

Happenings of The Week

Royal Dressmaker Norman Hartnell, torn between his public and his No. 1 customer, admitted that Princess Elizabeth's Canadian visit has had an impact on his annual autumn collection. In an interview Hartnell explained: "My collection is smaller this year because Her Royal Highness has chosen many of the models to wear during her visit to Canada. Naturally, these models had to be withdrawn and replacement had to be made, where possible, at a moment's notice."

But the royal dressmaker isn't complaining. Overseas buyers will be zealous in their efforts to pick out a model that can be labelled. "Similar to that worn by Princess Elizabeth on her tour of Canada, 1951," Hartnell said he is under strict orders not to say anything about Elizabeth's choice of dresses, but fashion writers can make some shrewd forecasts. The autumn collection, unveiled at a special press preview, puts a clear emphasis on autumn leaf shades—oatmeal tweeds, browns and metallic shimmering brozons.

A new Windsor green, soft and hazy in shade, is also prominent in the collection. Since the Princess has recently shown a fondness for green, this color seems likely to form part of the Canadian wardrobe. The collection as a whole indicates that Hartnell still favors tailored clothes and picture frocks. Conservative lines and classic simplicity, rather than one dominant "theme" such as French designers often stress, tend to be the keynote of the show. One model christened "Versailles" is a grey and mauve tulle crinoline that might well have been worn in the days of Marie Antoinette. In sharp contrast is a bronze lace sheath dress with a fish-tail train and high bodice, with a wide pointed neckline trimmed in mutation mink.

With Mrs. St. Laurent holidaying with her husband the Prime Minister in Quebec, and all the Embassies depleted due to the holiday season, life in Ottawa has been in the doldrums during the past week. "The broiling sun has tended to make even out-of-door entertainment a minus quantity, social life being transferred to summer resorts, and especially bathing resorts."

A former resident of Ottawa, Mrs. Sarah F. LeGarde, widow of Hector H. LeGarde, and sister-in-law of the late Rev. Dr. LeGarde, has died at her daughter's Toronto home. President in many women's organizations, Mrs. LeGarde was the founder and past president of the Daily Vacation Bible School and a former president of the Frances Willard Chapter, Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Many old friends are delighted to see Miss D. A. Louise Birch, Dorchester, Mass., who is holidaying here with her brother, Mr. H. B. S. Birch, Fort Hill. Her father was one of the stalwarts of Prince County public life in the old days.

Miss Evelyn Henry, Charlottetown, and Miss Margaret Whittom, Ottawa, are featured in the current issue of "Time" as the outstanding women of Canada. However, the former is credited to New Brunswick because the record swim of the Strait began at Cape Tormentine.

Rev. Elliott MacGulgan, S.J., Rector of the Jesuit Seminary in Toronto is visiting for a few days, with his father, Dr. MacGulgan, and other members of the family, at Keppoch Beach.

Dr. Norman Archibald MacRae MacKenzie, President of the University of British Columbia, was the guest of the Rev. Charles Dickieson of New Glasgow during the past week.

Mrs. Ritchie Henderson, of the Vocational School staff in Saint John, with her daughter Mary, is spending a pleasant vacation at Stanhope Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. William Donpierre of Montreal are spending a vacation with Mrs. A. J. Wise.

Hostesses at the Golf Club tea this afternoon will be Mrs. W. J. P. MacMillan, Mrs. W. D. Gillis, Mrs. M. A. Howatt, Mrs. J. MacEachern and Mrs. C. M. Mellish.

Dr. David Falconer, Buffalo, Ill., Mr. Raymond L. Cox, East St. Louis, Ill., and Mr. Donald MacMillan are vacationing on the island, guests of their friend, Eric MacGregor, at the home of his parents. At present, they are guests at Link's Inn, Cavendish.

Dr. and Mrs. Heath MacIntyre accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Rankin McLaine motored to Cape Breton last Friday. Unable to attend the night races at Sydney as planned, they motored around the Cabot Trail and returned to Charlottetown on Monday.

Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Barrett, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson motored over to Antigonish on the eighteenth for the Highland Games, in which their son, Wendell, was participating.

Hostesses at the tennis tea this afternoon are to be Miss Una Murphy and Miss Jenny Kowanz.

Miss Winnifred Gillan and Miss Helen Worth have returned to Worcester, Mass., after a pleasant holiday on the island. Miss Gillan is a sister of Mrs. (Dr.) C. Cliff.

Dr. Pauline Jewett, Ph.D., a native of Ontario, who received her M.A. at Queen's, her Ph.D. at Radcliffe College, Harvard, and who has lectured in Political Science at Wellesley College and Queen's University, is making a structure study of the Canadian Nurses' Association. She has been visiting individual associations across Canada, studying their purposes and functions, and is at present in Charlottetown.

Mrs. Grace Gregory of Saint John, is visiting Keppoch Beach as guest of Mrs. N. H. DeBlais.

Miss Mary Hill, Dietician at the Prince Edward Island Hospital staff, is holidaying in Amherst, Nova Scotia, and Tadoussac, Quebec.

Mrs. Stanley C. Thompson and her children, Diane and David, of Dartmouth, N. S., are spending the summer months at Stanhope Beach Inn.

Mrs. H. L. Bethune and Miss Catherine Bethune motored to Montreal with Mrs. C. Burbridge and Miss Patricia Burbridge. Mrs. Burbridge and her daughter had been guests of Mrs. Bethune for two weeks.

Miss Patricia Molyneux and Miss Nancy Ort, both of Toronto are holidaying in Charlottetown.

Miss Helen Copp of Saint John is visiting Mrs. E. F. Seller, Keppoch Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bourke and Mr. and Mrs. P. W. MacNeil are on a motor trip around the Cabot Trail.

Rev. John A. Coombs of Trinity Cathedral, Quebec City, is the guest of Miss H. D. McCollum, 2 Richmond St.

Mrs. Ralph Parker and Miss Amy Hyndman of Framingham, Mass., are visiting at the home of Mrs. Fulton Coffin, Mt. Edward Road.

On Tuesday evening, Mrs. H. W. Davidson entertained at a most enjoyable bridge party in honour of Mrs. Parker and Miss Hyndman at her home on Hillsborough St.

Mr. Robert M. Gordon and his wife of Chicago are visiting his mother, Mrs. I. Gordon, for a short time.

The many friends of Miss Harriet Gibbs will regret to hear of her illness in the P. E. I. Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Blair and young son of Ottawa are spending a holiday in Charlottetown, the guests of Mrs. Blair's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Milton.

Miss Helen Copp of Saint John, N. B., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sellar at their summer home, Keppoch.

The Misses Maud and Ada Haslam are spending a few weeks at Bedeque.

Mrs. H. J. Gordon has returned from Stanhope Beach Inn where she was a guest for the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rodd of Ottawa have arrived to spend the summer at Sidmouth.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stewart and Mr. Stanley Stewart are leaving today on return to their home in Brookline, while on the island, they were the guests of Mrs. Stewart's sister, Mrs. Wesley Bell, York Point.

Mrs. Glen Jenkins, the Misses Dorothy and Joyce Jenkins of Georgetown, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Jenkins, Summerside, on Wednesday.

How Can I!!!

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I keep cooking sauces, custards, and the like, stirred automatically? A. While these foods are cooking, drop a large clean marble in to the vessel. It will roll and bob around, keeping the contents thoroughly stirred.

Q. How can I select a good paring knife? A. Be sure, when buying a paring knife, to select one with the blade running through the center of the handle and held by rivets. It is the stronger kind.

Q. What is a good filling for green peppers or tomatoes? A. Use either leftover rice or macaroni mixed with cooked meat. Cook for only about 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

That Body Of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

MUSCLE SPASM HEADACHE

A middle-aged woman had a pain at back of her neck, and as it felt more painful at the level of the ear, she consulted an ear-and-throat specialist. As he could find nothing wrong in the ear, he suggested that she was holding her head too rigid because of emotional disturbances. She then consulted an x-ray specialist who, after taking films and finding nothing wrong, suggested nerves as the cause.

She then consulted a general physician and he, after examination and finding no cause, also knowing the patient and her background, likewise believed the head and neck ache to be caused by the nerves as he knew she brooded about various things.

What about an ache at back of head and neck; could it be caused by the emotions as suggested by these physicians?

In Archives of Otolaryngology (ear and throat) Dr. Ralph W. Stevens (Walla Walla, Wash.) states that the commonest type of chronic headaches encountered in the back of the head is caused by prolonged contraction (holding head in one position for a long time) of the muscles of the head and neck. Holding the head in the one position causes the development of hard nodules (lumps) causing spasm in the muscles back of neck.

Symptoms arising from these nodules or lumps cause one-sided headache in the front and side of forehead, sensation of heaviness in the back upper teeth (molars or grinders), deep pain in the eye or just above the eye, nausea and vomiting. The pain is usually steady, does not pulsate but does not interfere with sleep. The onset is usually in the morning and usually lasts for a few days, but may last for years.

Emotional tension is the commonest cause of muscle spasm headache. What about treatment of this type of headache? Dr. Stevens states that physical therapy (heat, electricity, massage) is the best treatment as it helps circulation of the blood in these back of neck muscles and so prevents or helps to break up these hardened muscle fibers causing the spasm.

While procaine injections usually give immediate relief as they do in other conditions of strain or tension of muscles, Dr. Stevens states that procaine injections are not without danger and should be used only in early, very painful cases.

ELLEN'S DIARY

By An Island Farmer's Wife

"I'm not complaining at all, Ellen. Oh no, its grateful I am that we made so much headway — and had no accidents at the haying this week. All the same, we could have done without yesterday's rain, don't you think?" James remarked. We were at breakfast then, Jamie occupying his father's place at the table. Granddaughter, refreshed by her night's rest had just come in, quietly on bare feet, an inquiring look in her eyes, which asked as plainly as words: "Is he still here?" and turned to a pleased smile when she found everything as she had desired it. "The hay-barn is full" Jamie offered, looking up from his porridge. "And we have a stack up by the line-fence" granddaughter nodded, adding "that should help!" "And there'll be other haying days" we commented, mind straying into a future beyond the week-end, which opened fresh pages of living, soon a brand new week of them. "There-haps!" James replied with a smile. "At any rate as I said, we may be thankful to have saved so much and got along without mishap. It is easy to come by an accident these days — let gearing break, or one suffer a fall!" Thankful for saved hay and no seasonal misfortune, were we? Ay, and a multitude of blessings besides: For the happy family at breakfast — the food enjoyed of those who in sun and breeze on the green slopes beyond the open door — the lit and joy and participation of this invigorating rain-washed day.

All week the farmers and their households have been taken up with the joys and disappointments of the haying — the fine sunny weather which could only mean progress, the showery days bringing its temporary suspension. And what has it meant to us — what was it like at Alderlea? Farmers, calling the team from pasture in the morning for their measures of grain... searching hurriedly for some elusive wrench or "that there bolt" to make some minor repairs to hay-gearing... hay-knives sharpening... hoses hitched... mowers hauled... tractor active... hay-loader sending up flakes to the builder... laden wagons... cables creaking... sweat-stained workers... cooling drinks... healthy appetites... smiles... banter... happy faces — this bound about the sphere that is our world of valley and stream and upland was this week's haying. Grateful? Yes. But not forgetful of those who by sorrowful incident or unexpected happening did not find their week so full of blessings, beauty and contentment as have we at Alderlea. We sympathize with these... and mourn. But for them, there remain still "Hours of loving memory."

"The song of lark, the blush of dawn, The heart of a rose, the day newborn. The scent of the brier and clover sweet, Leaves crisp dusting under feet. The bluebells underneath the trees, And new mown hay upon the breeze, Lupins in a rainbow mist, And marigolds the sun has kissed. The cool sweet breath of summer rain, The quiet sleep that follows pain, The glory of the sky and sea, And hours of loving memory. The smile of a child, the hand of a friend, And life anew when this shall end. The joy of conquest after stress, And days of quiet happiness. We thank Thee, Lord, for all of these."

Until Monday — Diary — Good-night...

Line your salad bowl with crisp lettuce leaves and endive or Romaine. Fill with salmon mixture and garnish around edge with sliced radishes, slivers of dill pickle, sliced cucumber, tomato and lemon wedges.

Q. My husband, who is a physician, has on occasion been mistakenly introduced as Mr. Johnson. Would it be proper for him to correct this error or to ignore it?

A. No; he should sit in the center, at the side—the most important speaker of the affair at his right.

Q. When introducing two men, would it be proper to say, "Mr. Baker, this is my friend, Mr. Harris?"

A. This would be rather tactless, as it implies that Mr. Baker is not your friend.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Two Beaux

'Old Maid' Of 28 Faces Dilemma

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a great opportunity that a number of old maids desiring a husband would like. This is my problem. I have been going with two men, both 29, and both have asked to marry me. I have reached the point where I long for a home and husband but how can I choose between them? Sam is very nice, has an important position and is active in social and religious affairs. However, judging from his past, I don't think he would ever be willing to settle down to just me. Ted has a good job, is a good dancer, and although we have frequent quarrels they usually end up with me getting my own way. Should I try to prove if one loves me more than the other or should I forget the whole thing until I'm sure I'm in love? I am now 28. MAE

ANSWER: Shame on you, Mae, for thinking you're an old maid at 28. "Career Girl" is the accepted designation for modern maidens, and is nothing to apologize for. There are worse fates, indeed, than being an unmarried woman with your independence and your own pay check.

MARRIAGE HAS ITS DRAWBACKS

On the other hand, there is no fate worse than being a miserable wife. Consider carefully before you decide to leap into matrimony to avoid single blessedness. Both your beaux have their good points, judging from your letter, but since you can't decide which you love, I'd say don't love either, and the best course to take is wait for Mr. Positively Right!

You wouldn't want your marriage to be a constant worry over a philanderer, or a constant squabble—which won't always end up in your favor! Why not give yourself the absence treatment. Take a vacation and see if that doesn't resolve your problem!

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am 23 years old, have been married seven years and have two lovely children. My husband is in the air force. One of my girl friends came to stay with me and every time we go to the movies my next door neighbor circulates a rumor that we're going to meet some boys. I love my husband very much and wouldn't think of going out with other men. Do you think I should stay home and never go out or should I go ahead to the movies and let my neighbor talk?

ANSWER: There is no menace worse than a snoopy neighbor who gloats in tearing reputations to shreds. You can't even outwit them by staying home with locked doors, for even then they'll make up horrendous tales of what goes on behind your drawn blinds. As long as you have a competent person to look after your youngsters there is certainly no harm in going out with girl friends. If your neighbor's gossip becomes slanderous, you might have a court case against her. Otherwise, just ignore it.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 15 years old and going with a man 29. His mother is against any girl he goes with and is trying to separate us. Now even my father has turned against my boy friend. B. H.

ANSWER: You are much too young to marry anyone, especially a man twice your age. Go out to dances and movies with boys from school and have a few years fun before you settle down.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column.
