Campus parties "censored"

TORONTO (CUP) — Students accusing recent Trent University party organizers of trivializing date rape have been dismissed as politically correct "censors."

Two weeks ago, students at Trent's Lady Eaton College promoted their winterfest party by selling shirts that said "It's better beg forgiveness than to ask permission."

Last weekend, Catherine Parr Traill College named its weekend bash "Kamaneiwannaleiu" — intended to be pronounced "Come on I wanna lay you".

Student council and women's centre members criticized the t-shirts and party name for trivializing the issue of date rape.

Bowry recalled nearly all the t-shirts sold and re-screened them with a new slogan.

But later, he decided he'd been bullied into switching them.

"It goes one step beyond the issue of violence against women. It falls smack dab into the middle of a big issue this year, and that's political correctness," Bowry said. "It's a matter of freedom of speech."

Canada attracts foreign students

OTTAWA (CUP) — International student enrolment in Canada had a record annual increase last year, according to the Canadian Bureau for International Education.

The CBIE's national report found there were 87,000 foreign students in Canadian schools, colleges and universities in 1990-91 representing a growth of 21 per cent from the year before.

Mary Hofstetter, chair of CBIE's board of directors, attributes the increase to Canada's reputation as "a first-class place to study."

Although trade schools and community colleges had the largest increase, universities also saw an increase in the number of foreign students by 10 per cent since 1989-90.

According to the report, 58 per cent of foreign students in Canada are from Asian countries, with Hong Kong leading, followed by the Philippines and China. Most Chinese students are enrolled in graduate programs. The report also says the number of women studying in Canada continues to grow.
