—Mr. Abbott, in an interview, said it was up to the French government to provide basic installations such as hangars and runways to NATO specifications.

—Reports of "difficulties and frustrations" encountered by Canadians at the French base were contained in a dispatch from overseas Wednesday by Ross Munro, assistant publisher of the Vancouver Province reporting for the Southern News Service. He said some of the conditions were "on a scandal" and that the air station would be a "constant cost for years to come."

—Mr. Abbott agreed the French government did not do a good job in building the station.

—"It is one of the things you get in an alliance," he commented. "I am sure they will fix it up."

Price Considers West Prince Ferry Service Feasible

—Mr. John H. Price, Conservative candidate for the first district of Prince, was the special speaker at a largely attended meeting in the Alberton Institute Hall last night. Mr. J. W. Don Campbell, M.L.A., presided and introduced the speaker.

Dealings with issues of local importance Mr. Price said he had investigated the problems of the proposed West Point ferry service to the mainland and considered it entirely feasible and that it would be of great benefit to the farmers and fishermen of Prince County as well as to tourists, many more of whom would visit the western part of the Island if a boat crossing was available at this point.

He also considered that the fishermen had not received much consideration when the new lobster fishery regulations were brought in shortly after the opening of the season on P. E. Island.

Regarding issues of national importance Mr. Price criticized the government for high taxes, and the waste and extravagance of the rearmament program which, he said, could be continued at its present level with an estimated saving of over two million dollars.

Other speakers included Mr. J. W. Don Campbell, M.L.A., and Mr. Hubert Gaudet, M.L.A., of Tignish.

Police Probe

Continued from page 1. fication struggle to represent seamen on Hall Corporation ships. Some 240 seamen on 15 of the company's ships are balloting for their choice of union under a vote ordered by the federal labor relations board.

The vote, started Friday, is expected to continue for several days and results will not be known for 10 days.

One Ship Tied Up Capt. McMaster said one Hall ship, the George Hindman, is tied up in Montreal, picketed by the SIU.

He said the SIU wanted the men to join their union, and told the crew Tuesday to leave the ship. Previously the ship had no union affiliation.

He said his union had represented sailors on the company's ships for 15 years, and had contracts with the management.

An official of the SIUM said his union had no comment.

Let's Talk It Over

Most of us behave a little bit differently when we have "company." When speaking to other members of the family, our tones acquire a dulcet quality not normally present. We don't swear and kick at the cat when she gets underfoot. We say, "nice pussy" and lift her gently to some remote spot where the traffic is less congested.

Senior gets the sugar treatment, too, and has been known to take advantage of such a situation. In short, we are "on parade" and naturally anxious to have the "buttons and boots" of family behavior nicely polished and shined.

In these vacation days of July and August, with so many tourists from other lands in our midst, Prince Edward Island might also be said to have "company." Perhaps we should make some effort to raise the quality of our behavior on highways and in public places.

Being extra careful to dim our lights when meeting cars on the highway, for example. Stopping on the road to render "good Samaritan" assistance to motorists waylaid by the deflation or engine mishap. Courteous and cheerful help to those seeking information about localities or specific services.

Such little acts of consideration impress strangers and help to make them want to come back. By all means, let us be on our good behavior when we have "company."

The visitors also scored all their runs with two away. Donnie Simmons drove home Landry with a single in the third inning after Landry had been moved into scoring position on Doucette's base knock.

Doucette, Gay and Simmons scored in the fourth frame. Doucette was safe at first on a fielders choice and then Delaney struck out to put two men away. Gay continued the rally with a single sending Doucette to third. Both runners scored when Caron threw low to first in attempting to retire Simmons. Simmons later scored on Kennedy's error.

Bun Hood made the only extra base hit of the game, a double in the third inning. He also had a busy night at field handling eight chances without an error.

Fire Destroys Barns At Alberton

—Fire last evening completely destroyed a large barn and several smaller adjoining buildings owned by Mr. James Smith, Alberton.

The fire was not noticed until the flames had broken through the roof and were racing through the building and only quick action on the part of the Alberton Fire Brigade saved the nearby dwelling, the shingles of which were smoking from the intense heat.

A continuous spray of chemicals from the fire truck was played on the roof and walls of the house and prevented the flames from spreading. Fortunately no wind was blowing at the time or it is doubtful if the home could have been saved.

Several smaller pieces of machinery and harness and other equipment in the barn was lost. Cause of the fire is not known.

Author Hilaire Belloc Dies In England

By JOHN DUDMAN GUILFORD, England (Reuters) Hilaire Belloc, 82, last of a generation of giants of English literature, died Thursday.

The French-born author, who lived, wrote and argued with gusto in the land of his adoption, fell against a heater Sunday in his home and was badly burned. An emergency operation could not save him.

He left his own epitaph, the oft-quoted epitaph: "In verse I may be said."

"When I am dead, I hope it may be said: 'His sins were scarlet, but his books were red.'"

Belloc wrote 150 books from the time he was 25 until his retirement in 1942, when his only son, Peter was killed in action in the second World War. Visitors to Hilaire's grave see a simple figure walking out of doors wearing a black, monk-like robe spattered with candle grease.

Wrote By Candlelight He always wrote by candlelight. He turned out countless articles, books, biographies, essays, travel tales, poems and novels.

His greatest friend was G. K. Chesterton, his greatest enemy H. G. Wells. Belloc was a devout Roman Catholic. He looked upon the Reformation, which turned England Protestant, as a "catastrophe" which put the church's mission in the hands of a new phylaxery.

His most blistering argument was with Wells came in the 1920s when the latter published his "Outline of History" with its materialistic, scientific view of man's creating and development.

Belloc thundered away at Wells' views on platforms and in the Catholic newspapers. In verse Belloc was a liberal member of Parliament for four years, but gave it up because he was disgusted with the party system which he contemptuously called "the machine." It became the target of his scathing pen.

He wrote a monumental history of England in several volumes, history of France, biographies of Marlborough, Louis XIV, Marie Antoinette and Charles II.

His travel books won a devoted following, especially "The Path to Rome," which he wrote after walking to Rome from Toul, the French garrison town where he served in the artillery as a young man.

In 1934 Pope Pius XI conferred on him the Grand Cross of the Order of St. Gregory the Great for his services to catholicism as a writer.

Coldwell Speaks In Glace Bay

By Kingsley Brown, Jr. Canadian Press Staff Writer SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—M. J. Coldwell asserted Thursday night that Canada's steel industry is cut of step with other industries and should be nationalized.

The CCF leader, speaking in a waterfront dance palace where 300 coal miners and steel workers honored and stamped their boots, censured the steel industry for what he claimed was looking after its shareholders instead of expanding to meet the demands of the country.

His particular target was the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation which employs or has control of about 15,000 Nova Scotia coal miners and steel workers, most of them in this industrial area of Cape Breton Island.

Making his fourth and final speech of his Maritime election campaign tour in this strongly socialist centre, Mr. Coldwell said DOSCO could, through expansion and all-around improvement of efficiency, make a big step in solving the "chronic unemployment problem in the Maritimes."

He said DOSCO had undertaken some new construction in recent years. But the equipment installed was "obsolete."
