible for refurbishing the coach for the forthcoming trip claim the train will provide "the last word in comfort."

The same coach was used by the Duke of Windsor, when as Prince of Wales he visited Australia in 1920. Later, it was used by Queen Elizabeth's father and mother, the late King George VI and the present Queen Mother, when, as the Duke and Duchess of York, they visited Canberra to open the federal parliament buildings in 1927.

Successful governors-general, including the Duke of Gloucester, have used it since.

Ample But Outmoded

Refurbished, the coach will have a main bedroom suite and two other suites, each with bathroom attached, lounge, dining room and small kitchen. The three suites will be enamelled in cream with gold lines.

Fittings will be gold-plated. Blinds, carpets and cushions will be Royal blue.

But critics describe the dining room furniture as "straight out of

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

The days shorten, and the year wanes. In the silvery frosts of these mornings, children talk not only of the delight of Hallowe'en, but of the joys of the Christmas to come. The Hunter's Moon falls roundly above our evening slopes, and the sun lends his smiles to bless the workers in the fields these ideal autumn days.

And the leaves drift earthward to rustle, with lovely sound, underfoot. Today a branch of a lawn tree exposed more of the silver tracery of limbs and afar against the horizon, a birch, a maple was bare. But there remains yet colors, flame and gold and bronze, beautiful upon the hills.

And with the significance of season which in the midst of death all about in field and tree and meadowland, bespeaks also in tiny folded bud and rootlet, promise of life to come, so go from us here and there the old friends. Our ranks thin and missing them our way grows lonelier as it westers. But still in a continuity of race of which we are yet an interested witness, here before an altar a couple vow their long vows and there bringing what gifts to the world, we know not, is born a babe to be another October child.

The gold of today's sun was bright and warm, and the weather we were told "just great for the digging" which here before evening was brought to a successful close. There was indeed a surplus of time left in the hands of the workers so they at once moved their forces into a neighbor's field to bring

DOROTHY DIX'S COLUMN

A Bereaved Mother

Woman Who Lost Son In Korea Bemoans Her Lack Of Friends

DEAR MISS DIX: This is not a love problem, but I wonder if you can help me. When I lost my son in Korea two and a half years ago, many came to pay respects, others sent messages. However, none of these people has visited me as a friend. The only time anyone comes to see me is if they want something. Even the friends of my son, to whom I sent cigarettes, candy, etc., don't call. For a time I thought of joining a drama group, since I am interested in the theatre, but my health then prevented that activity. Would you advise me to join one now? Sometimes I think I'd like to move to another town; perhaps that would be best. My husband, a married daughter and myself are the only ones at home.

FAY G.

JOIN DRAMA GROUP

ANSWER: You need activity, and you need it very much. By all means get into that drama group and work hard. Friends sometimes have a distressing habit of disappearing when they are wanted particularly, but you must look into your own actions to decide if there is something in your attitude that kept them away. Perhaps you dwell on your loneliness too much. Perhaps you give the impression of feeling martyred or friendless.

People, as a rule, want to be among cheerful folks, and if you seem continually depressed, never give smile or show sympathy for someone else, you are bound to discourage friends. No matter how deep one's grief may be, sorrow is something that should be borne generally in private.

You need spiritual guidance and help even more than activity. The two will combine to make you a wanted, even sought-after, member of your community again. Add the third ingredient of offering a helping hand to others, and your friends are bound to return. Let the drama group supply your artistic need, then get to work on a community or charity project for underprivileged children. You'll forget yourself, and others will remember you.

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a girl of 16 with a very nice boy friend. Our only problem is that he wants to bring his buddies with him whenever he comes to see me. I'd like to be alone with him once in a while.

C. M.

ANSWER: You've only known the boy a month, so he is probably still too shy to visit you without some backing. Don't worry. In due time he'll muster courage to face you and the family without assistance.

Morning Smile

A man bought a house on the boundary separating Russia from Rumania, but was uncertain which country he was in, especially as he received demand notes for rates from the officials of both.

A surveyor was employed to determine the question and six months later he gave his verdict. "The house," he said is "definitely in Rumania."

"Thank Heaven!" ejaculated the owner: "I couldn't possibly stand another Russian winter."

For Tomorrow

RATHER than rely entirely on your own judgment this day, it would be better, if confronted with unusual problems, to seek the advice of those more experienced than yourself. Keep such discussions on an impersonal basis, however, and do not let sentiment sway you when the time comes for you to make your ultimate decision.

The evening hours favor social affairs, so plan something special—not only for pleasurable enjoyment, but also to relieve the monotony you may be presently feeling in either business or domestic affairs.

For the Birthday

If tomorrow is your birthday, the year ahead promises much in the way of rewarding achievement as well as a spectacular improvement in your financial status. In financially speaking, you should be benefiting from the fine influences indicated in your horoscope right now. This trend will continue for at least three months more, so make the most of it.

Personal relationships are highlighted during the balance of 1953, with the result that business dealings should be harmonious and social activities stimulating. You may realize a long-cherished dream of travel during the spring of 1954 and, if you are single, the sidereal influences augur well for romance and courtship.

That Body Of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

NERVOUS TENSION MAY CAUSE SKIN SYMPTOMS

Just as infected teeth were blamed some years ago for all kinds of diseases, our jokester friends now say that when a physician cannot find the cause of certain symptoms, he tells the patient that the disease — asthma, heart disturbance, arthritis — is caused by the patient's nerves. Finally, when the physician told the patient that his skin disease was caused by his nerves, it was the limit of these jokes. Today, most physicians agree that the nerves cause skin diseases and the rest admit that the nervous cause an exaggeration or increase in the symptoms of skin diseases.

In the British Practitioner, Dr. H. R. Vickers, Royal Infirmary, Sheffield, states that true or organic skin diseases of themselves are few. On the other hand, general emotional tension appears to play a leading part in many dermatoses (skin diseases). Probably the first abnormal change is irritation and skin diseases are produced by rubbing rather than by scratching. "Almost always there is some history of nervous emotional tension although it may not follow the tension immediately. Cure depends on finding the emotional cause."
