

Racy Literature.

Among the people who came to market was a citizen of West Jersey. He brought a stock of eggs and butter. In a big coop in the rear-most part of his wagon he had a splendid peacock, whose tail spread out, beautiful even to gorgeousness, like the trail of a lady's dress.

An Irishman passing by observed the splendid plumage of the bird and asked its price.

"There can have it for fifteen dollars," was the reply of the owner, whose garb indicated him as a member of the Society of Friends.

"That's a good price," was the interrogative remark of the Celt, as he soothed the ample tail of the feathered biped.

"There are plenty of people who will give that for him," was the placid and true rejoinder.

The Celt surveyed the bird, admired his proportions, but still endeavored to cheapen him. "Mister," said he, at last to the grave gentleman who held the bird for sale, "Mister, people say that these birds have a very bad voice."

"I have nothing to say about their voices," was the quiet reply. "If these wants the fowl thee can take it; if these doesn't its voice doesn't make any matter to thee."

"But," says the Celt, "don't them birds holler like the devil?"

"Friend," was the placid reply, "these probably in that respect has an advantage over me. These evidently has acquaintances that I have not. If thee thinks that the scream of this bird is like that of thy friend, whom thee has named, I, in my ignorance, will not presume to contradict thee."

The next minute the Celt was in an opposite stall in the market buying a ten cent bunch of carrots. He bought no peacock on that day.

A West Pointer sends us this, told him by the hero himself:

"Small-pox was prevalent; doctors busy and in constant demand; vaccination, its merits and effects, were the theme of village talk. Sunday morning George (the hero, then a boy) washed, combed, and put his Sunday clothes on, after having received injunctions not to pass such and such a house, started for Sunday-school. During the exercises the teacher asked Georgie if he had ever been baptized. Small-pox and vaccination happening to be uppermost in Georgie's mind, and being rather too young to know the difference between the sound of "baptized," and "vaccination," and being ashamed to be thought ignorant, promptly and rather pompously answered: "Yes, sir, I have been baptized five or six times: but it never took!"

A PRINTER'S TOAST.—"Woman—the fairest work in creation. The edition is very large, and no man should be without a copy."

A colored lady, boasting the other day of the progress made by her son in arithmetic, exultingly said: "He is in de mortification table."

An Irishman was called up in a case of assault and battery, and when asked by the magistrate what he said to the complainant, remarked: "I said to him wid the toe of my boot, Go home!"

Two countrymen went into a hatter's to buy one of them a hat. They were delighted with the sample, inside the crown was inserted a looking-glass. "What is this glass for?" said one of the men. The other impatient at such a display of rural ignorance, exclaimed: "What for? Why, for the man who buys the hat to see how it fits him."

The son of a clergyman of our acquaintance was delivering a college valedictory, when, in pulling out his handkerchief, he pulled out a pack of cards. "Hulloa!" he exclaimed, "I've got on my father's coat."

A Quaker's admonition to a man who was pouring forth a volley of ill language to him was, "Have a care, friend, thou mayest run thy face against my fist."

An English clergyman recently tried to persuade one of the black sheep of his flock to come to church, on the plea that he had seen his wife there on the previous Sunday. "I hope you'll try to come now James." "Well, sir, I think I'll try for my Mary says you're a he—of a preacher."

How they weigh a hog in New Jersey—put the hog in one scale, and some stones in the other, and then guess at the "heft" of the stones.

An attorney, about to finish a bill of costs, was requested by his client, a baker, "to make it as light as he could!" "Ah!" replied the attorney, "that's what you may say to your foreman, but it's not the way I make my bread."

"Katy, have you laid the table cloth and plates, yet?" "An' sure I have, mem, everything but the eggs; and isn't that Biddy's work, sure?"

"I wish, Mr. Speaker, to present a liquor bill," said a red-nosed member of a Western Legislature. "You never present any other kind," said a political opponent.

Dr. Johnson was one day dining at the house of a lady, when she asked him if he did not think her pudding good.

"Yes," growled the great moralist; "it is very good—for hogs." "Shall I help you to another plateful, then?" asked the polite hostess.

An exchange paper has the following: "It is said that there are more editors unmarried than any other class of professional men." For the reason, we suppose, that the majority of them are men of fine sentiment, and do not wish to starve anybody's sister.

CELEBRATED

PERFECTED SPECTACLES

AND EYE GLASSES.

The Large and increasing sale of these PERFECTED GLASSES is a sure proof of their superiority. We were satisfied that they would be appreciated here as elsewhere, and that the reality of the advantages offered to wearers of our beautiful lenses, viz.: the ease and comfort, the assured and readily ascertained improvement of the sight, and the brilliant assistance they give in all cases, were in themselves so apparent on trial, that the result could not be otherwise than that, in the almost general adoption of our Celebrated Perfected Spectacles by the residents of this locality.

With a full knowledge of the value of the assertion, we claim that they are the most perfect optical aids ever manufactured. To those needing Spectacles, we afford at all times an opportunity of procuring the best and most desirable.
