

Editorial Notes.

The Senate of the United States is now in the inquisitive mood. It wants to know "the state of the relations between the United States and Great Britain."

Mr. Davitt, speaking at a meeting recently held, said he had received censure from all parts of the kingdom on account of his recent criticisms of the Liberals, but from nobody had he received stronger censure than from Mr. Parnell, who in a private interview had said that, as the Liberals had agreed to include the Irish land question in the home rule scheme, it was unfair to upbraid them for indifference regarding evictions.

It is officially announced that Prince Bismarck has obtained the consent of Emperor William to prosecute the publishers of the Deutsche Rundschau for revealing state secrets in publishing the abstract from the diary of the late Emperor Frederick. The Emperor gave his consent to the proceedings irrespective of the question as to whether the published extract was genuine or not.

Personally, Mr. William O'Brien has no cause to love Canada. Canada did not approve of his foolish attempt to drive Lord Lansdowne from this country. Therefore he may rejoice and say that "Cleveland is avenging Ireland's wrong by his retaliation measure."

As it is Canada that is to suffer by the avenging process; and as Canada has through its parliamentary bodies received several official snubbings for its expressions of sympathy with Irish aspirations; and as it is only half a dozen years since the Canadian parliament voted a hundred thousand dollars to the relief of Mr. O'Brien's compatriots, it would be thought that some sense of gratitude in even this man would serve to mitigate the transports of his joy at a blow struck at a people who had done so much for the country whose cause he assumes to advocate.

The Pioneer is very anxious that the Government shall appoint Grits to the vacant seats in the Senate, and says: "Here is an opportunity to select men of integrity and wide parliamentary experience, who will fill the position with credit and assist to render that body respectable."

Wheat is up to a dollar a bushel in Manitoba, and is quoted at a dollar and a quarter in Chicago. How it reached the latter figure is explained by the following Chicago despatch: "Chicago, Sept. 27.—Hutchinson is engineering the wheat deal. He had been buying all of the September wheat offered lately. As only three days remained for the shorts to settle they went into the pit this morning and began to bid against each other with the result that the price mounted to $1.25. Hutchinson then sent the shorts word that he had a little wheat to sell. They flocked to his office where he disposed of 325,000 bushels at $1.25. He then, after telling those of the shorts who were still waiting that wheat would go to $2 within a week, went to his club, leaving instructions with his brokers to sell all the wheat they wanted at $1.25, or buy all they would sell at $1.24. There is suspicion that Hutchinson also has most of the December wheat, and in consequence the option went up to $1."

Colonies are beginning to take rank in Great Britain. The colonists are now of some account—at least their claims to importance as factors in the British nation are now disputed. In the course of a recent speech in London Mr. Carter, a native of Jamaica, educated in England, but for many years a resident of Australia, insisted on the complete equality of colonists, both as to citizenship and participation in imperial policy, with the inhabitants of the British Isles. He asked why he should lose his rights as a Briton because he became a colonist. He considered the colonist to be neither the least enterprising nor the weakest physically of the British people. Why, then, should they be denied a share in the discussion and settlement of Imperial questions in which they were equally concerned with those at home. The day was past when Great Britain and Ireland alone constituted the Empire. They were not only no longer in a position to claim that monopoly, but they were in reality an ever-decreasing portion of the group of states that made up the great British nation and power. The word "colonist," to which in old-fashioned, unprogressive minds there was still some remnant of the old absurd notion of inferiority—as though the men who went forth to tame and subdue the wilderness and make it blossom like the rose, could be inferior to those who stayed at home—had for him an objectionable sound, and he thought it was time to discard it. The idea involved lay at the root of most of the differences that had arisen between England and the Colonies. On one point, however, he remained and would ever remain firm—there must be no talk of secession. The integrity of the Empire must be maintained at all costs. It is at all events evident that the discussion of the question of Imperial Federation is giving the Briton of the British Isles a better idea of the value of the "colonist."

Death of Robert Shaw, Esquire.

We regret to learn of the death of Robert Shaw, Esq., which sad event took place on Monday, Sept. 24th. The deceased was a native of Colonsay, Scotland, and emigrated to Nova Scotia seventy years ago. After remaining there about two years he removed to this Province and settled in New Perth when that section of the country was almost a complete wilderness. He lived to see fertile fields and rich meadows take the place of the forest that, when he came to the Island, was uninvited by the sound of the woodman's axe. Honest and upright in his dealings, kind and hospitable in his nature, he passed away at the ripe age of ninety-two years, leaving behind him a property which amply demonstrates his energy, perseverance and thrift. The deceased was the father of Cyrus Shaw, Esq., the popular member for the Cardigan District.

Our Book Table.

THE October number of Harper's New Monthly Magazine devotes some dozen pages to repeat and cleverly illustrate the universally pleasing subject of our "Old English Songs." The poetry may be doggerel and the sentiment uncurrent now-a-days, but it must not be forgotten that formerly such verses were made the common vehicle of the tender passion, and as much looked for as the more sober manner, in vogue to-day of "popping the pop."

The porcelain industry of Limoges (the first article in this number) is a good historical showing of these ancient wonders. Dr. Coen writes very intelligently upon the home uses of mineral waters. Robert Burns' Winter Day Dream, a poetic refrain of what cheer, what cheer, is a good success. It satisfies with its rendering. An eighth paper on the Great West is supplied by Charles Dudley Warner, and has its own features of interest. The balance of the matter in this October number is up to the usual quality and instructive character generally issued by Harper & Brothers, of New York City, the publishers.

We have before us the September number of the American Magazine, established to represent American thought as well as American life, and its character is well sustained. It gives a clear showing by both pen and pencil of "The American Navy of to-day," an article by James G. Blaine on "The President's Error," another on "Tariff and Labor," and many others calculated both to enlarge thought and cement conviction. It is published at 749 Broadway, New York City.

The contents of No. 2, Vol. XXX, of the October number of that illustrated fashion book, known as the Domestic Monthly is specially acceptable to our lady friends, who can fish out lots of agreeable facts, ancient dressing, to their hearts content. For general literature this number excels, and if its letter press and illustration are put together in the same scale of opinion, the balances will not go back on their promises nor their weightiness be found wanting. The article on Barbadoes, which is the opening chapter of several to follow under the heading of "In the West Indies," is a successful effort to interest and instruct. It is published at 853 Broadway, New York City.

The Profits of English Cotton Mills.

A late number of Bradstreet contains a statement received from Manchester, England, that on July 2nd twenty-two cotton mills declared dividends for three months of £16,472. Those dividends varied for the quarter from 3 to 12 1/2 per cent, or at the rate of from 12 to 50 per cent, or annum, and while only one mill declared 12 1/2 per cent., ten mills declared a quarterly dividend of 10 per cent. A United States paper makes the following comments: "If twenty-two of our mills were known to be declaring dividends at the rate of over $300,000 per year, what a cry would go out from the free trade press of this country; how zealous they would be to have those profits transferred to England. On the other hand, transferred to England 'Supremacy,' a book rewarded by the Harpers as of sufficient help to merit republication in this country: 'For our cotton manufacturers we import raw materials to the value of £37,000,000, and after clothing our own 47,000,000 of people, we export cotton goods to the value of about £63,000,000, or $315,000,000 in round numbers; this difference between the two sets of figures being necessarily created by industry.' Briefly, there is a great difference between a patriotic Englishman and a mugwump American—in the matter of talk, but the net advantage to the English manufacturer is about the same. The $7,000,000 divided on the 2nd of July among the stockholders of twenty-two English mills would have done a great deal of good distributed in the South, when the cotton came, according to Bradstreet's, and if they were not governed by a theory there, rather than by a condition, they would have the whole $315,000,000 England gained by exporting cotton when it had given employment to about 500,000 people in the mills of Lancashire."

Prince Bismarck made an address, on Saturday, at the harvest festival at Schopau. He congratulated the people upon the results of the harvest after a bad winter and a wet summer. Referring to the deaths in the royal family he said: "Gloomy days have given way to bright sunshine. We can look with pride upon the present Emperor. He is every inch a soldier and will fight bravely, if Germany should ever be attacked. But he loves his subjects too much not to do his utmost to preserve peace. Those among you who were with me in France in 1870 know what a harvest home can be when an enemy is at hand. There is little left then for the tiller of the soil. Let us, therefore, to-day think of our Emperor and give him a thundering 'Hoch Unser Kaiser, lebe hoch.' Wears told that all drank the toast."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Wild Goose Chase.

Sir,—Numerous are the complaints about a certain little steamer, manned by gentlemen who call themselves sportsmen, whose daily occupation is chasing the wild geese upon their feeding grounds and slaughtering them. A gentleman was heard to remark to-day that where there were a thousand wild geese feeding on a certain place on the East River this time last year, not one bird is to be seen there now. When birds are harrassed at their feeding grounds they seek pastures new. If this "scheme" is not stopped at once by a law, (a petition for which, I have no doubt every right-thinking person will sign) the joyful hook of the wild goose will be heard no more around either the West, East or North Rivers. We hear the country people are indignant about this outrage, and well they might be.
