One Cool Head.

"Going clear up?"
 "Yes; sixteenth floor."
 The man who had asked the question opened a small valise he carried by means of a strap slung over one shoulder and took out a book.
 "There's no need of letting any time go to waste," he said. "I've got a work here I'd like to show you. This is no humbug. It's no cheap fake got up to fool the people. It's—"
 "I haven't any time to look at it."
 "You have all the time there is. This is a lightning calculator, my friend, got up on a new plan. Shows you how to compute the interest on any sum from a cent to $1,000,000, how to change dollars to pounds or pounds to dollars, gives simple rules for multiplication by any number of figures, shortens every operation in arithmetic, will pay for itself the first time you use it, and all!"
 The wire cables, which were supposed to be securely fastened to the elevator, broke or gave way at this moment, and the elevator fell from the twelfth story.
 It shot down like a meteor. By some unheard of accident the elevator shaft in that particular building had been constructed with an air cushion at the bottom, and this broke the fall. No lives were lost, but the passengers were badly shaken up and were hysterical with fright—all but one. His voice rose above the din in brisk businesslike tones:
 "And all I ask for the book is half a dollar. Can't I sell you a copy?"—Chicago Tribune.

WHIMS OF BULLETS.

Within the past two years Dr. Samuel H. Garvin, the jail physician, has been keeping the bullets extracted from the bodies of prisoners whose wounds were dressed before the men were placed behind the bars, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. The collection rapidly increased, but recently Dr. Garvin found a number of the bullets missing from the little tin box in which he keeps them and has never been able to trace them. Strolling into his office in the jail, a reporter found the doctor closely examining the bullets which were scattered about the table.
 "It is something remarkable," he said, picking up one of the small slugs that was battered and twisted out of shape, "how the human body will deflect a bullet. Now, this one recalls the time when a negro was sent here who was shot in the left shoulder. I probed for some time without being able to locate the ball and was about to give the search up as hopeless when I found it lodged securely under the man's tongue. He never felt it there and was greatly surprised when I cut it out. The operation never interfered with his speech afterward."
 "Now, this one reminds me of another peculiar case," continued the doctor, picking up a piece of metal that was curved on one side and flat on the other. "A man named King was brought here recently, who was shot in the lower part of the left jaw. I probed for the ball and succeeded in finding half of the bullet above the ear, under the scalp. I was never able to find the other half."
 The ball looked as if it had been cut with a sharp knife, so smooth was the surface. So many persons submit themselves to the doctor's knife and thin, steel probe that he remembers but few of the names of the persons upon whom he has operated. He cited an instance where a man was shot between the toes and the ball was taken out at the ankle.
 One bullet had been flattened from the broad end almost down to the middle. It had turned in its flight. It had struck a negro squarely on the forehead, but such was the resistance of the thick frontal bone that, instead of penetrating into the head, its course was abruptly stopped, and the ball was cut from the skin. Had it been a white man, Dr. Garvin said, the bullet would have pierced the forehead and entered the brain.
 Lying about the table were about 30 of the little pieces of lead, bent and flattened into every conceivable shape, caused by striking or grazing the bone. Each has its history, but a shooting bee is an ordinary occurrence, and the jail physician seldom bothers about the history or the details of the case.
 In speaking of probing for bullets and peculiar incidents in regard to shooting scrapes Dr. Garvin recalled the day in 1855 when General Lovell H. Rousseau was shot by Dr. Standiford in the courthouse yard, the provocation being a political dispute. General Rousseau was carried into an office on Court place, where it was found that he had been shot in the center of the abdomen. When the location of the wound was discovered, the physicians immediately gave up hope of General Rousseau's recovery. On examination, however, they found that the ball had struck the linea alba, the dense, fibrous tissue, about an inch wide, that extends around the abdomen. This saved the general's life. The ball circled around and lodged somewhere near the spinal column and was never removed.

The Doctors Said the Man would Die

Paine's Celery Compound Snatches Mr. Morisette from the Grave.

NATURE'S SPRING MEDICINE CURES RHEUMATISM.

Are you enjoying God's best blessings this spring weather? You know not any thing of them if you are a martyr to rheumatism, neuralgia, insomnia, nervousness, and diseases of the blood.
 It is now an imperative duty to get back sound health and strength by a complete restoring of the broken-down, tired and agonized system with Paine's Celery Compound.
 Your chief aim at this season should be to furnish the body with fresh nervous energy, and supply every artery and vein with rich, pure blood, thus expelling the seeds of disease and death. There is nothing known to physicians that can for a moment approach Paine's Celery Compound for ca-tling off disease, purifying the blood and making strong and healthy nerves.

 Do not procrastinate if you are in danger; tomorrow may be too late. Bear in mind that your case is not too difficult for the curing virtues of such a medicine as Paine's Celery Compound.
 A glorious victory was secured to Mr. Morisette, of Roxford Pond P. Q., at the eleventh hour! His doctors failed, but Paine's Celery Compound was his true salvation. It will give the same marvellous results to all users; it is the world's only disease banisher, it is the only true life-giver. Mr. Morisette says:

"Having been given up to die some time ago by some of the best doctors of the United States, I came to Canada last autumn, terribly ill, and had lost all hope. Suffering agonies from inflammatory rheumatism, I was strongly urged to use Paine's Celery Compound. I gave it a trial as recommended, and the first bottle did me so much good I continued with the medicine until I had used seven bottles, when I found myself perfectly cured; indeed, I never felt better in all my life than at present. I use every possible means to tell others of Paine's Celery Compound, and will always recommend it to those troubled with rheumatism."
