Ellen's Diary

of this Winter, Jamie? we asked curiously at supper this evening. He considered a moment and then laughed merrily. "I'll remember your desserts — especially the bread puddings! We've come to know them pretty well by now!" "Well, eat up the crusts — if you don't like the puddings!" "But I do like them!" Jamie said. This dish high-lighted sometimes by a topping of ice cream, by apple or strawberry jam or often by an end of syrup which otherwise would go begging, was served frequently and acceptably with the idea of having the small fry receive the life-giving milk and eggs hidden in its depths. "Oh, Jamie considered the query "I'll remember the snow — and that morning we couldn't get through with the horse and I had to walk the last of the way to school. And, of course, mother being away, and going "in home" to see her... and coasting on the hill — and reading. Playing games with Mr. A... and the lambs coming — and calves and little pigs. And coming home from school with the other fellows. There's a lot of stuff to a Winter, when you come to think of it"... "I'd say we're in for a change of weather by the look of tonight's sky," Rob says.

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good-night... .

Modern Detergents and so called Soapless Soaps.

Broadly defined a detergent is any material which brings about the removal of undesirable substances, such as dirt and grease from a surface.

Results of Investigation of National Research Council.

(a) Soapless soaps or synthetic detergents are more effective when used with hard water than with soft water.

(b) There is a certain wastage with most ordinary soap-the harder the water the higher the wastage.

(c) Soap "Curdling", which occurs when soap is used with hard water is objectionable, because of its effect on textile fabrics, which pick up much of the "curd", formed and tend to become loaded with an ever increasing amount of this material. This may effect the serviceability of the fabric by causing its chemical deterioration or it may impair its proper performance in the use for which it was designed. For example towels which have become loaded with soap curds through repeated launderings in hard water, lose much of their water absorbency, and become quite harsh to touch.

(d) Where soft or softened water is used the detergent or cleansing preparation are better with ordinary soap than with "Soapless Soaps."

(e) Experience has shown that for the most part, soaps do a better job on cotton and detergents a better job on wool.

W.C.T.U. NOTES

18th W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

June 3rd - 10th, 1950, Hastings, England.

A formal call has gone to all Advisory Committee Members, National Presidents, Organizers and Superintendents of W.C.T.U. Departments.

Visitors may attend all sessions of the Convention; like the delegates, they will be required to pay a Registration Fee of ten shillings ($2.00), which entitles them to a badge, a programme, a seat in the reserved section of the hall throughout the sessions and complimentary admission to certain functions. (Collections will be taken at the Sunday services only).

HASTINGS

When some of the English officers went down early in June to look at hotels and halls, the sea looked very blue and the town was bathed in sunshine; from the railway station the ruins of the old Castle could be seen, telling of lords and battles long ago; but the people who strolled along the wide promenade seemed more interested in the present; the numerous and attractive little shops, the boats on the shore, the bandstand, the breezy Pier and the attractions of the elegant Pavilion, gave them plenty to talk about. Coach Tours are being planned to historic buildings and famous beauty spots.

HERE AND THERE WITH MRS. MACBETH

"Received a warm welcome from teachers and Sisters here, and from the women of a W. A. outlying points were contacted.

"When we were refused time in the schools the W. C. T. U. President booked all the Scot' groups and other youth groups she could.

We were welcomed in the suburban schools. One principal asked the pupils to return on Friday evening to the assembly hall and was present himself.

"Mrs. Hope and I spent a memorable day at Wolfe Island. We were driven to four Separate and two Protestant schools.

"We went at once to the Director of Public Schools, for arrangements had been made. He drew up a schedule for all the public schools and arranged for the screen to be taken to each school. Good co-operation and keen interest were shown in the Collegiate and Separate School.

"In London, 27 schools, 7 Sunday school, 4 youth meetings, 5 adult groups were visited."

How does your county arrange an itinerary for the Field Secretary?

Did your Union follow Mrs. MacBeth in the last year's itinerary as outlined in the Report Book? It is a wonderful story.

Miss Edna Grant, National Field Secretary, gave a most interesting talk on "The Protection of Home Happiness" and on "Positive Teaching of Alcohol Education."

FRANCES WILLARD DAY IN NOVA SCOTIA — TRURO

Meeting at the home of Mrs. Norman McInnis, with the President in charge, Miss A. J. Archibald led the devotional service with a searching talk on "The Friend at Midnight," and the need of persevering prayer.

Mrs. Ross Eaton gave a fine review of the life of Frances Willard in college she heard a chapel talk in which she was impressed by the words: "With most men life is a failure." In her diary she wrote the prayer: "O Thou who rulest above, help that my life may be valuable so that some human being shall yet thank Thee that I lived and toiled."

How abundantly that prayer was answered!

There are today W. C. T. U. Unions in every province in Canada, with some 10,000 members, and in 46
