sailor suit as a boy; in an army uniform in France during the First World War; in a hunting outfit of the 1920s; and wearing a naval uniform during the Second World War. (CP Photo)

Mining Outlook In Nova Scotia Seen Optimistic

TRURO (CP) — Donald M. Smith, Nova Scotia mines minister, said here the outlook for the mining industry in the province in the coming year is "optimistic."

Mr. Smith, speaking at an organizational meeting of the mining sector of the voluntary economic planning program, said integration of mining into the program will further increase the value of the industry.

"We need to explore thoroughly every phase of industry from all points of view... identify the problems facing the industry fearlessly, and proceed without favoring the interest of any particular product or producer to the detriment of the industry as a whole."

Mr. Smith said in 1963 the mining industry was worth $67,000,000 to the provincial economy.

STRESSES SELF-HELP

Premier Stanfield told the opening session of the one-day meeting that all people in Nova Scotia must be encouraged to think of growth, and to find methods to help themselves.

Mr. Stanfield said the purpose of planning is to encourage economic growth.

The Truro meeting is the eighth in a series. Only two sectors of the economy—transportation and communications and the service industries—remain to be organized.
