Funk!

It is significant that the "organs" have little or nothing to say in defence of the Government. There has yet been no reasonable explanation of the shortage of nearly five thousand dollars in the land office. Complete silence is maintained in respect to the illegal appointment of four members of the Legislature as Trustees for the Hospital for the Insane, and the consequent vacation of the seat of one of them, if not of all. Nothing whatever is said about the garbling of the report of the Committee of public accounts. Scarce an attempt has been made to defend the robbery of the franchise rights of the Dominion officials. Silence is continued in respect to the mortgage vote outrage. The crookedness of the King's County gerrymander is equalled only by the muteness of the organs respecting it. In short, the policy of the Government is a policy of funk. In respect to any and every one of these matters they dare not fight it out like men. Their acts are indefensible, and they know it.

The Redistribution Bill.

The discussion of the Redistribution Bill introduced by Sir John Thompson is gradually convincing fair-minded and reasonable men that it is not an unjustifiable measure. That it might have been more favorable to the Opposition party may be admitted. But it will also be admitted that it might have been made more favorable to the Government. The Patriot's strongest argument against it is that it is opposed by the independent press. But this argument is not conclusive, even if the statement were true. The independent press is not always independent and is not always right. We have in this Province "independent" newspapers (so-called) which have never yet described or denounced the enormities and monstrosities of the reserved bill. As a rule, "independent newspapers" are, like "independent politicians," "independent humbugs." The Patriot's reliance upon them in respect to the Redistribution Bill, only proves that the Patriot is hard up for a good solid ground of complaint against the bill. "The simple truth," says the Montreal Gazette, "is that the Government has scrupulously refrained from making any changes that would expose them to the reproach of gerrymandering.'

Notes and Comments.

—The Government of Quebec have not this year given to the newspaper correspondents in attendance upon the Quebec legislature the usual box of stationery. Economy!

—Mr. L. H. Davies is very anxious about that reserved bill. He asked yesterday, again, for information concerning it. If the railway men and others were only disfranchised and Mr. Peters secure in his public office, Mr. Davies would be consoled.

—The words of Walt Whitman, "I sound my barbaric yawp over the roofs of the world," might, says the Montreal Gazette, be transformed by Sir Richard Cartwright into the statement, "I sound my national wail over Britain, Canada and the United States."

—"How They Rage," exclaims the Patriot as the protests of the people against the rascalities of the Peters-McLean-Farquharson combination are heard. Yes. They rage. They are commanded to be angry and sin not; and if ever there was a time for the people to rage righteously it is when an attempt is made behind closed doors to deprive them of their political rights and neutralize their political influence upon the government of the country.

—While the Dominion Government seems disposed to encourage the farmers in the building of silos it would be well to advise them, in order to save disappointment, rather to spare a few dollars more in their construction than to put up a cheap structure that will not keep out the frost. Mr. Greig, member for Chateauguay, recommends one that is extensively used in his county. The outside wall is composed of two thicknesses of plank with one or two linings of tar paper between. The inner wall is of plank tongued and grooved, and there is a space of eight inches between the two walls. It is almost impossible for the frost to penetrate, especially if the fodder has been properly cut and packed so as to exclude the air. It is said that the whole cost of such a silo is about $46, and that every farmer who has built one has found it so profitable that he has added more afterwards. At the present time, when the silo is just being introduced, it is essential that it should be in every respect a complete success.

—A member of the House of Commons cables the New York Herald from London anent Lord Salisbury's Hastings speech that "What you will now see is a most determined movement in favor of duties on certain imports from the United States and other countries. It may not succeed just yet, but it is a winning policy, for the great bulk of the working classes are resolved to have it. Let your farmers of the west and your business men take note of the fact." The reports show that Lord Salisbury's pronouncement has created a most profound impression, and that the trade question is not likely to obscure many minor issues at the ensuing elections. It is idle to state that these views do not find strong support among the commercial and industrial classes, for the united chambers of commerce of Great Britain have already by resolution declared for tariff discrimination in favor of the colonies. The London despatches which we publish in this issue furnish conclusive evidence that the people, as well as the politicians, are becoming fully alive to the importance of the issue."

—Under the title of "From Tideway to Tideway," Rudyard Kipling has recently furnished readers of the London Times with a graphic account of his trip across the continent by the C. P. R. One incident of the journey is thus related:

"Then a fellow-traveller spoke, as many others had done, on the possibilities of Canadian union with the United States; and his language was not the language of Mr. Goldwin Smith. It was brutal in places. Summarised it came to a pronounced objection to have anything to do with a land rotten before it was ripe, a land with seven million negroes as yet unwelded into the population, their race-type unevolved, and rather more than crude notions on murder, marriage and honesty. "We've picked up their ways of politics," he said, mournfully. "That comes of living next door to them; but I don't think we're anxious to mix up with their other messes. They say they don't want us. They keep on saying it. There's a nigger on the fence somewhere, or they wouldn't lie about it."

"But does it follow that they are lying?"

"Sure. I've lived among 'em. They can't go straight. There's some dam fraud at the back of it."

From this belief he could not be shaken. He had lived among them—perhaps had been bested in trade. Let them keep themselves and their manners and customs to their own side of the line.

This is very sad and chilling. It seemed quite otherwise in New York, where Canada was represented as a ripe plum ready to fall into Uncle Sam's mouth when he should open it. The Canadian has no special love for England—the mother of colonies has a wonderful gift for alienating the affections of her own household by neglect—but, perhaps, he loves his own country.

His Grace the Archbishop of Halifax arrived here last evening, and left for Rustico to-day, accompanied by his Lordship Bishop Macdonald.

News Notes.

It is said that 1,200 lives were lost by the great storm on the Island of Mauritius.

A new action is to be taken by the Quebec Government against Pacaud for recovery of that $100,000.

A despatch from Peoria says the entire Illinois valley is a scene of desolation, and that there is no hope of a corn crop this season.

The Cincinnati Enquirer gives it as "a living, indisputable fact" that the Minneapolis convention will nominate James G. Blaine for the Presidency.

A despatch from Lagos says that the Jebus made a sacrifice of two hundred peopeople, including many maidens, in order to propitiate the goda prior to battling with the British.

Pirates, it seems, still occasionally infest the waters of the Mediterranean. A few weeks ago the captain of a Spanish vessel was assailed off the Riff coast by a boat containing thirteen Moors, who fired on her and ordered the captain to lower his sails. Finally they boarded the vessel and took her in tow and when near land took the captain ashore and began to unload the cargo. The vessel drifting, the captain was permitted to get aboard in order to bring her back to anchorage, but he seized the opportunity to order his men to hoist sail. A Moor who was aboard managed to jump into the ship's boat, cut the painter and get ashore. The Moors fired some shots, wounding one sailor in the thigh. The owner of the cargo was left in Morocco. Even the effects of a female passenger were ransacked.

Special Despatches to The Examiner.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

House of Commons.

Newfoundland and P. E. Island Matte s.

Mr. Davies as a Catechist.

Ottawa, May 26.

In the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Davies asked as to the correctness of the information published in the press regarding a temporary settlement of the difficulties between the Dominion and Newfoundland. Hon. Mr. Foster replied that the negotiations were now going on between the two governments and that there was reason to believe that the same would be satisfactorily disposed of at an early period. The Government had information from Newfoundland that they would return to the terms which existed between Canada and the Island prior to 1889, pending further negotiations

Mr. Davies—Will any new legislation be introduced to make such legal?

Sir John Thompson—It may not be necessary to do so, seeing that the act was put in force by proclamation.

Mr. Davies—Any communication received to be made public?

Sir John Thompson—The proposition made by Canada that the status quo should be adhered to has been accepted by Newfoundland. There will be further communication on the matter.

Mr. Davies—Have any steps been taken in regard to the union of both countries?

Sir John Thompson—No recent steps.

Mr. Davies—Has anything been done in regard to the bill from the Province of P. E. Island which the Lieut.-Governor refused to assent to?

Sir John Thompson—I was in receipt of information from the Lieut.-Governor that he would desire to transmit his reasons which made him refuse giving assent to the bill, and I replied that it was desirable that he should do so. To-day I received a communication in regard to the matter, and I will inform the hon. gentleman concerning the policy of the Government in the matter early next week.

The House then went into committee on the criminal law bill.
