Ton Capsule Is Recovered

By VERN HAUGLAND
 CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A one-ton space capsule balized hundreds of miles across the Atlantic Wednesday and was recovered northeast of Antigua eight hours later.

Scientists aboard the destroyer Strong which fished the simulated space craft out of the water, reported it in excellent condition. This indicated that the test

STEEP RE-ENTRY

Gilruth added although the capsule's re-entry in the earth's atmosphere was somewhat steeper than planned, it was a "very rigorous re-entry, experiencing high heat loads and high rates of deceleration," and would produce a great deal of useful information.

Furthermore, Gilruth said, it turned out to be an excellent test of the recovery operation because the capsule landed several hundred miles from the planned point of impact and far from most of the recovery facilities. The capsule, a cone six feet wide at its base and 9 1/2 feet long, tapering to a 20-inch diameter at the nose, was launched by a Big Joe Atlas rocket.

EXTRA LOAD

In Wednesday's firing, for the first time in any Atlas launching, the 10-foot long skirt section containing two booster engines failed to separate and fall away.
