

SIR ALEXANDER BANNERMAN IN THE BAHAMAS.

We take from the Nassau Guardian of the 7th February the following Speech, being the first delivered by our late excellent Governor to the Parliament of the Bahamas. It will have much interest for the thousands in this Colony who will long and warmly cherish the remembrance of Sir Alexander Bannerman:—

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Legislative Council: Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:

I have summoned you to assemble for the despatch of business at the usual season; and I have great pleasure in meeting you for the first time, since my appointment to the Government of this Colony.

In October last, when nearing your shore in the ship which brought me, after a rough passage from the North Eastern frontier of the United States, I was struck—as all strangers must be—by the picturesque situation on which stands the capital of the Bahamas, sloping to the sea shore, and washed by the bright blue waters of the ocean, affording natural facilities for promoting the comfort and health of its inhabitants, which I found on landing the streets of Nassau, clearly indicated, had not been overlooked.

I was then rejoiced to learn that the Colony had been particularly healthy since 1852, having recovered from the ravages of that malady, which, I understand, had proved so fatal to Grant Town, and the adjacent village at that period, nor could it be otherwise in localities where sewerage by ordinary means seems impracticable, and the lanes leading to the cottages and dwellings more apt to be choked with garbage preventing a free circulation of air, and becoming receptacles, for all sorts of animal and vegetable matter, subject to the influence of a scorching sun, the exhalations from which are so prejudicial to health.

I embrace this public opportunity of alluding to the subject, because although we cannot be too grateful to Divine Providence for the blessings we now enjoy, we know not how soon we may be re-visited by the cholera; and it is our imperative duty, by all the means in our power, to endeavour to mitigate the increased evils which invariably follow in the train of that fatal epidemic, if we neglect those sanitary precautions which are always resorted to, but often when it is too late.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly: I have not yet seen a statement of the revenue and expenditure of the Colony for the financial year; some of the returns are not yet received: it will soon be laid before you.

I observed in your statute book an Act which contemplates reduction in salaries on your civil establishments, amounting to nearly £2000 a year. In this Act the interests of the existing holders of office are properly preserved, and in due time the Colony must reap the benefit of this salutary measure.

A petition has been sent to me on an important subject, to which I shall presently advert. I am requested to submit it for the favourable consideration of your Honorable House. The numerous and respectable signatures which are attached to it, are sufficient guarantees that it will meet with every attention from you.

The estimates for the current year will soon be presented to you, framed I trust with a due regard to economy; and I doubt not you will provide supplies for the necessary expenditure of the Colony.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Legislative Council: Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:

The petition to which I have alluded very properly dwells on the inconvenience which the community suffer, owing to the uncertainty and tediousness of postal arrangements between Nassau and the United Kingdom.

By a return which I called for, I find that in no single instance during the period of twelve months, have the English mails reached Nassau at the time pre-ordered in the contract of the Royal Mail Company, while the mails to England—in several cases out of twelve—have been too late for the return steamer. An honorable gentleman, a member of the Legislature, lately embarked in one of the Company's ships, and paid his passage to Nassau. He was landed at St. Thomas, about 3000 miles distant from Southampton, and obliged to hire a vessel to convey him and his family here, 800 miles further. On this subject I addressed the Secretary of State on the 12th December last, pointing out New York as the shortest and best route for the transmission of our mails; and you may be assured, in so far as I am concerned, this important matter shall not be allowed to rest.

In connection with this subject, I cannot help expressing some surprise that no steam communication has yet been established with the United States. A predecessor of mine, some years ago, stated to H. M. Government that the Bahamas were capable of raising corn and cattle for their own support. I am sure we should all rejoice to see so desirable a consummation realized, but in the mean time, I am of opinion, that in a colony where most of its produce is of a perishable nature, the exertions and industry of its population cannot fail to be paralysed by the want of a ready market. I believe, therefore, that a more frequent intercourse and interchange of commodities with our neighbours would be mutually advantageous, the produce of the Bahamas would soon be wonderfully increased, and through such a channel, if once properly established, they might reach England quicker than by the present tedious mode of conveyance, and a natural and wholesome competition would ensue in the pursuits and enterprise of mercantile men, which must always prove beneficial to the public.

Since my arrival here much of my time has been occupied in reading complaints, statements, and counter-statements relative to the Magistrates in some of the Out-islands. The Commission of the Peace seems to be a formidable one, containing a list of names sufficient to administer justice to a much larger colony. I find, however, that many of these Magistrates decline acting, being satisfied to have J. P. attached to their names, leaving the duty to be performed by those who are honorable exceptions. If Nassau were more a naval station than it is, and which I hope it will soon be, we could more easily reach these gentlemen, but the subject is one of such importance, that I would earnestly recommend it to the early attention of the Legislature, believing as I do, that a Resident paid Magistrate in some of the islands will become indispensable.

The frequent loss of many valuable ships on the dangerous reefs of the Bahamas has established to our maritime population the name of "wreckers," not a very choice one, but appropriate enough to men who follow an occupation sanctioned by Legislative authority, its only redeeming feature being the rescuing from watery graves many unfortunate mariners. I trust the coasts of the Bahamas will soon be much better lighted, when there will be fewer shipwrecks, and that our sailors will find less demoralizing employment on that element where they appear to be expert, and to which they are so partial.

I have already trespassed on your time, but cannot conclude without expressing the gratitude we owe to the Giver of All Good, from the tranquility which reigns here, far removed from the seat of that sanguinary war which has, after much forbearance, been forced on our gracious Sovereign, and in which so many of her brave subjects have already fallen in the cause of civilized Europe. The result of this war, I fervently trust, will frustrate the ambitious designs of a powerful and absolute monarch, who, under pretext of religion, a pretext which has often been fruitful of much misery and crime, would overrun and oppress multitudes of the human race, who otherwise would reap the blessings of civil and religious freedom. That this war may speedily and successfully terminate, I am sure you will devoutly pray.

It has been intimated to me that the Acts which you passed last session will be left to their operation with two exceptions; relative to these, despatches will be laid before you, pointing out the objections to these statutes, and they may easily be amended.

I have now only to assure you I shall be happy at all times to co-operate with you in all matters which you may think will promote the interests of the colony, and the welfare of its inhabitants.

ENGLISH LANCERS IN EGYPT.—Advices from Alexandria of the 23d state that 1000 English Lancers had arrived at Suez from India.

AUSTRIA.—VIENNA, Thursday, March 29.—The expected arrival of the French Minister for Foreign Affairs had caused a considerable rise on the Bourse.

ASIA.—It was reported that an insurrection had broken out in Mesopotamia, and that the rebels amounted to 30,000 men.

RUSSIA.—The Northern Bee, a St. Petersburg journal, patronised by the court, publishes a manifesto of the "Holy Synod," as agency through which the Czar governs the Russian church. The Synod fanatically adjures the entire body of the faithful to enter the new militia of the emperor, pointing to the example of the heroes Donski and Poschorski, and urging the shame which the defeat of Russia would bring upon the orthodox church.

PRINCE MENSCHIKOFF.—Advices from Odessa of the 18th state that the report of the death of Prince Menschikoff is false.

A correspondent of the Daily News states that within the last few weeks old Schamy, the mountain hero and patriot, has been rejoined by his son, after an absence of eleven years as prisoner among the Russians. During a Russian incursion upon one of the villages he was seized when a mere boy, since when his father has heard nothing of him. Directly upon its being known at St. Petersburg that a son of Schamy had been made prisoner, the emperor had him brought there, and from that time to the present he has not only been treated with great kindness, but has received every advantage which that capital affords for obtaining a distinguished education. The young man is of great promise, and has become a great favorite in the military schools. During the past winter old Schamy, in some sudden surprise, made captives of several distinguished Russian ladies, among whom was the Princess Tscharawaddy. They were conducted to one of Schamy's mountain fortresses. The governor general of Tiflis sent a flag of truce to Schamy, offering a large sum of money, and the liberty of several Circassian prisoners, if he would deliver up the princess and her companions. To this Schamy objected, but stated that if his son were alive and could be restored to him, he would exchange all his prisoners. The Emperor Nicholas sent for young Schamy, gave him his liberty, and fitted him out with the needful equipment to take the long journey. The exchange took place about six weeks ago.

THE LAST OF THE MAMELUKES.—Selim Pasha, who was killed at Eupatoria, was esteemed as a brave soldier, was called the last of the Mamelukes, he being the only one who escaped from the massacre at Cairo of that terrible but celebrated militia. Seeing all his companions falling under the fire of the Viceroys's soldiers, crowded as they were in Cairo, he took the bold resolution of urging his horse to the parapet and taking the leap. The animal was killed by the fall, and the rider lay for some time motionless. Equally astonished at so much resolution and good fortune, Mehmet Ali ordered him to be spared, and at the end of some days he regained his strength.

THE LONDON TIMES says the total expenditure upon the war estimates for 1855-6 will be forty millions, or something like two-thirds of the entire revenue of the state.

POLAND.

DISTRESSED CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE.—Accounts which may be fully relied upon, from the kingdom of Poland, represent the general state of commercial and industrial affairs, and undertakings as most depressed and unfavourable. The natural consequence of war, although the seat be distant, are aggravated by the enormous contributions in money and kind; by the increasing scarcity of the circulating medium, which so far as regards hard coin, has nearly disappeared, as all those who possess coin secrete or bury it; by the carrying off of workmen to serve in the ranks, as far away from Poland as possible; by the failure of credit abroad; by the great increase in the price of raw materials, which can only arrive by Prussian channels; and in so far as regards the beet manufacturers, by a failure of crops and a scarcity of cattle, in addition to the inconveniences previously mentioned. The blockade is admitted to have produced palpable effects throughout the interior as well as in Poland, and these effects will be more sensibly felt if the blockade be instituted the moment navigation is opened, and above all, if a vigilant eye be kept on Pillau as well as on Memel, as the former will this season be one of the principal points for intermediary traffic.

SAD ACCIDENT.—TWENTY-FIVE MEN BURNED ALIVE—EIGHT BODIES RECOVERED.—Philadelphia, April 3.—The new and extensive Glass Factory, at the town of Progress, on the mouth of Rancocas Creek, N. J., was blown down yesterday, during the gale, and twenty-five men engaged in the manufacture of glass were buried in the ruins. At the latest dates from the scene of disaster, eight dead bodies had been recovered, and several men taken out seriously injured. Among the killed was a son of Alderman Palmer of this city. The property belonged to Julius Ketter, and is damaged to the amount of $15,000.

The state of affairs in Lavaca, Texas, is briefly summed up by the Register. "The spring fights have commenced, business is dull, the tides are low, and everybody enjoying elegant leisure."

BOUNTY FOR SEAMEN.—The secretary of the American navy, in addition to the present liberal pay, offers a bounty of twenty dollars to all seamen, and fifteen dollars to ordinary seamen, who shall enlist for three years service, within the next sixty days.

THE RECIPROcity TREATY.—A telegraphic despatch received at the Boston Custom House (says the Boston Courier) states that a new circular will be immediately issued from the Treasury Department, Washington, counteracting the former circular and containing the following, viz: "white boards, beams, planks, laths and the other enumerated articles, would, if imported in their rough-hewn or swed state, be entitled to free entry, as comprehended in the timber or lumber referred to in the Treaty.

"Articles entered under the same designations and other articles of wood if manufactured in whole or in part, by planing, turning, splitting, shaving or any other process of manufacture, other than hewing or sawing, must be considered as remaining liable to the duty imposed by the existing Tariff on manufactures of wood."

On the morning of the 12th instant, the dwelling house of Antonio Gendron, in Canada West, took fire, and before assistance could be obtained three of its inmates were burned to ashes! One, an adopted daughter of Mr. Gendron, aged about twenty-two years; the other two, aged ten and twelve years, daughters of a Mr. Gague, who was living in Mr. Gendron's house.

By a letter received by the Hon. Edward Palmer this morning, dated Wallace, April 12, we learn that Mr. Wier would lose both his feet, but he was unwilling to allow them to be amputated, and his medical advisers were of opinion that he would not be able to stand an operation. His youngest daughter had arrived from Bangor.

By a subsequent letter from Mr. Hammond Johnson, we hear that Mr. Wier was not suffering any pain, and that if he would submit to an operation, it is thought that he might survive. Mr. R. Johnson was doing well.—Hassard's Gazette, April 21.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—The Hon. Edward Whelan, M. P., gave a bird's eye view of the Literature of the present century, to a large audience assembled last evening. Throughout the course of the Lecture he evidently manifested that he was a great admirer of the muses, and gave specimens from some of the finest Poets, not only in Britain, but also in America. He descanted upon some of the beauties of prose writers, and showed that in the production of books in the present age, there was no end.

A desultory conversation followed, and the interest in the subject matter of the evening was well sustained.

The Rev. John Knox, an old friend of the Institute, may be expected to lecture next Tuesday evening on "Philosophy, natural and divine."—Haz. Gaz., Wednesday.

The Concert advertised in another column has been unavoidably postponed, owing to the circumstance of the Gentleman erecting the organ to be used on that occasion, through some unforeseen difficulty, not being able to have it completed at the time specified—and another week will have improved the travelling so as to admit of country friends attending.—Id.

Died.

On the 7th ult., at Retchill, near Dumfries, Scotland, David McGill, Esquire, aged 63 years, most sincerely and deeply lamented by his family and friends. The above gentleman was a brother of John McGill, Esq., and resided for some years in this Town. At Augustine Cove, Lot 28, after a short illness, Julian, the beloved wife of Mr. James Murphy, of that place, leaving a large circle of relations to mourn their bereavement. At Lot 43, on Sunday 15th instant, Mr. Robert Land, aged 64 years.
