

Ont. Seen Key To Action On Old Age Pension Boost

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities are currently thinking in terms of boosting old age pensions for the needy. How widely this may be applied will depend to a great extent on whether Ontario accepts the federal hospital insurance offer.

The Ontario legislature opens Jan. 28 and there is strong feeling in the quarters that Premier Frost will announce agreement to participate in the insurance scheme.

If this develops, it is almost certain Finance Minister Harris will lay aside some $200,000,000 in his next budget to cover possible full implementation of the insurance plan during the 1957-58 fiscal year.

SURPLUS NARROWED
Under such circumstances, it was felt that the amount of surplus funds available for boosting old age pensions will be narrowed sharply though there may be sufficient to aid those in financial distress.

Under the Old Age Assistance Act, the federal government shares with the provinces, on a 50-50 basis, the cost of providing a maximum pension of $40 a month to those in the 65-69 age bracket.

A universal pension of $40 a month, based on a pay-as-you-go federal tax contribution, is paid to all those 70 years and over without any financial means test. About 90,000 Canadians in the 65-69 group get the old age assistance. Federal costs total about $20,000,000 a year. To increase the monthly payment to, say, $50 with federal and provincial governments sharing the cost would require an extra annual federal outlay of about $5,400,000.

But among those getting the universal pension—70 years and over—about 40 per cent are considered to be in financial need. To boost pensions for these to $50 a month under a financial means test might require extra federal outlays of about $38,400,000 a year.

RESTRICTIONS LIKELY
Some officials suggest it may be difficult to set up new financial means test machinery for those 70 years and over. An easier method would be to increase the payment universally to, say, $50 a month. But this would boost the old age security bill by about $96,000,000 a year.

But would eat into the amount of revenues available for other government projects. There is doubt whether the government would agree to boosting old age pensions, and those for the disabled and the blind, by more than $100,000,000 a year and at the same time provide $200,000,000 annually for hospital insurance.

Ontario agrees to the insurance scheme and there appears certain that it can be launched, it is probable any increases in old age pensions would be restricted to the need.

Under the federal insurance scheme, the federal government has offered to pay half the cost of hospital care and diagnostic services if a majority of provinces representing a majority of the Canadian population agree to participate.

The plan is estimated to cost about $375,000,000 a year or more if all provinces join.

Japanese Cadets Have Graduated
TOKYO (Reuters) — The first class of 377 cadets soon will graduate from the Japanese Military Academy, ready to take their places as officers in Japan's post-war land, sea and air forces.

They have taken a four-year course, which in addition to military subjects included science, literature, the arts and languages.

Altogether, the academy has 1,724 students. Most of their 800 teachers and instructors were members of the former imperial armed forces.

Col. Kinji Kanugasa, the academy's superintendent, said the leaders of the Japanese self-defence forces are determined that future officers of the armed services shall all graduate from the same college.

He says that during the war intensive rivalry between the three services delayed combined operation plans for weeks and sometimes months.

Ladies' Auxiliary Of Canadian Legion Holds Annual Meeting

"Without the whole-hearted support of the membership, an organization could not enjoy the success of our Auxiliary," stated retiring president, Mrs. Lily M. Corrigan, in her annual report to the Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion at their annual meeting held in the Legion Home last night.

Outstanding among many donations to charitable purposes made by the Auxiliary during the year was the sum of $200 donated to The Retarded Children's Fund, and $100 to the Springhill Disaster Relief Fund.

At Christmas week the ladies of the Auxiliary served lunch to over 300 children and parents assembled for the annual Christmas party sponsored by the Canadian Legion.

Many other community activities were assisted by special committees of the organization, the president reported. These included the Borden Good Clinics and The Cancer Fund Drive.

The president reported a very successful Poppy Wreath Campaign in 1956, with nearly 500 new members being initiated into various phases of this work. Following the president's address, the conveners of the various committees submitted outlines of their activities during the past year.

One new member was initiated and welcomed into the Auxiliary. Plans were made to treat hospitalized veterans on Valentine's day.

glitter of lesser things. The pity of the failure is so much the more great because there is so much to disguise it. There are children in every community who because of the politeness and refinement of their surroundings will always reflect a certain measure of charm, who, well-dressed and well-mannered, may seem on the surface all that a child should be, yet in the centre of their souls, where the high consciousness of religion and duty should have dwelt, have only emptiness.

On the other hand, is there any other such supreme honour as belongs to those who do rightly discharge their responsibilities to train young souls in the strength of their accountability to God. It is a great thing if a man takes brick and stone, and bowing his imagination down before the infinite ideals of beauty, learns patiently to be the servant of these until he has wrought from his materials the architectural glory which centuries will wonder at. It is a great thing when a Michelangelo takes the marble and beneath its rough uncouthness sees the loveliness of the vision which his skillfulness will carve into the statue. But how much mightier a thing it is when men and women in the realized wonder of their parent-hood fashion from the imperishable stuff of the human soul the life that measures up to the statue of its full manhood in the sight of God!

The guest speaker was introduced by Mr. Frank Andrew and the vote of thanks to Mr. Somers was proposed by Rev. Marvel Dunbar.

Owing to the unavailability absence of the president, Mr. MacNutt, and the vice-president, Rev. J.H. Bishop, the immediate past president, Mr. Earl Lavars presided at this meeting.

There were the usual visits to the class rooms followed by a social period, during which refreshments were served.

Charlottetown United Baptist Church Annual Meeting Is Held
The annual business meeting of the Charlottetown Baptist Church was held Wednesday evening in the church auditorium. An encouraging number were present considering the inclemency of the weather. The meeting opened with a brief devotional conducted by the pastor, Rev. Harold L. Mitton, on the subject: "Six things that give church a soul."

The moderator, Mr. Harper MacNeil, presided over the business portion of the meeting. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the clerk, Mr. Stirling Inman, and adopted. The reports of the various committees were mimeographed in amalgamated form and every member present was presented with a copy prior to the commencement of the business session. This was a new innovation and greatly expedited the business part of the meeting.

Reports were heard and adopted from all church boards, Committees and organizations. An appreciation of the splendid services rendered by the pastor, Harold L. Mitton, during the past year was voiced by the meeting.

The church choir came in for special mention for their faithful attendance throughout the year and for the exceptionally splendid singing rendered by this talented group. The clerk was instructed to write the organist, Mrs. G. Elliot Full, expressing thanks for the excellent work done with the choir and music.

Vote of thanks was also tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Saunders for generous gift of $500.00 in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Jenkins. A suitable plaque was engraved in their memory. A portion of this gift, was used for the purchase of a 16 mm. film projector an item that the church hoped for and needed for years.

Meeting adjourned for two weeks at which time the planning committee report, having to do

Tells Of Home Economics Job For U.N. On Island Of Jamaica

Dr. Helen Abell, Rural Sociologist with the Federal Department of Agriculture, was guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward Island Home Economics Association, held at the Queen Charlotte High School Friday night. Dr. Abell gave the members a delightful talk, illustrated with slides, on her work as director-organizer of advanced classes in home economics education on the Island of Jamaica. This assignment was given Dr. Abell by UN's FAO. Her sociological training enabled her to understand the problems of the pioneer world to which she was sent, and gave her work promise of permanence.

The members of the Association were unanimous in their opinion that Dr. Abell had performed a valuable piece of work for the United Nations Organization, and had provided an inspiration to all interested in the welfare of the under-privileged. Dr. Abell was thanked very graciously by Mrs. R.M. Hurst.

The following slate of officers was brought in by the nominating committee and received the approval of the meeting: President, Mrs. Ralph Manning; Vice-President, Mrs. Allison MacLean; Secretary-Treasurer, Mother Francis Loyola.

DEFENDENT TESTIFIES
The accused, Stanley Dingwell, was the first witness called for the defense. He said that he saw Reid at the Central Creameries plant early in October about a dog that was to go to Summerside. Reid called to see him twice again about the dog when Dingwell was working at the Women's Institute building unloading milk for storage there.

Reid came there many times after this and on one of the first visits Earl Arsenault mentioned to the witness that Reid might buy some milk. The witness said that he never thought anything of the remark until later when he noticed that Reid's visits were quite frequent and then became suspicious of both Reid and Arsenault. He said that on the 17th when he saw the piles of milk not stacking as he thought they should, he made a check and found that the number of cases in the building fell short of what he had hauled out there. That night he went to the R.C.M.P. barracks and was later arrested at the West Royal cache earlier that day.

Vendettas Are Going Strong

ATHENS (AP) — An official count shows 128 families on the pride-ridden island of Crete are waging vendettas.

Nearly all began with a Romeo from one family making off with a Juliet from another.

The vendetta knows no limit of time or distance. One son of a family involved in a vendetta left the island for the sake of peace and settled on the Greek mainland.

Years later, a member of the opposing family tracked him down and killed him.

The vendetta is a strictly family affair, and outsiders are not apt to know they've been in a vendetta area.

Peter Mavromichalis, a former minister and landowner in the Mani area, recalls an election campaign. When news of his approach was received, warring families mingled together and played the gracious hosts. As soon as Mavromichalis had left the village, the shutters went up at windows and the feud was on again.

In the Mani area there is a dramatic method of ending a vendetta. It is for a woman to marry the man who killed her close relative.

RELIGION IN THE HOME SUBJECT OF HOME AND SCHOOL ADDRESS

At a meeting of the Prince Street Home and School Association on Thursday, January 17 a very appreciative audience listened with rapt attention while Rev. T.H.B. Somers, M.A. S.T.M. Minister of the Kirk of St. James, delivered a masterly address on the subject "Religion in The Home."

Mr. Somers built his address around the sentence "The Church in My House" and said that what happens to the country depends on what happens in your home and mine.

He felt that children were not taught religion but caught religion from the every-day atmosphere of the home and the way in which the mother and father members of their family.

Mr. Somers said "The Christmas Story contains a very significant statement." Mary kept all these things, and pondered them in her heart."

It is always possible for a man any woman to forget their accountability to God. The child is theirs and they rear it as though only the poor shallow impulses of their own uninspired minds had to be consulted; or they hold themselves subject to the foolish ideals which in ignominious forgetfulness of the soul's true greatness they worship. They pay their deferences to social convention, to the demands of fashion, to the supposed advantages of a frivolous popularity. This and that the child must do because the child wants to, because other children are doing it, because it is the road of least resistance. So the whole conduct of the child's life is a thing of shreds and patches, a poor, cheap product of chance and caprice, with no pattern of noble purpose weaving it into dignity, vagrant in its development because the high thought of its accountability to God is lost in the

NOTEBOOK

Some of the strongest, most unpredictable stains we get are made by those cold wave solutions used at home.

Still, the problem isn't as bad as it is in some places. A wag who was in the store the other day told us that "I guess those women political prisoners in Russia get treated to a brain wave."

Well, the problem isn't as bad as the joke, either.

But all the time we get clothes coming into the store on which wave solutions have caused bleaching, a change in color or strange purple spots.

The thing that makes a lot of women mad is that often the wave solution will make no spot at all. Then, the next time the dress is ironed—out comes a great big ugly spot.

This is called oxidation. The same thing happens when a spot is left uncleaned and the air gets a chance to work at it.

Surely the answer is to wear old clothes when giving yourself a wave at home. But this isn't going to always keep the pesky stuff off your clothes, so—

If the garment is washable, sponge out the solution with clean water and be sure it is all out before you iron.

With other garments, bring them in for dry cleaning right away. And be sure and tell us what the stain is. Tell us even if the stain is still invisible, that invisible bleach and acid in the solution is just as dangerous as if you could see it.
