At a farmers' meeting a poultry raiser said that from 35 to 46 eggs a year was the best average he had been able to get from a dozen hens.

Another poultry raiser had picked up 1,510 eggs from 10 hens of the white leg-horn variety from the 1st of last September to the first of July of the following year.

Coercing hens—A lady correspondent writing from Kansas relates the following extraordinary circumstance.

After breakfast I was surprised to see my landlady go out and catching her hens, tie each one's legs together and throw them to the ground with "there, be good."

"To make em' lay," she answered. "Make em' lay," will that do it? "enquire-d," "La yes," she said, "didnt you'er hear'n yell of that before."

"I confess that I had n't. In an hour she went out again and picked up the hens. Sure enough some of them had laid, those she let go, and they ran off to their even cackling their gratitude.

But those hens which seem disposed to be contrary, she struck on the back, saying: "You'd better lay for you won't go out until you do," and in a little while they too had recompensed their mistress for feeding them so bountifully.

She says she does so every morning, and the hens know well enough that "they have got to lay."

That which a man sees or hears may drop away from him as easily as it dropped upon him; but that which he has learned to know, the ideas he has cherished, the truths he has assimilated, the principles he has espoused, the theories he has worked out and tested—these may be truthfully called his very own.

Hood's Pills act especially upon the liver, rousing it from torpidity to its natural duties, cure constipation and assist digestion.

It is not what we eat but what we eat that makes us rich. It is not what we eat, but what we digest, that makes us strong. It is not what we read, but what we remember, that makes us wise. It is not what we intend, but what we do, that makes us useful.
