HORSE AND BUGGY—A FIRST-CLASS TURN-OUT—TO HIRE AT THE NORTH STAR.—Sep 1st

THE excursion by the St. Patrick's Band, on board the "Heather Belle," last night, was well patronized. Those who were present enjoyed a pleasant time, and returned home at 11 o'clock.

At a meeting of the members of "St. John A. Hook and Ladder Company," held at their room, last evening, the following officers were elected: Captain, Arch'd. D. White; 1st Lieutenant, Wm. Bethune; 2nd Lieutenant, Richard Davies; Treasurer, James D. Irving; Secretary, William LePage.

A MOST terrific thunder storm passed over this Province this morning, continuing from 2 o'clock to 8.30. The lightning was very vivid, and, at intervals, in some places, the heavens appeared as one lurid sheet of flame, and the frightful roar of the thunder awoke the most slumberous. Heavy rain accompanied the storm. It is feared that much damage is done to the crops.

THE boy William Doyle, who was missed from his home on Wednesday, has not been since found. When last seen he was fishing at the end of Tully's wharf, with two other boys. As there are suspicions of foul play, a diver was employed to go down this afternoon. The water being too muddy, nothing could be done. It is believed by some that he was pitched overboard by one of his companions.—Hc. Reporter.

A PASSENGER on an English channel steamer jumped overboard recently with the intention of committing suicide. The starboard lifeboat was promptly lowered, but it was stove in as it struck the water, and one of the crew was drowned. The Wreck Commissioners of the English Government has held an inquiry, and exonerated the captain of the steamboat from blame, as it was proved that the occurrence was an accident, due to the manner in which the lifeboat struck the sea. But what would be the decision of an English Commissioner if it was proved that to lower a boat from a lake steamer was an impossible feat; that the boats were carried in such a position and fastened in such a fashion as to indicate that it was never contemplated to remove them from their stands; that, in fact, there was no adequate provision for the safety of passengers?—Mail.

Zululand.

The toils have been so swiftly thrown around Cetewayo that the Zulu prediction must be shortly fulfilled that "the valley of the Umvolosi rivers, the cradle of the Zulu military power is also to be its grave." The second campaign against the natives is thus sketched by Dr. Russell:—Between the White and Black Umvolosi rivers stretches a tract of broken country most troublesome to civilized troops, with dangerous necks commanded by rugged cliffs, occasional swamp and copious bush. Towards this, under Colonels Harrison Clarke and Baker Russell, are now swiftly moving two columns of all arms; the former starting from Port Durnford, on the right flank of the retreating fragments of Cetewayo's army, the other from Rorke's Drift in its rear. Colonel Clarke, with his headquarters at Entenjaneni, will cut off the King and his desperate followers from all help from the east, and prevent their breaking through into the districts which have already submitted to our rule; while Colonel Russell, moving with his strong cavalry brigade along the only route by which the Zulus could attempt a raid upon Natal, the old missionaries' high road from Rorke's Drift to Ulundi, will reconnoitre towards the Black Umvolosi. Five thousand Swazis are now moving down through the heart of the Zulu country, the central strongholds of Chaka's fatuous successor, along the Black Umvolosi river to the great Ngame Forest, where some say Cetewayo is now crouching with his herds, his women and his shattered regiments. So soon as Sir Garnet Wolseley has ascertained the exact whereabouts of the dusky King, he will endeavor to deal him a final blow.
