OUR TASK
The task of the Bible Society is endless. It has been going on now for almost one hundred and fifty years, and there are still two hundred languages in which the Bible is unknown. In these latter days the world has begun to set itself to learn to read, and everywhere there are literacy movements. This again places new responsibility on the Societies, both to supply more copies of the Scriptures in existing translations and to hasten the process of making new ones. Lend your support to this great work through the P. E. I. Auxiliary of the Society. The Bible House is at 100 Fitzroy Street, Charlottetown.

Rev. M. C. Macdonald, B.A., D.D. Dr. Malcolm C. Macdonald, preacher, author and Church leader, will be the special preacher at Trinity United Church next Sunday morning. Dr. Macdonald was born at Rose Valley, Prince Edward Island, and had his early education at Prince of Wales College. From there he went to Dalhousie University, and led the debating team of that university from victory to victory. His subject on Sunday morning will be "A growing Church in a growing nation." He knows his subject, as he has just crossed Canada as Chairman of the Extension Committee of the United Church of Canada. Behind the unprecedented growth of churches in almost every city in Canada is Dr. Macdonald. Over two hundred churches are, or soon will be in process of construction. His latest book "From Lakes to Northern Lights" will be off the press in about a month.

Literature And Life
By BOOKMAN
THE POETRY OF THE BIBLE
There is one thing that we should always remember about the Bible and that is that it is literature and the literature of a great people, and at the same time, a poetic people. An imaginative people. Tagore of India, reminded us a few years ago that we in the Western world, were the bridge builders and the sky-scraper builders of our time, but the peoples of the East were those who gave us our religions, and religion is a poetic thing. The Bible is the most poetical of books. It begins in poetry and ends in poetry. For Genesis must not be taken as all history in the ordinary sense; nor must Genesis be taken as Science for the Jews were not scientists. The story of the creation of the world and of man is poetic—but the truth is left that God made both. And the book of Revelation is full of poetry—take the destruction of Babylon and the description of a renewed world, what poetry we have there! I can do no more than point to some of the best known passages. There is much poetry in the story of Joseph, especially where he is making himself known to his brethren. Those scenes are very touching. Did not Carlyle say that "every man as great as any poetry ever written? It is a drama. Another drama is the Song of Solomon, which had to knock hard at the door of the church to get on the canon of scripture; and why should not the subject of loyalty among lovers have a place in such company? David's lament for Saul and Jonathan ranks high among elegies and after all the centuries that lie between then and now still touches the heart. It is steeped in real feeling. David's conduct when he lost his little boy and his expression of sorrow about Absalom are real poetry. The author of Ecclesiastes was both a philosopher and a poet. It is really a quest for the "chief good and has poetry in it too. He sought out "beautiful words," so he tells us. The twelfth chapter is particularly fine. The second Isaiah is often poetic. Take chapter forty which we are told men like Edmund Burke read often for its music and the sweep of its ideas. The prophets of the eighth century often reach heights of poetry. Jeremiah too, is poetic. Need I mention the psalms? Wordsworth said "that poetry is emotion recollected in tranquillity." Apply that test to the "shepherd's psalm." We can imagine the author watching his sheep and he feels that what he does for his flock, God does for him. That is his emotion, his reaction. Later he writes the psalm. It is an expression of faith and a very beautiful one. Proverbs too is poetic. Wisdom is represented as standing at life's cross roads and calling to travellers to listen to her voice, and retiring with a broken heart if they refuse. Wisdom is personified in this book. There is much poetry in the New Testament. Jesus was a poet and his parables are poetry of a high order. Mrs. Browning says that God is the chief poet. Paul declared that we are God's poet's (Ephesians 2:10). But it is in I Corinthians 13, in his great hymn of love that we have him at his best. The Bible is the most poetical book in the world and it is an education to know it. It is steeped in beauty and the writers—many of them unknown—have left the world a priceless legacy.

Gerald Waring Reporting

Ottawa — The Government's prescription to cure inflation was restated in succinct terms by Finance Minister Abbott the other day: "Work harder and longer."

Assessing their own personal problems of making ends meet, a lot of people have realized that is the only solution. However, their ideas don't coincide exactly with those of the Finance Minister.

What Abbott means is that everyone should work harder and longer at his or her job, so he or she individually will produce or help to produce more goods and services, while at the same time receiving essentially the same amount of money.

On the other hand, the individual considering his own personal problem sees the solution as getting more money to cope with higher prices. He agrees to "work harder and longer," but he means to get more money for it. He may seek higher wages, or part time work to supplement his regular income. But inasmuch as he spends his additional income instead of saving it, he won't be helping win the battle against inflation.

If everybody got more money for working harder, with their incomes increasing in ratio to their added production, inflation would still be as bad as ever. There would still be too many dollars chasing too few goods—which is the root cause of all our inflationary troubles.

Abbott's "work harder and longer" really means "accept a reduced standard of living" until the amount of goods and services equals present demand. Then prices will level off and inflation will be licked.

Quotable quotes: Finance Minister Abbott: "What we need is purse control, not price control." Progressive Conservative Leader George Drew: "The consumer who hoards goods and goes in for panic buying, the producer who cynically exploits that panic, the manufacturer who tries to get the largest profit he can out of the demand for scarce supplies, are all germ carriers of the dangerous disease of inflation." CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell: "If Stalin has a secret weapon today, it is inflation." Social Credit Leader Solon Low: "This shivering skeleton, the thing we call a dollar, is having such a hard time today to buy more than 50 cents worth of anything." The Herald, N. B., Observer: "A serious impediment to marriage nowadays is the increasing difficulty of supporting a government and a wife at the same time."

Some folks here like as the "Best Budget Story of 1951" the one about how newsmen H. H. C. "Torchy" Anderson campaigned for years to have the "iniquitous" tax on cigarette papers abolished. When it was removed, Finance Minister Abbott thought Anderson, who "rolled his own" would be pleased. But no—Anderson had quit smoking.

However, my favorite story concerns the MP who, a year ago, would have been as pleased as punch that liquor had escaped additional taxation.

But now he's on the wagon. And he told the Commons that "it is utter nonsense not to tax alcohol and to tax cigarettes. I do not think that meets with the approval of even 10 per cent of the people of Canada."

Nor was that all. A heavy smoker, he told the House that after the tax increase was announced, but before it went into effect, he had immediately bought "every cigarette I could possibly lay my hands on."

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

When you come to purchase any piece of furniture, you cannot take too much for granted. The tag on the piece usually has stock identification numbers, perhaps style name and a place for "finish." This space may say, "Mahogany," or it may say, "Cardovan," or "Old World Mahogany." To protect yourself, insist that the real McCoy be included in the bill of sale. Any excess glue and dirty corners indicate hasty construction. Glue and screws, rather than nails, indicate quality. So use your eyes.

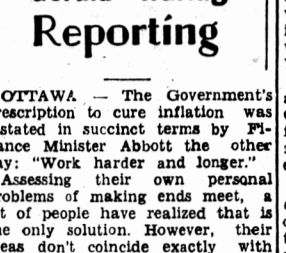

Seed pictures is a brand new hobby developed by Mrs. Laura Van Wye, of Rogers, Arkansas. First, she gathers the seeds, on the green side, then dries 'em, then puts them on a piece of sandpaper the size she wishes her picture to be. This gets a coat of varnish on the rough side. Then, dipping the end of a toothpick into glue, the seeds are picked up, one at a time, and placed on the sandpaper. Mrs. Van Wye forms her designs as she goes along. When the flowers are finished, she forms the leaves and stems. The entire design is made of seeds and are never artificially colored. It is their natural color that lends beauty to the picture.

Framed, the pictures sell from $2. to $25, depending upon size, and there's a wide open market for her brain children. What sort of seeds does Laura use? All sorts, from the tiny poppy, mustard, turnip, pumpkin, and what have you. Who said there is nothing new under the sun?

Another brand new idea in house insulation these days is a marine plant, known as "Sostera Marina." It is applied between two layers of Kraft paper and sells under the trade name, "Seofit." Besides being a good insulation material, it is fire and vermin proof.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL

The executive of the Musical Festival Association held a meeting in P.W.C. College on Thursday evening for the purpose of making final arrangements for the forthcoming Festival. The Empire Theatre is to be used for morning and afternoon's session as well as P.W.C. Hall. Mrs. Lowther reported her committee has children's tickets under which admits a child to eleven of the morning and afternoon sessions.

A representative of the membership committee will be in P.W.C. as usual to receive new or renewal membership fees. This year all members of the Association will have the privilege of buying season tickets which admits them to all sessions of the Festival except the final concert.

The program committee said that it will be impossible to get all first prize winners in the two final concerts as there are a very large number of classes. They were advised to use their own judgment and to try to have the concerts as interesting and varied as possible.

The program for the Festival will be available shortly. Ribbons and certificates will be presented to the winners after the adjudication of each class.
