TRAIN "SPEEDING" AT 25 MILES AN HOUR LEAVES FORT GEORGE MAN "SPEECH-LESS"
COCHRANE, Ont., July 29—Among things William Spencer, 35, saw for the first time when he came to Cochrane from Fort George this week were a dentist's chair, talking pictures, hot and cold water taps and buildings of more than two storeys. Fort George is on the eastern shore of James Bay, 200 miles north of Moose Factory.
Spencer, an employee of the Hudson Bay Company, left Fort George on a Hudson Bay steamboat. At Moosonee he boarded a mixed train, which amazed him with its "speed" of 25 miles an hour. It brought him to Cochrane. Spencer was born at East Main, 75 miles northeast of Rupert's House, and spent his entire life in the North. He is married and is the father of eight children—all boys.

French-Speaking Parties To Bermuda And Jamaica

Following the success of the last organized party of French-speaking citizens sailing from Montreal and Quebec to Bermuda, the Bahama Islands and Jamaica, the Canadian National Steamships will again conduct a similar group of travellers to these islands on an interesting route, according to Victor E. Eke, Passenger Traffic Manager of the Company.

This cruise in October will provide an excellent opportunity for French residents of Canada and the United States to meet their faithful associates, sharing together compatriots under the most desirable of a sail down the inland waters of the scenic mighty St. Lawrence River in its autumn splendor, combined with an ocean cruise to southern seas whose islands present another scene, this of tropical loveliness foreign to the North. It is anticipated that many French-speaking people will get together and form a party of their own from among their friends for either the Bermuda or the Jamaica States taking this cruise have the advantage of being able to embark and disembark at the port of Quebec and spend as long as they wish exploring this ancient and historic city, sometimes described as "more French than France itself."

Sailing from Montreal on Wednesday, October 14, and from Quebec on Thursday, October 15, a specially organized party of French-speaking people will embark on the Lady Somers for an 11 day cruise to Bermuda, or continue the voyage by a 25 day round-trip cruise to the Bahama Islands and Jamaica.

Those passengers choosing Bermuda as their objective will have two days in port for exploring this coral island which is full of interest and during which sight-seeing excursions may be purchased at nominal cost, including a trip on the Bermuda Railway to the ancient city of St. George founded in 1612, visiting en route the marvellous crystal caves and also the world-famous aquarium, in addition to many other sights for which the island is noted.

Passengers continuing to the southern terminus will have a day and night at Nassau, capital of the Bahamas, and here the Sea Gardens, with their wonderful flora and fauna, may be viewed through glass-bottomed boats and a trip taken to Paradise Beach, in addition to which are many other fascinating places. And then on to Kingston, Jamaica, for 2 1/2 days on the island, where may be seen ancient Spanish Town, Hope Botanical Gardens, immense sugar and banana plantations and innumerable other attractive sights of a variety to delight every visitor.

New Married Couple Welcomed

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred MacDonald (nee Bertha Cameron) at Sherbrooke was the scene of a happy gathering recently when friends and neighbours gathered to welcome the new bride to the community. Mr. Preston Chappell was chairman and read the following address:

Dear Friends,—It was with great pleasure that we learned that one of our most popular young men had chosen a life partner. Your many friends gathered here tonight hasten to congratulate you and extend a hearty welcome to you, Mrs. MacDonald, on taking up residence in this community. We recall Mr. MacDonald, your ever ready assistance at our social gatherings and we hope you will still find time as in the past to help with every good cause. We feel confident that with Mrs. MacDonald's affectionate help and interest you will succeed in all your undertakings. We ask you to accept this purse with which we hope you will purchase something as a remembrance of your many friends and we assure you we wish you both many years of happiness.

Mr. James (Jimmie) Chappell then made the presentation of a well-filled purse.

Mr. MacDonald acknowledged the gift and on behalf of himself and Mrs. MacDonald thanked their friends for their kindness and practical expression of goodwill. His remarks were fully endorsed by his better half.

The guests were then delightfully entertained by vocal music by Mr. T. W. Bentley and Mr. Garnett Profit. Instrumental music was furnished by Mr. Profit on the harp and Mr. Allie MacNeill on the violin. Mr. Bert Brown also added to the program a pleasing number in finger whistling. After a dainty lunch by the ladies, everybody joined in singing "God Save the King."—S.

Wellington Centre School Closing

At the closing exercises of Wellington Centre School a large number of parents and visitors were present.

The pupils were carefully examined in various subjects by their teacher, Miss Doris McKeen, assisted by Mrs. Emmett McNeill, Mrs. John E. Cameron, Mrs. Babulene Cameron all of whom were former teachers of Wellington Centre School, also Mr. Leonard Ayres and Mr. Donald McLeod both of whom are graduates of St. Dunstan's University and Prince of Wales College respectively. The ready answers of the pupils testified to the ability and careful management of the teacher.

After a well prepared program and the distribution of prizes the teacher was very kindly remembered by the pupils with a complimentary address read by Pearl Ayres and a presentation by Hilda Cameron.

The visitors and children were then treated to ice cream and cake. The afternoon was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

The address read to the teacher is as follows:

Dear Teacher,—It is with the greatest pleasure that we gather today for the final examination of the year.

For the past school term of 1935-36 you have been our fond and loving teacher and during that time we have been witness of your remarkable qualities in the art of teaching. We as pupils have been impressed by your patience, perseverance and ability. You have faithfully endeavored to impart to us the rudiments of knowledge and we on our part have not co-operated with your efforts as best as we might because we do not quite realize as yet the advantages which your teaching can give us.

In consequence of this and as a mark of the esteem in which we hold you, we ask you to please accept from us this gift as a tribute of our gratitude towards you. We sincerely hope that you will be back with us again next year and in conclusion wish you a happy and restful vacation.

—Pupils of Wellington Centre School.

8-year-old Boy Saved From Drowning

Master Jimmy, little eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Moffat McLean of Summerside, was saved from drowning on Tuesday night by Mr. Tony Arsenault, when the little chap fell in the electric light pond. The little fellow was sailing a toy boat on the pond shortly after eight o'clock when the boat got out of his reach. Jimmy reached over the edge of the bank to get the boat and fell in. The children playing with him cried out for help.

Frank MacEwen, a young man who was passing at the time, ran to the edge of the water and tried to reach the boy, but he was too far out. Young MacEwen is quite lame and was not able to jump in after the boy. And he went after Mr. Tony Arsenault at the electric light station who came out immediately. The little fellow was about ten feet from the bank and some distance under water when Mr. Arsenault got there. As he came to the surface for the third time he came in nearer the bank and Mr. Arsenault who was preparing to jump in after him, reached out, caught his hand and brought him to safety.

The little fellow was almost gone, but after some water was got out of his lungs he came to and was taken home. His mother was quite relieved and very grateful to Mr. Arsenault and Mr. MacEwen for their very timely assistance. The little chap is none the worse for his adventure today. S.

Atlantic Test Flights Unlikely

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)
OTTAWA, July 29—Test flights on the North Atlantic air route between Great Britain, Newfoundland and Canada probably will not be made this year, it was learned today. Rearmament was said to be one factor causing delay.

A sub-imperial conference here last December decided trial flights should be flown in April on a route between Canada and England. A large airport and seaplane harbor is under construction at Gander Lake, Nfld., in anticipation of a trans-Atlantic service.

Imperial Airways ordered a number of "composite" flying boats, giant, four-engine machines carrying smaller and faster seaplanes designed to be launched in the air with heavy loads of mail. One of these machines has been test-flown. It is reputed to have a cruising speed of about 200 miles an hour.

Meanwhile start of the trial flights was delayed until August. It is said now the flights are unlikely to take place this year, because some of the new machines are needed elsewhere on the Imperial Airways lines and the rest probably will not be finished in time.

Production of civil aircraft is said to be behind schedule in Britain as work is being rushed to rearm the nation in accordance with the new government policy of building up its defenses.

The sub-imperial conference decided the northern route should be flown in the summer, and a southern one, Great Britain to Bermuda, to New York, in the winter. No information is available here as to when the southern route will be flown. The seaplane harbor at Bermuda has not been finished yet, although it is understood Pan American Airways will start a New York-Bermuda service within a few weeks.

Guilty Conscience

A mother wants to know what to do about a little boy who "neary goes wild" when he breaks anything, no matter how she tries to soothe and comfort him and tell him it's all right.

He is three, and his sister is five. Sister is not sensitive and regards any damage she has done with a calloused eye.

It seems that she has "tried everything" and has met with no success.

Ted, let us call the little three-year-old, must be an unusual pattern for a child his age. It isn't often we hear of a youngster being over-burdened with conscience. There are two ways of looking at the problem, one by taking Ted as an individual, the other by taking him as half of a unit, his older sister being the other half. The latter best.

No doubt Sally has had to be handled rather heroically for her misdemeanors. As she lacks sentiment in regard to destruction, it is very likely her parents have tried to explain the seriousness of her acts. When she tears up books or throws water on the cat, sermons on values and feelings ensue. She probably has let the whole business in one ear and out the other. But there was Teddy, sensitive to every word, listening in. The punishment and talking directed at Sally may have missed its mark and found a victim in her younger brother, too young to reason but not too young to worry.

If this is the case the remedy is simple. To catechise Sally out of earshot.

It would be difficult to say just what crisis brought about the baby's fright in the first place, for it is fright that promotes such spells. Perhaps Sally herself has been subtly at work. She may have said, for instance, when Teddy got mud on his coat, "You'd better not let Mama see that or she will whip you." Or, "Aren't you ashamed of yourself?"

This may not be the way of it exactly, but we have known children to put mortal fear in sisters or brothers, when parents were mild and easy going. Neighbors will accomplish the same. "You're going to catch it when you go home," says baby-body John, who likes to scare babies.

Ted may have a slight tendency to hysteria, which means that he is too easily upset by trifles. In such a case he needs special and careful handling. First of all he should never be teased. Second he should have more sleep than average. If playing with other children excites him too much, he should play alone a good part of the time.

Too much sympathy will only make him worse, because children who crave it unduly will be quick to take spells of one kind or another in order to get it. Small accidents need not be discussed at all. If both reprimand and sympathy are reduced, and attention of any kind is not forthcoming, he may develop a surprising indifference to putting on an act.

As these two grow older much of the difficulty will iron itself out. It is probably a phrase that will pass.

Make-up Soon Mounts In Weight

HOLLYWOOD, July 29—(AP)—The average movie star, says make-up man Jack Dawn, wears her weight in greasepaint, powder and false eyelashes in 12 months' time.

Dawn was compiling statistics today for the studio re-paint department, of which he is the chief.

"During the next year," he said, "we will use between four and five tons of cosmetics. There will be 3,000,000 makeups applied."

"That makes up to an average of about four ounces of cosmetics for every re-touch job. Thus, the 110-pound Joan Crawford uses just about 120 pounds of beautifier in her 40-week working year, Dawn estimated.

Men use more make-up than women in the movies, Dawn said. For example, he explained, Lionel Barrymore wears a two-pound facial for his part in a current picture. He is made to look like President Andrew Jackson, and it takes a lot of putty and what-not to do the trick.

REPLENISH POCKETS OF HAPSBURG FAMILY
VIENNA, July 29—The empty pocket of the Hapsburgs, once the rich and powerful rulers of the dual monarchy, was partly replenished today through arrangements whereby some of the family's confiscated property was restored to them.

A chancellery official said the title to six apartment houses and title shares with a face value of 2,000,000 schillings (about $83,000) had been restored to agents of the Archduke Otto.

Legatists, who have declared Otto, the heir legitimate, was too poor to eat meat and his sisters had holes in their stockings and run-over shoes, rejoiced.

"Worms" Caused Great Indignation
(By The Canadian Press)
BERLIN, July 27—The word "Worms," painted in large letters on the facade of the Australian team's Olympic Village house, led to a protest to the British Ambassador. But it was just a temporary misunderstanding, and no hard feeling exists now that the Nazis have explained.

Among the first Olympians to arrive, the Aussies were officially welcomed by two brass bands and extended every courtesy. But, when they were taken to their Olympic Village building, there, right on the front, was the word "Worms."

The leader of the Australian delegation hustled to the British embassy. Then came the explanation. Every house in the Olympic Village bears the name of some German city.

Worms is a city on the Rhine, made famous by the Diet of 1521, before which Luther declared: "Here I stand; I cannot do otherwise. So help me God, Amen."
