MISCELLANEOUS.

A Strange Story.—The London correspondent of the Round Table says:—

London is often filled with rumours of a 'suppressed princess' here, and a 'begger nobleman' there. How much truth there must be in such floating stories. Heaven only knows. That the Princess Modena lately died in the Marylebone workhouse is certainly true; it is true that an Indian princess was the subject of a letter in the Times lately calling attention to her distresses. But lately a very strange pamphlet was published in Bristol, giving a story of this kind with more than ordinary veracity. It is the autobiography of a blind man named James Davis, well known in Bristol, where he goes about playing a concertina in the streets, receiving such halfpence as may be cast to him. There has been for some time a whisper that he is the illegitimate son of the late Duke of Gloucester, and the pamphlet goes to prove that he is so. His mother was the daughter of a Cardiganshire farmer, and her father having been reduced to straightened circumstances, she went out into the world as a lady's maid, and eventually got a situation as an under housekeeper in the Duke's residence in London. After being there some time she returned to her father's, pregnant, stating that she was married, and that her husband would shortly appear to own her. No husband, however, appeared, and the young woman died three weeks after her confinement. The adventures of this autobiography, after this, were numerous and varied. He went to a grammar school at Hereford, which he left on his grandfather's death, and was then a wanderer for a considerable time on the streets of the town. Eventually he got an asylum with an old servant, and there, while ransacking an old desk of his grandfather's, he discovered some papers which, on being opened, are said to have disclosed the secret of his birth, and that he owed his parentage on one side to no less a personage than the Duke of Gloucester. A friend of his enclosed the papers to his Royal Highness, and shortly afterwards a member of the Duke's household was sent to Hereford, who brought the lad to London, and he was received and well treated in the royal residence for some time. After this he was sent to an institution for teaching the blind, he having lost his eyesight during his previous sufferings. Being annoyed and taunted with the name of the young Duke in the asylum, he left it and returned to the abode of his Royal Highness, where he seems to have been well cared for until the Duke's death; on which event occurring he was cast upon the world, and, after numerous adventures and travelling throughout the country, he at length partially settled down at Bristol, where he may still be seen playing his concertina, and led by a dog with a small tin cup in its mouth, intended to receive the alms of the charitable. The whole story is strange, but a highly respectable gentleman whom he paid Davis to compile his autobiography, says he has every reason to believe that the particulars given are quite true.

Josh Billings on Shanghais.—The shanghai reuster is a gintile, and speaks in a forun tung. He is bilt on piles like our Sandy Hill crane. If he had bin bilt with legs he wud resembul the peruvian lama. He is not a game animul, but quite often comes off second best in a ruff and tumble fite; like the injins tha kant stand civulization and ar fast disappearing. Tha roost on the ground similar tew the mud-turkle. Tha often go to sleep standing, and sum times pitch over, and wen they dew tha enter the ground like a picax. There feed consists uv corn in the ear. Tha crow like a jackass troubled with brokeesucks. Tha will eat as much tu onst az a distrikt skule master, and generally sit down rite oph tew keep frum tipping ever. Tha ar dredfus unhandy to kook, you have tu bile won end uv a time, yu kant git them awl into a potash kittle tu onst.

The female reuster lays an egg as big as a kokeenut, and wen she hatches out a litter uv yung shangais she has tu brood over em standing, then kant kiver but 3 uv them, the rest stand around on the outside, like boys around a cirkus tent, gitting a peep under the kanvass whenever tha kan. The man who first brought the breed into this country ought to own them awl and be obliged tew feed them on grasshoppers caught bi hand. I never owned but one, and he got choked tu deth by a kink in a clothes line, but not till he had swallowed 18 feet ov it. Not eny shanghai for me if you pleze; I would rather board a traveling col porter; and az eating one, give me a biled owl rare done, or a turkee buzzard, roasted hole, and stuffed with a pair of injun rubbers boots, but not enny shanghai!

The Epigrammatists after the Fenians.—You have doubtless had the whole story of the quarrel between O'Mahony and the Senate. The fact is, that the parties have accumulated a large quantity of money and valuables, and it is a fight as to who shall spend them. The "bonds of the Irish Republic," which you described some time ago, have done it all. One party has been spending the funds in high living in Union Square, where the "Irish Republic" is located, and beyond which it is never likely to go either east or west. The fact that the quarrel has been entirely regarding the bonds has been so apparent, that people are beginning to look on the whole affair as a swindle. The epigrammatists have started in full pursuit of the pack, and have been throwing bombshells in their camp with unusual vigour. A lawyer in one of the criminal courts wrote the following epigram, taking a semi-financial, semi-legal view of the Fenian finances:

" What hope for hapless Celt remains
Who from the Irish soil absconds?
'Tis true, he 'scapes his English chains,
But ah! he's caught by—'Irish bonds.' "

House, of the Tribune, who aided Bourcicault to enforce the copyright laws in regard to "Arrah-na-Pogue," by putting his name down on the bills as joint author of the drama, in which home-bred Fenians appear to great advantage "wearing of the green," has become so disgusted at the quarrel of the Fenians here, that he has perpetrated the following:—

ON CASH ON HAND.

" When Irish bonds upstart,
And for cash go through the mart,
With a bran new 'Irish nation' on their clean backs;
'Twill then, I think, be seen
That the 'wearing of the green'
Means nothing else than — wearing of the greenbacks!"

To which Raymond, or somebody in his office, has added the following, which the Fenians complain is rather personal:—

" I cannot just now say
If for promises to pay
By a future 'Irish nation' I should itch:
But I think it very sure,
Though the bonds might turn out 'poor,'
That the vaga-bonds will mostly turn out rich!"

Bennett has so far contented himself in calling them "those terrible fellows, the Fenians," which, as it recalls to everybody's mind the other Bennettism on Greeley—"that terrible monster, Greeley"—gives them more trouble than they like to acknowledge. The World calls them the "ferocious Phenians."

Death of a Russian Prince.—A letter from Tiflis (Georgia) announces the death of Prince Kourakine, aged thirty-two, under the following circumstances:—He had left capital in a sledge to visit one of his properties in the neighborhood, and had taken his gun to have a shot at any wolves that might cross the path. When about half way to his destination the sledge came in contact with a trunk of a tree, and the unfortunate prince was thrown forward on the muzzle of his piece, which suddenly went off, lodging its contents in his left side. He lived along enough to reach his chateau, where he expired in the presence of his wife. The fortune left to his widow is estimated at 32,000,000 francs.

An important decision has been rendered in England, which determines that a diameter of seven feet is not unreasonably large for a lady's hoop skirt. A lady, walking along the street in London, caught her dress on a nail of a packing box, which a merchant had left on the sidewalk, and sued for damages. The merchant showed that the box occupied only three feet on the inner side of the sidewalk, and that seven feet were left for the lady, and claimed that the accident was due to her negligence. But the court decided in favour of the lady, holding that seven feet was not an unreasonable space for her to cover. The New York Times begs the ladies to claim at least that space in the cars and church pews as their legal right.

Sound Sleeper.—The celebrated actor Quin had the faculty of sleeping soundly. "What sort of a morning is it, John?" "Very wet sir." "Any mullet in the market?" "No sir." "Then you may call me this time to-morrow." So saying, he composed himself to sleep, and got rid of the ennui of a day.

THE MOST RELIABLE FRIEND!

Holloway's Ointment.

Its Searching & Healing Properties are known and recognized throughout the World.

The number of years this invaluable Ointment has stood the test of public opinion, (and the longer known the better appreciated) is a testimony of itself more convincing than anything that could be written in praise of its truly wonderful healing properties. In the cure of bad legs, bad breasts, sores, wounds, and ulcers, its effect is marvellous. For ring-worm, scald-head, scrofula, and diseases of the skin generally, there is no remedy to be compared to it. When assiduously rubbed upon the skin (previously well bathed in warm water) this Ointment is quickly absorbed into the system, and cleanses, in its passage, every part to which it is applied.

Glandular Swellings, Mumps, Bronchitis, Quinsey, Sore Throats and Diptheria.

In any of the above diseases, immediate and permanent relief is obtained by effectually rubbing this detergent Ointment, twice a day, upon the neck, chest and back. Its acts upon the very mainsprings of life; for through the glands pass all new matter required for the body's reparation and all old particles detrimental to its preservation. The Ointment, used conjointly with Holloway's Pills, will act so searchingly and certainly as to effect cures in the most hopeless cases.

Rheumatism, Lumbago, Contracted and Stiff Joints.

Many thousands of martyrs from the above complaints have found life almost unsupportable; yet, if Holloway's Ointment be briskly and perseveringly rubbed upon the parts affected, ease may be safely guaranteed, especially if the pores of the skin be previously opened by fomentations with warm water. The gross humors require expulsion from the system; it is therefore necessary to have recourse to Holloway's admirable Pills, which, by purifying and strengthening the system, greatly assist the operation of the Ointment and facilitate and confirm the cure.

Bad Legs, Bad Breasts, and Ulcerations of all kinds.

There is no medicinal preparation in the world which may be so thoroughly relied upon, in the treatment of the above ailments, as Holloway's Ointment. Nothing can be so simple or safe as the manner in which it is applied, or its action on the body, both locally and constitutionally. The Ointment, rubbed around the part affected, enters the pores just as salt enters meat. It quickly penetrates to the source of the evil and drives it from the system.

Erysipelas and Scrofulous Sores.

In all irritations of the skin, sores, ulcers, burns or scrofulous enlargements of any kind, Holloway's Ointment presents a ready and easy means of cure. It manifests a peculiar power in restraining inflammation, removing stagnation, cooling the heated blood, and checking all acrimonious and unhealthy discharge.

Diseases attendant on Childhood.

Diseases incident to early life fall more under the management of the mother than the medical man. Holloway's Ointment should therefore be regarded by her as a "Household Treasure," as it never fails in bringing out the rash in measles and scarlatina; and for the removal of all skin diseases its effect is miraculous. In cases of whooping cough and croup, this invaluable Ointment should be rubbed twice a day upon the throat and chest, and the youngest invalid will derive therefrom the most soothing relief. Two or three of Holloways's famous Pills, reduced to a powder, will augment the curative powers of the Unguent.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:
