

Teachers Federation Names New Secretary-Treasurer

At meetings of the Canadian Teachers' Federation board of directors which terminated on Saturday, Gerald Nason of Ottawa was chosen from 55 Canadian applicants to fill the position of secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Teachers' Federation.

Mr. Nason who has been acting secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Teachers' Federation since the death of Dr. George Crowsky in October, is well known in educational circles in Canada. In the interests of Canadian teachers he has worked with the federal government and the provincial governments, as well as with teachers' organizations in this country and other countries of the world. He first became associated with the Canadian Teachers' Federation in 1957 when he was invited to become assistant to the director of the Canadian Conference on Education, and the following year was offered the position of CTF assistant secretary. In 1959 Mr. Nason accepted the newly-created post of CTF deputy secretary-treasurer, the position he held at the time of Dr. Crowsky's death.

Born in Winnipeg, Man., Mr. Nason received his Bachelor of Arts from Carleton University, and after obtaining his Bachelor of Education degree from the University of Toronto completed a year's study on a research assistant fellowship offered by the Ontario College of Education. He received his Master of Education from the University of Toronto, and is now working on his doctoral dissertation.

Mr. Nason's teaching experience was in Ontario schools where from a beginning as principal of a three-room rural school he served as assistant principal and vice-principal in the Etobicoke schools. During these years he was extremely active on teachers' committees.

The new secretary-treasurer is a member of the Canadian College of Teachers, and a member of Phi Delta Kappa professional education fraternity. A talented musician, he has played several years with the Ottawa Philharmonic Orchestra.

2 Drivers Fined, Third Sentenced

Pleading guilty to charges of driving while their abilities were impaired by alcohol, two persons were each fined $100 and costs or 10 days in jail, by Magistrate James B. Johnston, Q.C., in Queens County magistrate's court Monday.

The two accused were Antoine Arsenault, Egmont Bay, counselled by Lester O'Donnell, and James Alexander Essery, Charlottetown, counselled by John P. Nicholson.

JAIL TERM GIVEN

Following his pleading guilty to driving while intoxicated, Vernon Francis Donnelly, Charlottetown, who was not represented by counsel, was sentenced to seven days in Queens County jail.

Appearing on two charges, Louis Francis Hynes, Greenfield, was fined $10 and costs for permitting an unlicensed person to drive a motor vehicle, and on the second, of possession of intoxicating liquor in a place other than residence, an adjournment until Feb. 5 was given.

Men's Ass'n Shown Slides

Showing colored slides and providing a running commentary, Ira Lewis spoke to the members of the Marshfield, Harrington, and Mount Stewart Presbyterian Men's Association Thursday evening, on his recent trip to Europe.

The guest speaker was thanked by David Seaman and Cecil Stetson.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Talmage Foster and the scripture lesson was read by Robert Roberts, Harrington. A project committee was appointed and was made up of Earl Foster, Charles Phillips and Louis Cameron. It was decided that the members from Harrington be responsible for the program for the February meeting.

Red Farm Heads May Be Topped

LONDON (AP) — Pravda has hinted that many agricultural leaders will be toppled by the Communist party in its coming review of the crisis on Soviet farms.

The party newspaper, in an editorial broadcast by Moscow radio, said "Improvement of agricultural leadership" will be a crucial issue at the special party central committee meeting scheduled for March 5.

The meeting was called to discuss farm failures that have resulted in widespread shortages of meat and other foods in Russia.

Former Lucky Dragon Crew Still Haunted By Terror

By KENNETH ISHII TOKYO (AP) — Matsubuchi Oishi lives in anonymity and fear.

Oishi owns a small laundry and dry-cleaning business in a Tokyo suburb. There is nothing about his appearance or his outward manner to set him apart. He is of medium height, he wears glasses and he is lean as most Japanese. Married three years and the father of a 11-month-old daughter, Oishi at 28 is strictly average—and likeable.

His neighbors think so, too, as they see him busily putting to bed and from his shop. But Oishi is obsessed with what to him is a horrifying thought:

Some day his neighbors may find out that he was a crew member of the ill-fated fishing boat Lucky Dragon that was showered with radioactive dust from the U.S. thermonuclear test at Bikini in 1954.

Oishi is terribly afraid that if this happens he will be ostracized, looked upon as abnormal, a man to be pitied, the potential communicator of some horrible disease.

Oishi is not alone in this fear. Several of the Lucky Dragon's crew — no one knows exactly how many—have buried themselves in anonymity for the same reasons. Some changed their names because employers refused them jobs.

BLINDING FLARE

There were 23 men aboard the Lucky Dragon on that 1954 voyage southward to the tuna grounds of the central Pacific. Tuna was scarce, so scarce that the captain decided to head farther south into the Marshall Islands. And there, on March 1, the serenity of the night was shattered by a blinding, orange-red flare on the horizon.

Oishi, who was in charge of putting the tuna into cold storage below deck, recalls:

"Several hours later, white ashes descended on us. (The Lucky Dragon at the time was less than 100 miles from Bikini where the H-bomb was exploded.) We were puzzled at first and then scared. The ash covered our boat and our bodies.

"I guess I was lucky because my job was below deck, which exposed me less."

But as the Lucky Dragon headed home, the crew members began suffering from a peculiar loss of appetite, a confusing listlessness. Some experienced a strange yellow discharge from their eyes. Others found their badly-burned skin breaking out in sores. Most frightening, hair began falling from their heads in large chunks.

ANGER AT U.S.

The national uproar that followed their return, and the crisis in U.S.-Japanese relations set off, were the greater cause of Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The aftermath of the atom bombs had imprinted in Japanese minds an overwhelming fear of radiation sickness, and Japanese, anxiously hovering over the Lucky Dragon's victims during their long convalescence, wondered what would happen to them.

Would they die of leukemia or some other disease? Would their offspring be abnormal?

When one of the men, Akichi Kuboyama, died six months later, it was the clincher for many—notwithstanding some doubt as to whether radiation had been the immediate cause of death.

The remaining 22 crew members were discharged from hospital after a year, and were given compensation money by the United States. Japanese doctors pronounced them well but cautioned them against hard work.

Of the 22, one has not been heard of since he left home in 1956—suffering from a nervous breakdown. Five have returned to fishing. The rest have turned to other jobs.

Seventeen have married since the Bikini blast and have 12 children among them. Doctors who treated victims say they have heard of no abnormal births.

Oishi, who was married in 1959, has a normal 11-month-old daughter.

Oishi at first had been reluctant to be interviewed at all. "Some newsreel people once came to my shop to take pictures," he said, "but I sent them away. The neighbors wanted to know what it was about, but I couldn't tell them. If they knew, they would think me abnormal. It would be bad for business."

Oishi says that he feels well physically, except that he perhaps tires easily.

But he telephoned this writer shortly after the interview to make an admission.

After fumbling a while for words, he said:

"There is something I didn't tell you. But having talked to you the way I did, I think you should know. Yoshiko is not our first child. Our first was born a year after we were married. It was born deformed and dead."

Greek Archbishop Is Seriously Ill

ATHENS (AP) — Iakovos, 68, former archbishop of Athens and Orthodox Primate of all Greece, is seriously ill, a Holy Synod spokesman said.

"The archbishop's blood pressure is exceedingly high and he has suffered a slight heart attack with a partial paralysis of the left leg. He is in a semi-coma and eating little," added the spokesman.

Iakovos, who held Greece's highest church post for only 12 days after being elected Jan. 13, resigned under Greek government pressure last Thursday.

After ascending the Archbishop's throne, charges were filed against him by a Greek Orthodox archmandrite—one step below a bishop—a Greek army general and an admiral. The nature of the charges never was disclosed.

PROPOSE INTERPRETERS

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP) The Saskatchewan Trappers Association proposed Monday that the provincial government appoint interpreters for Indians appearing in law courts in Saskatchewan. Delegates at the group's 13th annual convention, said many Indians plead guilty because they do not understand the law.

Christ Church, Cherry Valley Elects Officers At Meeting

Lloyd Ings and Edward Carrier were elected wardens of Christ Church at Cherry Valley at the annual meeting of the congregation. The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ings.

Rev. A.E. Piercey presided and opened the meeting with prayers. Various reports were read and approved, including the treasurer's and Women's Auxiliary by Mrs. Theodore Crane.

Other officers elected in addition to the wardens are: vestry board, Earl Ings, Mrs. J. T. Payne, Sterling Ings, Gordon Crane, Maurice Ings, John Macmillan, Earl Crane, Elmer Ings, Theodore Crane and Duncan Irving.

Earl Crane and Walter Crane are the auditors and Lloyd Ings is treasurer.

Mrs. J.T. Payne was appointed diocesan synod representative, and Duncan Irving is the alternate. Representatives to the Diocesan Church Society are Earl and Sterling Ings.

The property committee of Edward Carrier, Earl Ings, Sterling Ings, Walter Crane and Gordon Crane was given authority to see that needed repairs were made to church and grounds.

It was decided to have the church entered in the Rural Beautification Society's annual competition.

Mrs. Sterling Ings was appointed vestry clerk.

Votes of thanks were extended to Miss Janet Ings for serving as organist, and to Francis and Earl Crane for their care of the church grounds.

The Women's Auxiliary served refreshments.

Agreement Made With Tshombe

ELISABETHVILLE (Reuters) Jose Rolz Bennett of Guatemala, the new United Nations chief representative in Katanga agreed in principle with Katanga president Moise Tshombe to establish an informal joint UN-Katanga military committee.

Rolz-Bennett told reporters the committee's job will be "to review problems of security in Katanga's capital Elisabethville, reduce tension and establish working relationships."

Rolz-Bennett formally took over his new post Monday from Brian Urquhart of Britain. Meanwhile, Gen. Sean McKeown, retiring Irish commander-in-chief of UN forces in the Congo, left by air after a three-day farewell visit.

TWIST BANNED AT SCHOOL

TORONTO (CP) — The girls of St. Mildred's College and their boy friends in Saturday night for a formal dance that was twistless by order of the principal.

"I think it's extremely vulgar and ordered it banned," said Sister Juliana, principal of the Anglican school of the current dance craze.

RARE COINS

Among the most rare Canadian coins are the $10 and $20 gold pieces struck at New Westminster, B.C., in 1868.

Is this the right word for your doormat?

If your house is looking its age — or older — you may find it hard to be enthusiastic about welcoming guests into your home.

Best way to fix it — so you will really want to take your turn entertaining the bridge club or social group — is to have your house put shipshape by means of a low-cost Home Improvement Loan from the B of M.

Home Improvement Loans at the B of M cover just about all kinds of home repairs and improvements — and that goes for flats and multiple dwellings, too, whether you live in them or not!

NOW'S THE TIME to become happily house-proud once more. It's the slack season for many trades, so, with a loan from the B of M, you'll get the job done when you want it, how you want it and at a price you can afford to pay. Why not talk it over with the people at your neighbourhood branch of "MY BANK" right away?
