THE DAILY EXAMINER

DECEMBER 29, 1881.

HALIFAX again rejoices in the prospect of a Graving Dock, to cost $700,000.

THE Czar didn't go, the other day, through the street, it was expected he would go through; and he was alive at the date of the last report.

NEW regulations to govern the sale of Dominion Lands in the North West, after the 1st January next, are published. The Free Homestead principle is preserved for the actual settler, while Companies are offered inducements to promote immigration.

PARLIAMENT will meet on the 9th of February. The St. John Telegraph regrets that the Parliament of Canada and the Local Legislatures meet at the same time. There is some force in the objection; for attention is too apt to be concentrated upon the proceedings of the larger, to the neglect of the smaller, but to the Provinces respectively, equally important body.

AT his Christmas reception, His Holiness the Pope is reported to have said that his position was becoming more and more intolerable. When he claimed temporal power in order to secure the independence of the spiritual power, he was accused of being a rebel and an enemy to Italy. Italian Catholics who demanded efficient guarantees for freedom of the head of their Church, were similarly stigmatized, and pilgrims to Rome were insulted by the press and populace. It was, therefore, only natural that Bishops coming to Rome should consider the existing situation, which was incompatible with the dignity of the Holy See. He expected far more severe persecution in time to come, but would endeavor to guide the barque of Peter through the troubled sea, looking forward to the moment when God would calm the tempest.

THE following is the official statement of balances at the credit of the depositors in the Government Savings Bank on the 30th September, omitting fractions:—

Table with financial data: Balance on hand August 31st, Deposits in September, Total, Withdrawn in September, Balance, This shows an increase of over $200,000 in the amount of deposits during the month.

THE post-office savings bank department up to the 1st of December shows as follows:—

Table with financial data: Balance in hands of Minister of Finance on 31st Oct., 1881, Deposits in P.O. Savings banks during month, Interest allowed to depositors on accounts closed during month, Total, Repayments at P. O. Savings bank during month, Balance at the credit of depositors' accounts, Outstanding cheques by depositors and not presented for payment, Total.

IN a recent issue we made allusion to the serious illness and partial recovery of Mrs. Alexander Allen of this town. We regret to say that the hopes of her restoration to health then entertained were not realized. After a brief interval of relief, aggravated symptoms again appeared, and after much suffering patiently endured she peacefully passed away on Thursday last. Mrs. Allen was the youngest daughter of the late George Aiken, Esq., of Lower Montague, King's County, who left a numerous family of sons and daughters but of whom only two sons (both advanced in life) now remain. Few persons in her station were more widely known or more deservedly esteemed than the deceased. Few persons will be more sincerely regretted or more generally missed. Her devout and blameless life found a fitting close, in dying moments undisturbed by doubt or fear. She was a rare example of noble Christian womanhood and her own life is her best eulogy. We tender to husband and friends our sincere sympathies.—Pioneer.

THE Montreal correspondent of the Toronto Mail says: "A rather strange decision has been given in the Superior Court by Mr. Justice Jette. It was to the effect that as to the validity of marriage between members of the Roman Catholic Church, the Bishop of that faith, and not a court of law in the Province of Quebec, is the legal judge to decide in existence. A young couple of French-Canadians, belonging to the Catholic Church, got married in Montreal by a Protestant minister, on account of the parents of the girl refusing their consent to their being united by their own priest. An action was subsequently brought by the parents of the bride to annul the marriage, on the ground that it was not legal owing to the celebrant being a Protestant. In an elaborate judgment, abounding in research upon the subject treated, of the judge referred the case to the Roman Catholic Bishop of Montreal for his decision.

MARWOOD, the English hangman, thinks he ought to move in as good society as the judges who make the hangings, and who can dispute his philosophy?

Arctic Exploration.

THE Saturday Review says:—"The news of the loss of James Gordon Bennett's Arctic exploring vessel 'Jeannette' and the preservation of at least the greater part of her crew, adds a very interesting detail to the history of Arctic exploration, and comes somewhat appropriately at a time when efforts are being made in England to send assistance to an Arctic explorer of our own. That the 'Jeannette' is no other than Sir Allan Young's famous yacht 'Pandora' that she was bought and fitted out on the 'per mare per terra' principle by the enterprising proprietor of the New York Herald, in order to match, and if possible to excel, the glories of the Livingstone search expedition, and that she disappeared from human ken about two years ago, may, it is presumed, be facts known to most people who take the least interest in geography, and especially in the quest for almost the last of earth's yet unconquered secrets. The 'Jeannette' seems to have made a gallant effort to carry out orders, and in every sense has done credit to the care and expense laid out on her equipment. It is noteworthy that though nearly two years have elapsed since she was seen by a whaler, not more than 300 or 400 miles at the outside, can well have been traversed. Allowing for two winter halts, the progress actually made must have been very small. Indeed, in the summer of the present year none can have been made at all, as the ice must only have been in process of breaking up—a process fatal to the 'Jeannette' by the end of June. Everything that can be done has been done by the Russian authorities, but of course it is impossible to send any expedition to look after the missing boat in the depth of winter. The condition of the rescued sailors, moreover, is not encouraging, as to the probable fate of others who might have to go through a third winter of hardship. Still the major part of the crew has been recovered and the exact achievements of the vessel itself have been made known. That they were not greater will not surprise those who are acquainted with the results of the Behring Straits route. Everything in Arctic exploration, leaving the mere hypothesis of a central, open sea out of the question, depends on making a deep plunge on shipboard into the guarded region before it is necessary to take to sledges or boats. More than two years travelling, it is now seen, had not carried the 'Jeannette' much within a half dozen degrees of latitude from the furthest achieved by the way of Franz Joseph Land and Smith Sound. It is true that the condition of these regions varies astonishingly from year to year, but the results of centuries of adventure in Behring Straits have been uniform. There can be no doubt since the voyage of the 'Vega' that the coast of Siberia can be travelled by ships with good luck in a single season, but the results of stretching northward have never been encouraging, and are now less encouraging than ever. The writer then refers to Leigh Smith's expedition, and says that the rescue of the crew of the 'Jeannette' ought to lend new energy to those among us who are endeavoring to have success sent to Leigh Smith. Had matters gone well with the American vessel she and the 'Eira' might have met before now in Franz Joseph Land, and the latter might have brought happier news of her than is now received. Such a meeting is impossible, now that the timbers of the 'Jeannette' are scattered 100 miles to the eastward on ice untrod before, and not likely soon to be trodden again. But the 'Eira' and her owner remain unaccounted for in a position much more perilous than was that of Lieut. DeLong and his crew. When the United States are rejoicing at the rescue, as yet partial only, of the crew of the 'Jeannette' it is certainly not too much to ask that England should take some means to guard against possible disaster in the case of the 'Eira.'

LARGE FIRE AT NEW GLASGOW.—On Sunday morning last, at about two o'clock, Messrs. Caffery & Nelson's Iron Foundry, at New Glasgow, was totally consumed by fire. It is supposed the fire started in the moulding shop, as the workmen were moulding there on Saturday. The loss is estimated at thirteen thousand dollars, with insurance for six thousand. The firm will build again at once. Mr. Nelson was in Truro at the time of the disaster.—Pictou Standard.

NEWS NOTES.

AGRIAN outrages do not diminish in Ireland, although there are at present 350 prominent agitators in jail.

O'Donovan, correspondent of the London Daily News, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for insulting the Sultan, but a pardon was afterwards obtained for him.

A Virginian father had eleven children named in the consecutive Latin numerals from "Primus" to "Undecimus;" at the birth of his tenth boy the latter was named "Decimus Ultimus;" or tenth and last, but, somehow, another son followed, and was dubbed "Undecimus."

A MOST EXCELLENT CURE FOR A COUGH.—Take equal quantities of fresh honey, the best Jamaica spirits, and pure clean linseed oil. Put these in a very clean bottle, and every time the cough is troublesome take one teaspoonful after shaking the bottle well to thoroughly mix the medicine.

The royal baron of beef which graced Queen Victoria's table on Christmas day weighed about 300 pounds. It was cut from a prime red and white shorthorn, fed by the Duke of Connaught at Bagshot park, which fetched £73 at her Majesty's recent sale at Shaw farm. The huge joint was roasted at Windsor castle, and forwarded to Osborne.

The Montreal Gazette says:—"Our Toronto correspondent reflects the opinion of bankers in Toronto on the recent circular from the Finance Minister, and it is hardly necessary to say that that opinion is unfavorable. If the rumors which are prevalent in the street are correct, it is not to be wondered at that some, at least, of the Toronto bankers are horrified at being called upon to give returns which may expose the extent to which the law forbidding advances on the security of bank stocks has been violated.

The World's London special says:—"The efforts of the Government are now bent upon the extermination of the Ladies' Land League. Their methods of carrying on agrarian agitation are now as formidable as Parnell ever was. In Ireland the policy of the ministry is condemned alike by landlords and Land Leaguers. In England every man not devoted to the worship of Gladstone clearly recognizes that his policy, first of encouraging agrarian agitation and then of quelling it by Russian appliances, has been most disastrous. Still Gladstone seems to bear a charmed life as a politician.

It is the general opinion on this side of the ocean that railway building in Britain is pretty well played out. The fact is, however, that last 30th of November saw deposited in the Private Bill office the plans relating to a greater number of new projects than have ever been broached since the great outburst of 1845. It is proposed to expend over £100,000,000 in these new enterprises and in various other trading projects. One scheme alone contemplates the construction of twenty-four new lines in and around London. All the principal roads are seeking power to extend. There is also a great boom in tramways, which useful roads are to be extended along the highways in populous rural districts as feeders to the railways.

An instance of remarkable persistence in a project of revenge was recently afforded by a tragedy which took place in the town of Palmer, in Kansas. A German named Neppau, had been paying his addresses to a young lady of the place, also of German extraction, named Meinecke. The lady did not favor his suit, however, and her family, including three brothers, treated the suitor with disdain. This was six years ago, and the insulted man, selling all his property, left the town, vowing that one day he would take vengeance on those who had scorned him. Until October last, nothing was heard of him, but on the 30th of that month he re-appeared on horseback, and, having asked after the brothers Meinecke, was told that they had gone to church. He went there and waited at the door till the service was over, and, upon the youngest brother appearing, he followed and shot him dead. He then put the revolver to his own head and ended his life.

DIED.—At Augustine Cove, of inflammation of the lungs, Nov. 26th, Eliza Jane, aged 11 years and one month, daughter of Alexander and Mary Howatt.
Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep.
Her parents have no need to weep,
But nature always claims its own,
She's gone to live with Christ alone.

The Government has issued another circular to the banks, modifying its demands for returns. All that is now required is a declaration of the amount advanced on stocks.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28. Judge Porter, in a most impressive manner, declared to-day the time had come when in the name of the American people and on behalf of the Government in the Federal Court, he felt it his duty to demand that the prisoner be removed to the dock. Judge Cox then ordered him removed to the dock. Guiteau was very noisy and insolent.
