ELLEN'S DIARY

Granddaughter Given A Treasure To Read

"Beside The Bonnie Brier Bush by Ian MacLaren" a young marion read around the title of the borrowed book we were bearing off home with us from a recent evening-excursion with James.

It is rather old, the copyright going back to 1894, but it was among the beloved books of our girlhood years.

HAPPENINGS

The death of the Hon. B.W. LePage, a former lieutenant-governor of Prince Edward Island, is mourned by a large group of relatives and friends throughout the province.

Mr. and Mrs. L.W. Shaw are leaving by plane on Thursday next to take up residence in Toronto, Ontario.

The executive of the Women's Institutes, who held a regular executive meeting Thursday at the headquarters of the W.I., enjoyed a luncheon party at the Queen Hotel.

These Are the Top Six of Canada's 25 Women Who Help Direct $335 Million is the heading of a story in the December Chatelaine.

Miss Claudette Callbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne C. Callbeck, who has been a patient in the Prince Edward Island Hospital, has returned home.

Mrs. Frank MacMillan and Mrs. Ian MacMillan were joint hostesses Tuesday evening at a dinner bridge held at the MacMillan residence, 312 Fitzroy Street.

Mrs. Ray Praught left Thursday morning for Ottawa where she will visit her son-in-law and daughter, Flying Officer and Mrs. J.A. Bradley and grandchildren.

The annual meeting of the New Annan Women's Institute took place at the home of Mrs. Robert Williams. The meeting opened with a prayer and followed by a report of the year's work.

The president gave a report of year's work and thanked one and all for their loyal support and good attendance. She then presented the secretary treasurer with a gift on behalf of the members in appreciation of her work during the past year.

The fact is that over 25 years ago I had an illegitimate child. She was put up for adoption and I haven't seen her to this day.

Dear Mary Haworth: I am an old maid, 45. I recently met a bachelor about my age. We are very much in love and want to be married.

From the first there would be a barrier to emotional unity—a wall of estrangement that your husband would sense, and probably misconstrue as coldness or "rejection" of him.

Since your child was long since absorbed into other lives, what remains to you is a memory of mistakes that haunts you as a problem of conscience.

Dear H.D.: To go into marriage with a conviction of being a wicked woman, hiding an unforfeitable secret, certainly isn't advisable.

ing your regret, as your assignment—not to be laid on the spirit of one who loves you.

The average man, no matter how tolerant or charitable, will be happier if spared this kind of knowledge. Even though he may love enough to forgive his fiancée or wife an episode of the sort, still he will be hurt, and helpless about it; and something of joy will be lost to him.

Remember, your fiancée loves the person you are. And you have become that person by developing the good that is in you; by living and learning, and making mistakes and outgrowing them.

However, I am not sure that "telling all" to your fiancée is the right remedy of your dread. Rather, I think the sound approach to peace of soul consists in talking things through with a bonafide spiritual director, a priest or clergyman who is sacramentally qualified to cope in repairing the ravages of remorse.

Since your child was long since absorbed into other lives, what remains to you is a memory of mistakes that haunts you as a problem of conscience.
