

Judge Claims St. John's Harbor Plans Big Mistake

MONTREAL (CP) — Sir Brian O'Riordan, former lieutenant governor, and by the St. John's harbor pilots. TO BRING JOBS? But he said the present plan is accepted by local politicians because people are under the impression that the scheme will bring $12,000,000 worth of employment. The federal scheme, adopted after consultation with the Newfoundland board of trade, involves construction of a long pier at the shallow end of the harbor, farthest from the entrance and in a place so narrow that large ships would not have room to turn around with the help of a pair of million-dollar tugs, he said. The long channel and turning basin would cut the capacity of the harbor by one third, and this would be serious in an emergency. In wartime up to 56 ships sheltered in the small, snug harbor beyond a narrow guarded by high cliffs. WILL CUT CAPACITY A pamphlet he has prepared says the scheme will harm the berthing and mooring capacity of the port, flies in the face of topography, reverses the historic use pattern of the harbor, leaves no place for large vessels, puts heavy shipping into the most inconvenient place in the harbor and "it will make a mess of the traffic situation."
