Yorks Starred In Dardanelles At Jutland Too

LONDON Sept. 18 (CP) — A vast responsibility lies today on the shoulders of Admiral Sir Charles Forbes, commander-in-chief of the Home Fleet, the naval body which will play the biggest role in the new war unless the theatre of operations spreads to the Mediterranean.

Son of a Ceylon tea-planter, Forbes entered the navy at 13 as a cadet in the training ship Britannia. He specialized in gunnery, and as a lieutenant he was one of the favorite pupils of the late Lord Fisher, battle-scarred First Sea Lord when the First Great War broke out.

Sir Charles' success is attributed to his natural ability, hard work, and courageous conduct in action. In the attempt to force the Dardanelles in 1915, he was an executive officer aboard the battleship Queen Elizabeth. This was the ship which during the subsequent landings General Sir Ian Hamilton used from which to direct his troops. The battleship at the same time dropped a few shells wherever a concentration of Turks was observed on the highlands.

On Staff at Jutland

Fleet gunnery officer, at the Battle of Jutland, in 1916, serving in the late Earl Jellicoe's staff in the flagship Iron Duke. Forbes there won the Distinguished Service Order. The following year he was promoted to the rank of captain Lord Jellicoe's dispatch describing the Jutland action said Forbes "plotted the movement of the two fleets with rapidity and accuracy."

In 1925 Forbes went to the Admiralty as Director of Naval Ordnance. He was promoted to the rank of Rear Admiral when he gave up that position in 1928. In 1930 he went to the Mediterranean to command the fleet's destroyer flotillas. Then came another Admiralty post, as Third Sea Lord and Controller, which he held from 1932 to 1934.

Last year he succeeded the late Sir Roger Backhouse as Commander-in-Chief of the Home Fleet, when the latter was appointed First Sea Lord Sir Charles' flagship is the 33,950 ton battleship Nelson, named for the hero of Trafalgar.

Hobbies and Family

Sir Charles, now 58, is known as the best gardener in the navy. In days of peace he liked nothing better than puttering about the grounds of Cawsand Place, the country home near Windsor where he spends most of his leaves.

Wearing a battered felt hat and a blue sweater, Sir Charles rolled up the sleeves of his flannel shirt hung his jacket over a tree stump, and lashed out at the bracken with a scythe, handling the implement with the slow rhythmic movement of an expert. His favorite Scotch terrier was his only companion. While the Admiral hacked weeds, the dog rooted around his heels.

Sir Charles' special pride are the apple trees which fill his orchard. "Apple trees—that's the one thing I do know something about," he once told a reporter in the low, hesitant voice that helped create his reputation as "the most silent member of the silent service." The navy is popularly known as the "silent service" because it seldom advertises its activities.

Sir Charles has been twice married. His first wife, mother of his only son Charles whose defective eyesight forced him to leave the navy in 1935, died in 1915. Audrey, a daughter by his first wife, died of pneumonia at Malta in 1931. His second wife is Marie Louis Berndtson of Stockholm, whom he married in 1921. They have one daughter.

Labor Congress Asks Provincial Govt's To Assist

MONTREAL, Sept. 19—(CP) — The all-Canadian congress of labor today asked the provincial governments "to abrogate such rights as they may possess" in order that the federal government could take control of unemployment legislation in Canada.

The resolution submitted by the Algoma Steel Workers Union, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was accepted unanimously. Its preamble noted that unemployment "has become a permanent problem," and added that national legislation to relieve the situation had been adjudged ultra vires the jurisdiction of the dominion government.

It asked that provincial governments surrender their rights "to the end that adequate national legislation of a social character may be enacted." Affiliated unions were asked to make representations to members of provincial assemblies for their support for any legislation "as is necessary to achieve this result."

Working at top speed through the middle day of its three-day convention, the ninth annual meeting of the congress also asked that the age for old age pensions from the dominion government be dropped from 70 years to 60.

Resolutions from the Winnipeg division of the Canadian brotherhood of railway employees, asking that shipments of raw materials capable of being used for war purposes be banned "to countries unfriendly to the Allies," and that an investigation of Nazi propaganda in Canada be undertaken, were adopted with little debate. Delegates also agreed that they should give the fullest possible assistance to the co-operative union of Canada.

Pan-American Airways War Regulations

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—(AP)— Pan American airways today made public regulations which have been put into effect on its transatlantic air passenger service because of the war.

Commercial cargo is restricted to air mail. Inauguration of air express service to and from Europe will be postponed indefinitely.

An additional "neutrality" precaution specifies that company airplanes cannot carry persons associated with the armed forces of any belligerent country.

The company disclosed that when the "northern route" via Botwood, Newfoundland, to Foynes, Eire, is abandoned for the winter months, it will be possible to carry 150 passengers each day weekly on the New York-Bermuda run.

The clipper plane normally assigned to the Foynes run will be transferred to the "southern route" by way of Bermuda to Lisbon. Bermuda is without regular steamship service, the vessels serving the islands having been withdrawn for war service.

Canadian Dollar Is StrongerInU.S.

NEW YORK, Sept 19—(CP)—The Canadian dollar touched 9 per cent discount on the United States funds in closing foreign exchange dealings here today, an advance of 1 1-8 cent from yesterday and the strongest rate it has reached for a week.

Traders reported a slight but steady demand for Canadian funds throughout the day. In Canada the Bank of Canada's official premium on United States funds was 10 per cent buying and 11 per cent selling.

Dealings in the "free" pound sterling, governed by local demand and supply conditions, again appeared to be relatively thin with the Bank of England offering to liquidate "legitimate" business at $4.04.

The "free" sterling rate bounced up to $3.94 at noon, an overnight rise of nearly 12 cents but receded later to finish at $3.91. The French franc was .05 higher at 2.23.

Ontario Gov't Moves To Pass War Legislation

TORONTO, Sept. 19-(CP)-Promised the cooperation of the Conservative opposition, the Ontario Government today pushed through first, reading in the legislature a dozen war measures designed to gear Ontario industry and agriculture to a wartime economy.

The opening sitting was marked by complete unanimity of Premier Hepburn's Liberal forces and the Conservatives under Col. George Drew on the war legislation. The major bills dealt with the speedup of farm and factory production to suit the needs of the Allies and seek to insure a constant supply of Hydro-electrical power necessary in munition-making and other war industries.

Premier Hepburn told the House his Government had "exhausted its persuasive powers" in an effort to have the Dominion authorities take over the guarding of vital Hydro-electrical plants and other utilities in the province.

Among the emergency measures was an act to provide for the protection of Ontario's public works. In discussing it, Col. Drew referred to the "private army" being built up in the province for this purpose. He charged such an establishment was unconstitutional and urged the public generally to bring pressure to bear on Ottawa to place guard duty under the National Defence Department

Roosevelt To Open Neutrality Contest Thursday

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19 —(AP) President Roosevelt disclosed today he would go before Congress Thursday to deliver an address officially opening a contest over the United States Neutrality Law.

He began drafting the message as members of House and Senate started arriving for the special session.

Among those who reached the capital, Senator Vandenberg (Rep-Michigan) and Senator Holt (Dem-West Virginia) immediately announced their oppostion to changing the neutrality statute, while Senators Connally (Dem-Texas) and Guffey (Dem-Pennsylvania) said they would support the Govment's proposal that the embargo on arms shipments to belligerents be repealed.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to hold a "National Unity" Conference tomorrow at the White House on the administration's neutrality program.

He has invited the Democratic Leadership in Congress, the Republican Leaders, and Alfred M Landon and Col. Frank Knox, the 1936 presidential and vice presidential candidates of the Republican Party.

Meantime, the treasury asked for bids on manganese ore, its first purchase in the $100,000,000 program authorized by Congress last session for the acquisition and storing of vital war materials not freely produced in the United States.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19 —(CP) — Alfred M Landon, the 1936 Republican nominated for the presidency, said today he believed the sentiment of the United States was that the country "should not get into the war."

Will Represent World Press At Western Front

LONDON, Sept. 19—(CP)— The ministry of information has named A. G. Clifford of Reuters News Agency to represent the world press at the western front until other correspondents are authorized to cover the Anglo-French campaign against Germany's Siegfried lines.

Clifford won his spurs as a war correspondent in Spain. When correspondent E. R. Sheepshanks, assigned to General Franco's headquarters, was killed along with E. J. Nell of the Associated Press in the explosion of a "truant" shell, in January, 1938, Clifford was appointed to succeed Sheepshanks.

After the Spanish war, Clifford was named chief correspondent of Reuters' Berlin bureau. He served there until Great Britain declared war against Germany.

Clifford joined Reuters, whose service is carried by the Canadian Press, in 1931. He is 29 years old and was educated at Charterhouse and Oriel College, Oxford.

May Discontinue Coal Mining At Estevan, Sask.

REGINA, Sept. 19—(CP)— Operations in the Estevan coal mining field may be temporarily discontinued or at least curtailed as a result of "unsettled" labor conditions, according to a news letter of the Saskatchewan bureau of labor and public welfare.

Word of unrest coupled with announcement the united mine workers of America had voted in favor of a strike, 791 to 24, indicated that trouble was brewing in the Lignite field.

Controversial point is said to be the failure of the mine operators to implement recommendations of the majority report of the board of conciliation which recently arbitrated differences in the field.

Principal recommendation was for provincial legislation to compel employers to deal with committees comprised of the majority of their employees in industrial disputes.

The report also stated that proper employer-employee relationship could only be established by employers recognizing a bona fide miners union chosen by the majority of the employees.
