HASZARD'S GAZETTE.

Saturday, September 9, 1854.

HAS Mooney been sworn in as Keeper of Plans and Registrar of Deeds? is a question which, if we have been asked once, has been reiterated a dozen times, and always with the remark "that if so, it was a pity." In fact, so much has been said, and so much predicted about Robert Mooney's firmness and consistency in the cause of the people, of his determination to accept neither place nor office that would fetter him in the least, or prevent his giving an independent vote on all questions that might arise, that his defalcation, his apostacy, or his desertion of the cause of the oppressed tenantry—for his taking place has been thus designated—has become a matter of public concern, accompanied, as we have said, by a sort of universal commiseration for his fall and degradation. When George Coles quitted the high vantage ground which he so long had held, when he became a placeman and office-hunter, some might have lamented his departure from what they considered a point of principle, but all anticipated that such would sooner or later be the case; and, that hitherto, it had not been inclination that was wanting, but opportunity. Coles, therefore, making a grasp at the emolument of office, was a thing foreseen and calculated upon. But Mooney, he who has so often and so publicly stated that he was no office-hunter; that, though he was called a Snatcher, yet, had snatched nothing; was the independent member of Flinty Glen; who, like the rest of the people, earned a hard living by the labor of his hard hands, softened only by the sweat of his brow—for Mooney to be seduced, first taking the title of Hon., and then, as if sensible that from thenceforth, all his hitherto boasted independence was at an end; that he had quitted his self-assumed station as head of the peasantry, for the extreme tail of a bastard aristocracy, and that all respect for him was at an end, for him to do this thng! "Oh! what a fall was there my Countrymen!" But whether the Hon. Robert Mooney be, or be not the Registrar of Deeds and Keeper of Plans, is a matter of little or no moment, as far as consistency and independence goes. He has accepted a seat at the Council Board. He is one of the Administration. No longer a free man, but a slave to the worst of slavery. Where will be thy gibes and thy jests now? The Honorable Mr. Mooney must respect his order. A Privy Councillor jest? Monstrous! You may attempt it Mooney, but do not dare to look to the Ministerial side of the House. No answering smile will catch your glance, but Coles's portentous brow will frown severe, and Warburton, with astonished gaze, will wonder at your plebian impudence. Nay, we should not wonder if Whelan, with turned-up nose, pronounces you decidedly vulgar. But what will this be to the silent scorn; the not visible perhaps, yet not the less palpable contempt that must await you from all of both sides who have hitherto felt a respect for your strenuous though mistaken efforts on the part of the Tenantry. The pittance that will remain to you after having satisfied the deputy whom you must perforce employ, and in whom you must unreservedly confide, for alas, you are neither able to perform the duties of the office, nor even to judge whether he is faithful to his trust, will be small indeed. It may enable you to sport a dress suit at Government House, but that is as much as it would do. You have sold your independence, and for what?

Since writing the above, not only is Mooney, we learn, sworn in as Registrar of Deeds and Keeper of Plans, but Swabey also, as Commissioner of Crowu Lands. What Crown Lands? 4,500 acres or thereabouts, obtained for the express purpose we suppose, of the Hon. T H. Haviland, for the purchase of the Worrell Estate is not yet concluded. £300 per annum for the management and disposal of 4,500 acres of land! But of the conduct of the Administration as respects both of these offices, we shall say more in our next.

TEMPERANCE.

The monthly meeting of the members of the temperance society, Lot 49, was held on Monday the 4th of September at the Pownal meeting house. Mr. Arbuckle the temperance Lecturer, delivered a very useful and interesting lecture to a considerable number of the inhabitants of 49 who were present on the occasion. Various useful subjects relative to the temperance cause were discussed by Mr. Arbuckle. Petitions for the prohibition by law of the liquor traffic were handed over to parties who were disposed to obtain signatures in their respective localities; and of those that attended the meeting a number signed the petition. It was proposed by Mr. Arbuckle that a course of monthly lectures should be delivered in this neighbourhood during the ensuing winter by persons from town who take a prominent interest in the temperance movemement; not merely upon subjects immediately connected with total abstinence; but that other useful subjects also tending to moral culture would be introduced. The remarks made by Mr. Arbuckle on the occasion; some of which were of a grave nature; some amusing; and many very striking; but all useful, and calculated to leave behind a lasting impression in favour of temperance; were listened to with marked interest and attention.

After the lecture was over the Rev. Mr. Stewart of 49 having been present made a few appropriate remarks upon the various subjects that had been discussed; a vote of thanks was then passed to the Lecturer for his kind services; after which the meeting adjourned.

We think that the agency of Mr. Arbuckle as a temperance lecturer; is calculated to do an immense deal of good; in favour of total abstinence. He appears to be complete master of the subjects which he advocates. His very humble and candid confessions with regret for his own past folly. His deep conviction from experience of the immense amount of evil occasioned by the use of intoxicating drinks—the unquestionable and lasting proofs he has given of reformation which of itself is a thing much to be lauded;—together with his eminent natural abilities as a public speaker;—render him a very efficient person for removing the very strong barriers to total abstinence which unhappily continue to exist; and upon the whole render him a very fit person to carry out the designs of the society with which he is connected and who have made choice of him to advocate in distant settlements a cause in which they all take so deep an interest.

We wish Mr. Arbuckle every success in the good work in which he is engaged; and we sincerely hope there will not be wanting in the various localities he may visit in his travels through the Island; persons that will be ready to second and carry out any useful scheme he may recommend in behalf of temperance, and we also hope before many seasons have passed over us; through the instrumentality of the friends of total abstinence that, the accomplishment of that which has already been so nearly carried into effect even the prohibition by law of all liquor traffic; will from the large majority of our inhabitants in favour of it receive the mutual assent of council and Assembly.

☞ The Rev. Henry Crawford who arrived from Nova Scotia in the last Steamer will preach (D. V.) in Princetown, on the 2d and 3d Sabbaths of September. And the Rev. James Waddell will preach (D. V.) in the Church at East St. Peters, on the 3d Sabbath of September at 11 o'clock, and at 6 in the evening at Mount Stewart Bridge.

Our informant respecting the progress of the Shediac Railway misunderstood the matter, when he gave us to understand that the cars were running by steam. The line has been completed to the distance of two miles, and the cars are running this distance, but instead of a loco-motive, horse power is employed on the track.—New Brunswicker.

Holloway's Pills, a most Effectual Cure for Dropsy.—Extract of a letter from Edward Rowley, Esq., of the Indian Walk, Tobago, dated April 8th, 1853. "To Professor Holloway.—Sir —I deem it a duty I owe to you and the public at large, to inform you of a most miraculous recovery from that dreadful disease, dropsy, and which, under God, was effected by the use of your Pills. I was tapped five times in the course of eight months, and skilfully treated by two medical practitioners unsuccessfully, notwithstanding which, in six months your Pills perfectly cured me."
