Well Known Former Alberton Man Dies

The death of Mr. P. Warren Leard formerly of Alberton, P. E. I. at the Prince County Hospital on August 25, is grieved by his family and friends.

Born at Tryon P. E. I., in the year 1878, he was the son of George and Charlotte Leard. He moved to Coleman in his early married life where he owned and operated Leard's Grist Mill. He later was the first to give the town of Alberton their electric light and hydro power. Subsequently he owned a grocery and confectionary store at Alberton and retired when moving to Elmsdale in the year 1946.

The funeral services were held from Elmsdale United Church on August 27, 1955, and was very largely attended. Rev. Alex McDowall officiating. Rev. C. O. Howlett testified to the life in which he lived.

The choir was assisted by the Leard quartette of Alberton United Church of which the diseased was a one time member. The organist, Mrs. Crockett, was assisted by Miss Annie Leard who accompanied Miss Dorothy Leard, R. N., during the rendition of a solo, "In the Garden". Hymns sung were: "The Lord's My Shepherd and Rock of Ages."

The pallbearers were six grandsons; Kenneth Pridham, Hilbard Pridham, Reginald Pridham, Le-Bert Pridham, Heath Leard. Harry Leard. Flower bearers were; John Smithurst, Kenneth Gordan, Edwin Hansen, James Thomas.

They are left to mourn, eight children all of whom were present at the funeral. Two having predeceased him. His first wife died in the year 1947. Deepest sympathy goes out to his children. Waldron Leard, Albert Leard of Coleman, P. E. I., Spurgeon Leard, ex R. C. M. P. Charlottetown, Garfield Leard, forman of Frost and Higgins, Arlington, Mass., "Beatrice" Mrs. Hudson Pridham, Alberton, R. R., "Lucy" Mrs. Clifford Dale, Cambridge, Mass., "Ruby" Mrs. Thos. time.

Fifth it is the home of birds and animals that destroy harmful insects and rodents.

Sixth, it prevents erosion on steep hillsides. No matter how well a steep hillside is farmed, if it is denuded of trees, a continuous erosion of soil takes place every time it rains. If the crown of the hill is left wooded, the absorbent layer on the woodland floor soaks up the rain as it falls, then lets it seep out gradually.

The aim of forest management is to produce more wood of better quality in as short a time as possible. The majority of our woodlots could be much more useful and profitable if we encouraged fast growth by the following:

1. Thinning young stands to give proper spacing. This reduces competition and speeds up growth. A natural thinning would eventually take place by survival of the fittest, but by aiding nature, returns will be realized much quicker.

2. Leaving fast-growing trees to grow instead of cutting them prematurely. A tree between three and eight inches diameter, breast height is like a person in his teens, and the growth rate is the highest during this period.

3. Cutting mature, diseased, dead and dying trees creates small openings which will regenerate with valuable commercial trees, instead of weeds and bushes, which would ordinarily occur if the stand were clear-cut.

4. Plan your cutting, so as to favor trees that are disease resistant, and that are suited to that particular type of soil.

The maximum cannot be obtained from a woodlot by fast growth alone we must have quality as well. First, the owner should know the most valuable kind of trees. He should cut wisely, so that these trees are given the best chance to grow and propagate. Secondly, the trees that are left should be of good shape or form. A good straight tree with an even taper is much more valuable than a crooked, forked or branchy tree. Third, only sound trees should remain in the woodlot. If rotten or defective trees are left, not only will their infection spread to healthy trees but the wood from them will not produce high quality products. Fourth, the larger the tree the greater the value provided it is sound. Not only does the sale of clear logs bring higher prices than smaller knotty ones, but the work involved in cutting and limbing trees of small diameter is twice as great as the work involved in cutting and limbing trees twice the diameter. If a woodlot is managed properly on a sustained yield basis, mature trees can be cut year after year, and yet there will be as much or more wood on the woodlot as there was at the start. Sustained yield means that the loss of wood through cutting and decay in one year should balance the growth put on in that year. Old trees should be used and the young trees left and protected until they grow up. The woodlot should be integrated with the farm enterprise and treated as a crop, if it is going to serve its owner to the fullest extent.

Battle of Britain Sunday, the day commemorating the Royal Canadian Air Force personnel who died in the defense of the United Kingdom during World War II, will this year be celebrated on Sunday, September 18th at the R. C. A. F. Stations in Canada and abroad. The serving personnel of Canada's Air Force will remember their dead comrades who lost their lives during the titanic struggle in the skies over the United Kingdom in the autumn months of 1940. Many were the heroes who emerged from that maelstorm of fury and fire. Many were they who fought and died unsung.

On Sunday September 18th R.C. A.F. Station Summerside will remember them all with special church services; a parade in downtown Summerside and the laying of wreaths at the Cenotaph in Memorial Park. The parade, comprising flights from Station Summerside, a flight from the Summerside Air Cadet Squadron and the Station Summerside Band will form up at 12.00 noon on Notre Dame Street between Summer and Central Streets. The parade will move off at 12.30, proceeding to Memorial Park via Notre Dame and Summer Streets where they will form a hollow square in order to receive the official party at 12.40

Included in the official party will be G-C. W.H. Swetman, Mr. J. Watson MacNaught, M.P., His Worship Mayor Henry W. Wedge, Mr. T. Earle Hickey, Mr. Lorne Monkley and Lieut. R. Boates.

Following an introduction by G-C Swetman and an address by Mr. MacNaught, wreaths will be laid by members of the official party. At this time four F-86 Sabre Jets from R.C.A.F. Station Chatham will make two fly pasts over the Cenotaph. The rifle party will fire blank Volleys, the Last Post will be sounded from Station Summerside Band and the two minutes silence will be observed. The parade will march south on Spring Street to Water, west on Water Street to Central and north on Central Street past the reviewing stand. S.

Allen-Hughes Wedding At Summerfield

The beautiful St. James Church, Summerfield was the setting for a delightful wedding on the morning of August 25th when the Rev. John Cash, assistant pastor at Vernon River, performed his first Nuptial Mass for his cousin Margaret Lorraine Hughes when she became the bride of James Wilfred Arnold Allen. Lorraine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hughes, Norboro, has been for the past four years a popular member of the teaching staff of Kensington School; Arnold, son of Mr. James Allen and the late Mrs. Allen, Emerald, is employed with the Canadian Broadcasting Company at Ottawa. Marie Hughes attended her sister as maid of honor, brides maids were Mrs. John Gaudet, Greenwood, N.S., and Mrs. Gerard Allen, Emerald, sister and sister-in-law of the groom. Gerard Allen attended his brother, and ushers were, John Gaudet and Austin Curley.

Mrs. Thomas Turner played the wedding marches and accompanied the Misses Helen, Aline and Doreen Reid, Hope River, who sang: "On This Day Oh Beautiful Mother", "Panis Angelicus," "O Lord I Am Not Worthy", "Sweet Sacrament Divine", and "Mother At Your Feet Is Kneeling."

The bride wore a wide skirted floor length gown of white organdy over ivory taffeta, with hip length shirred bodice, and tiny bolero jacket, the jacket collared in tulle, and fastened with tiny white flowers, the same flowers appliqued to the skirt were threaded with gold to match her sandals of white satin and gold kid, a cap of organdy and flowers held her full circle veil of sheerest illusion, she carried a mother of pearl prayer book with two white gardenias and a crystal rosary, gift of the groom.

The maid of honor wore floor length white organdy over rose taffeta, with rose sash, and coronet; the bridesmaid wore matching gowns of white organdy over blue taffeta, with blue sashes and coronets, all three carried fans of rose and blue sweet peas. Mrs. Hughes chose a suit of autumn grey-blue, with beige accessories and kolinsky furs, her corsage was pink carnations.

Ninety guests were entertained at the wedding breakfast served at Shining Waters Lodge, Cavendish. Father Cash was master of ceremonies, and Rev. Eugene Murray, proposed the toast to the bride, expressing his appreciation of the help Lorraine had so willing given through the years to the work of Summerfield Church, and of his regret at losing so able a helper in his work with the younger member of his congregation. The groom responded to the toast in a charming speech: other speakers were the bride's father, George Hughes, her grandfather, Mr. Harry Hughes, Charlottetown; Mr. Allen, father of the groom; and Mr. J. Weeks Murphy, principal of Kensington school.

In the evening the guests were entertained at supper at the spacious and hospitable home of the bride, music and dancing were enjoyed and a large number of well wishers gathered to serenade the popular couple. The honeymoon was spent on P. E. I. and a week later they left to take up residence at 51 Warren Avenue, Ottawa. The bride will be on the staff of the Separate Schools of Ottawa as permanent supply teacher. The quantities of valuable gifts received attest to the popularity of these young people who join other Islanders abroad as they contribute to the progress of Canada in the wider fields and larger centres of other Provinces of the Dominion. All join in good wishes for the future.
