Milt Schmidt Heads Coaches

By KEN MACPHAIL

The school for hockey coaches and officials, which will be held here next Wednesday and Thursday, January 4th and 5th, is shaping up to be one of, if not the finest, of its kind ever to be staged in Prince Edward Island.

The school, which is sponsored by the Division of Physical Education of this province, in co-operation with the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association, is to be honored this year by the presence of Milt Schmidt, former coach of the Boston Bruins of the NHL, and a man who was a member of one of the most potent forward lines the game has ever known, the Kraut line. Along with Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer, they terrorized the National League in the forties, and the acquisition of Schmidt for the position of chief instructor at the clinic, is to be lauded by all concerned in particular, and everyone in general.

The seminar kicks off at 9:30 Wednesday morning, when registration will take place at the Y.M.C.A. Dave Boswell, Director of Physical Education for P.E.I., will give the introductory address, and every aspect of the game of hockey will have been covered thoroughly by Schmidt and his staff by the time the school winds up at the Forum, late Thursday afternoon.

Assisting Milt in the training sessions will be the following talent-local people: Wes "Bucko" Trainer, former member of the New York Rangers of the NHL; Dave Boswell, who is a former coach of Stanstead College in Quebec and Ashbury College in Ottawa; Brian Lewis, an official of the Maritime Amateur Hockey Association; and Jack "Spiz" Ready, who is presently coaching Prince of Wales College in the Charlottetown and District Junior Hockey League.

Those persons who'll be undergoing the training, are asked to make sure they have their skates and sticks with them for the ice sessions.

RECOLLECTIONS

Looking back over the year which ends at midnight tonight, we find many outstanding achievements in the wonderful world of sport, and, of course, there are always the tragedies.

The untimely death of Champagne Tony Lema in an airplane crash was a stunning blow to the world of golf. Tony was one of the favorites on the professional tour, and his passing left a void in the game which will never be refilled. The retirement of Sandy Koufax, although not as tragic as a death, seemed to us at the time to be almost as serious. Sandy was a brilliant mound strategist, one of the best ever, and his loss couldn't have been a worse blow to the Los Angeles Dodgers, who will be fortunate indeed to finish in the first section of the National Baseball League in 1967, without the services of the superb southpaw who won 27 games for them in 1966.

Cassius Clay defended his world heavyweight title a record number of times, and Canada's George Chuvalo was the only man who was able to remain on his feet for the entire 15 rounds against the smoothie from Louisville, Kentucky. If there's a fighter in the world who can take Muhammad, he hasn't come along as yet, and the feeling here is that the gaseous one will amass more slughters in 1967.

The Montreal Canadiens were Stanley Cup champions the past year, but don't look for them in the winner's circle in the new year, because the team which once invoked fear in the hearts of their opponents has lost something, and unless they find it early in '67, they've had it. The Saskatchewan Roughriders won the Grey Cup in November, and that has to rank as the upset of the year in Canadian sport. They weren't given a chance against Ottawa and Russ Jackson, but they came on like gang busters, and won the game and the cup with little trouble.

THIS AND THAT

We've got a feeling that the Toronto Maple Leafs may be in a bit of difficulty tonight when they host the Chicago Black Hawks. Injuries have been wreaking havoc on the Leafs of late, and the loss of Johnny Bower will have a crippling effect on the sick club. We'll be happy if they can come up with a tie, and ecstatic if they can win it. This will be the TV game, by the way, and we figure that maybe a 2-3 draw would be a fair prediction. . . . New York is at Montreal in a game that should be a dandy, and with Red Gilbert, Bernie Geoffrion, and company flying high, the Habs could be in for a dismal evening. Let's say 5-2 for the Rangers. . . . Boston and Detroit will be waging a battle to find out who is currently the saddest team in the loop, and somehow we feel that the Wings are a trifle sadder. Make it 2-2 for the Bruins. . . . Vern Handranak has lost another game, making his record 4-5 in the Puerto Rican winter baseball league. Vern's ERA is now 2.83, and he's struck out 31 batters in 73 innings pitched. We'd like to take this opportunity to wish all our readers (both of you), a happy New Year and since we don't publish on Monday, we'll be back on Tuesday morning, heavy-eyed and droopy-tailed. Seems to take us longer to recover from these shindigs than it once did, but we'll try to have our brains unpickled by then. An Hevour.

Tough Birthday Party For Canadian National Team

By WALTER KREVENCHUK

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has arranged a tough birthday party for Canada's national team.

It has invited Russia, Czechoslovakia and the United States to a centennial tournament, a six-day round-robin which starts New Year's Day.

The Czechs and Russians have been bullying Canadian clubs for some five years now, relegating the birthplace of hockey to also-ran status in world amateur ranks.

But there are signs of change and the tournament should sketch a clear picture of Canada's hopes in the 1967 world championships in Vienna.

The well-balanced Czechs, who open the tournament against Canada Sunday, rate a "strong" tag from the experts. But the word from Moscow is that the defending world champion Soviet team, which tackles the U.S. Monday, has problems.

Vadim Krivonoz, sports commentator for Novosti press agency, reporting on a recent four-game series in which Russia permitted 17 goals by Sweden and Czechoslovakia, said the defence—have lost speed.

Soviet replacements come from the country's B team; and that's where Canada's brighter future comes in.

In December, the Canadian Nationals swept the Soviet B squad 7-3, 5-2 and 6-1—a morale-boosting feat for a team that had beaten Russian opponents just once in 19 previous matches since 1963.

Vaclav Nedomansky, powerfully-built Czech centre on New York Rangers National Hockey League roster listed, appraised Canada this way:

"We feel they will be much better than last year"—when they lost 2-1 to Czechoslovakia and 3-0 to Russia in the world championships at Ljubljana, Yugoslavia.

U.S. HAS POOR RATING

The Americans, who tangle with Canada Tuesday, rate low on the totem pole after five defeats and a draw in six meetings with their northern counterpart.

Canada's nationals gained strength in December with the arrival of Carl Brewer, a veteran NHL defenceman who was released by the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Adjusting promptly to the techniques of rearguard partners Gary Begg, Jack Bonanza, Paul Conlin, Barry MacKenzie, and Terry O'Malley, Brewer collected 10 points in five games.

The most obvious improvement for Canada has been in the primary art of forechecking, as efficiently practiced by veterans Roger Bourbonnais, Ray Cadieux, Gary Dineen and Marshall Johnston.

If that checking stands up, it could sturd the Soviet fortunes, precision passing between forwards highly-trained in positional hockey.

But the biggest Canadian success story is Billy MacMillan, a 24-year-old forward from the smallest province.

A PROLIFIC SCORER

The Charlottetown kid, who forms a unit with Dianne and Jean Cusson of Quebec City, ramed home 18 goals as the Nationals collected 21 victories and two draws in their first 24 exhibition games.

Johnston, was knocked out of action with a broken toe earlier in the season but has since returned.

Imlach will have Bruce Gamble in goal with Al Smith called up from Victoria Maple Leafs as the backup netminder for Toronto's weekend games against Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers.

CHICAGO IN TORONTO

The Leafs are at home to Chicago in one of three games tonight. The others have New York at Montreal and Boston at Detroit. On Sunday, Toronto visits New York, Montreal is at Detroit and Boston is at Chicago.

A hockey game got going quickly when boys discovered a patch of ice in a field in the Toronto suburb of Don Mills. They cleared away the snow and the game went on for hours under the eerie light of street lamps. (CP Wirephoto)

Packers And Dallas Run Through Final Practices

DALLAS (CP)— Dallas Cowboys have been pretending to play it cool in the face of their National Football League title game against Green Bay Packers Sunday, but fullback Don Perkins Friday let the cat out of the bag.

"I don't think we're so relaxed," he said. "We've been fighting this thing for a week and a half. I think it stirs us a little when we read that we are underdogs. We'll all be glad when Sunday is here. We've been thinking about it for weeks. Time is dragging."

The Cowboys, who are one-touchdown underdogs, and the Packers are probably thinking about the money they can make by winning. Each winning player collects $8,600 and gets a crack at a $15,000 payoff in the Super Bowl game against the American Football League champion Jan. 15 in Los Angeles. Losing players Sunday each collect $7,500.

It's difficult to be relaxed in Dallas this weekend anyway.

Football is at a fever pitch with two big games scheduled. Today's Cotton Bowl game between Southern Methodist University and University of Georgia has been sold out for more than a week. So has Sunday's NFL game.

That means all 75,304 seats in the Cotton Bowl, site of both games, will be filled two days in a row.

RIGHTS COSTLY

The NFL game, starting at 1 p.m. EST, will be televised nationally in Canada on the CBC network and in the United States by CBS, which shelled out $2,000,000 for broadcasting rights.

But the Dallas area is blacked out and 7,500 tickets for a charity showing of the game on closed-circuit television in the Municipal Auditorium have already been snapped up.

The forecast called for rain for today's Georgia-SMU game, but the outlook was for clear, cold weather Sunday, and the possibility of a damp field Sunday.

Dallas defeated Cleveland Browns 26-14 Nov. 24.

day favored the Packers, who like to punch it out on the ground with an occasional quick air thrust by quarterback Bart Starr.

Dallas bases its attack around swift Bob Hayes, Don Meredith's throwing arm and the pass catching and running of Dan Reeves.

Perkins, who insists he will retire at the end of the season in favor of a job with the state of New Mexico, said he feels the game will be down to each defensive squad's ability to contain the other's offense.

REACTION SWIFT

"They are the quickest reacting team in the league on defence," he said of the Packers. "They are all big, agile men in the front line. Their linebackers are tough to move out."

"To win, we're going to have to play like we did against Cleveland — don't give up the ball, move it, control the football and make no errors."

Dallas defeated Cleveland Browns 26-14 Nov. 24.

The Packers, defending champions, left their training camp in Tulsa Friday morning and hustled right out to a high school field for drills as soon as they hit Dallas. Their work-outs in Tulsa have been handicapped by freezing weather and snow all week.

Both teams were due to loosen up with light practice sessions today.

Bills And Chiefs Up For Match

BUFFALO (CP)—Everybody is talking about the weather but coaches Joe Collier of Buffalo Bills and Hank Stram of Kansas City Chiefs don't plan to do anything about it as they put the final touches on their teams' plays for the American Football League title game Sunday.

"I can tell you what it will be like," said Collier Friday. "I don't believe the temperature will be over 20 and I know the field will be frozen. That's the way it usually is in Buffalo this time of year."

The United States weather bureau went along with Collier's forecast Friday, calling for snow flurries Saturday with temperatures ranging from a low of five degrees to a high of 20, through most of northern New York state.

Sunday's game, starting at 1 p.m. EST, will be televised nationally by NBC with the Buffalo area blacked out. Neither the CBC nor CTV television networks plan to carry the game nationally in Canada.

HUNTERS' CORNER

The Close Of A Sad Bird Hunting Year

When this column appears in print the old year 1966 will have just closed and the new year 1967 is standing by, ready to take over. Old 1966 will go down on the record books as the year our local black ducks practically faded out of the hunting picture. The sixty-five dollar question at the moment is: "Will they ever make a comeback?" Time, and time alone, has the answer to that question. This past season they were hunted as if each duck had a bounty of fifty dollars on its head. I overheard one hunter bragging that there were three blacks in his area and he shot two the opening day and managed to get the last one a few days before the season closed.

Even the big Northern Red-legged blacks were down to practically skeleton numbers. A few years ago they would be "rafted" in Tracadie Bay and the East River in thousands. A close season, under our present set-up, would be about as effective as a fifth wheel on a wagon. Natural causes take their yearly toll and it is not light by any stretch of the imagination.

In 1965 this columnist fired three shots — one at a Goshawk that was playing havoc with the ruffed grouse — active partridge to most of us — and two at wild-geese. I was lucky and made three clean kills. This past year I never had a shotgun in hand except to oil it — to date that is. I could have picked up my quota of blacks and teal this past hunting season but didn't want the memory to haunt me in the days that lie ahead.

ONE ARREST

I was asked the question a few days ago as to how many convictions our three newly appointed game wardens had garnered in this past year. I stated I knew of one only and that was where the two hunters advertised their feat, in all innocence naturally. Watch your step boys in future. If a Goshawk, hen hawk to most, or great horned owl makes love to your hens or ducks — or geese for that matter — just wave him a cheery "Soldiers Farewell" and let it go at that. Or her if it is one of the opposite sex. If you have to shoot to kill in order to protect and save your poultry don't tell anyone — not even your wife.

The Game Act prohibits hunting on Sunday and yet I have heard more guns popping on a Sunday than any other two days of the week. This columnist has always contended that game wardens should be appointed by a commission and exempt from political interference. There must be some reason for the lack of prosecutions, or near lack.

Old time hunters have told me that they have never before, not in their lives, witnessed such promiscuous shooting by the majority of gunners. Anything that moved, or flew, was the target for a barrage of shots — crows, gulls, shore birds, song birds or what have you in the wildlife field. A swimming muskrat was a real treat and left to rot in the water. There were practically no ducks to shoot at and it appears they had to fire at something.

22 RIFLES

The feeling has been expressed that game officers on their rounds should check on juvenile hunters in the nine and ten year bracket. Carrying 22 cal rifles they shoot at anything that moves with no parent or guardian in sight. There have been several near misses reported. This type of rifle should be barred as a hunting weapon and restricted to target use only. It was the Fish and Game Association who were instrumental in having the twenty-two placed in the game weapon category and the first move in this direction should come from the Fish and Game members. Why wait until there is a fatality, due to the use of such a weapon, in the hunting realm. This columnist fought this move for years but a majority vote at a meeting years ago won out. One lone member was responsible for sponsoring such a move. Why wait any longer — act now before it's a moot. As the Old Year of 1966 fades out of the picture and young 1967 takes over I wish all readers of this column a Happy and Prosperous New Year.
