

Suggest One Medical Ass'n

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—Formation of one Canadian Medical Association to include both English and French-speaking doctors was suggested at a closing session of the annual meeting of the Quebec division of the Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. C. H. Burns of Winnipeg, CMA president, said Friday night he hopes that soon there will be one national medical association rather than two at present. Dr. J. A. Blain, president of l'Association Canadienne des Medecins de Langue Francaise, said proposals for unification would have to be studied carefully by both associations.

Important Role Of Public Health Nurse

It is generally conceded at the present time that the mental health of any community is the inescapable responsibility of the Health Department. As a result, programmes for both treatment and prevention of mental illness are gradually being built up all across the country. In this work the public health nurse has a definite part to play. Indeed she has always taken an active part in the prevention of disease and the promotion of health, both physical and mental.

The public health nurse is the person on the staff of the Health Department who is closest to the people. Her work carries her into the homes and the schools. She gets to know people as they are in their everyday lives. She sees their actual living conditions. She learns to understand their problems and to recognize their nursing needs. She is often the first to be aware of a health problem and is in a particularly good position to deal with situations whose early solution contributes to mental health.

Even where no health problem exists, the public health nurse is constantly giving advice on the care and training of children. At Child Health Conferences and classes for expectant mothers, she has a unique opportunity and responsibility to encourage healthy attitudes. Here she helps parents to understand the needs of children for security, for affection, and for developing according to their own individual patterns. Because of her knowledge of normal growth and development, she can reassure the anxious mother and give encouragement and support where needed.

The public health nurse is a link between the home and the school. She works in the schools as a health consultant to the teachers and should be able to assist them in understanding the behaviour of their pupils, so that they in turn may be able to work with parents on behalf of the children. It is the function of the public health nurse to educate and this applies to all phases of health.

The public health nurse should be aware of the emotional problems of such groups in the community as the chronically ill, the crippled, the mentally retarded, and other handicapped persons. She should find time to listen to their problems with the aim of helping them and she should be able to interpret these problems to their families. This will help bring about better understanding between the two. Better understanding promotes good personal relationships, and this is mental health.

MANURE AND FERTILIZER—Despite the increased yield of potatoes per acre when 2,500 pounds of fertilizer is used, it is the opinion of Mr. W. N. Black, Experimental Farm, that manure applied to the soil in the fall at the rate of 10 tons per acre and plowed down is superior. According to a report from the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, the report of Mr. Black covering 8 illustration stations shows that the manure when supplemented by 1,500 pounds of commercial fertilizer (5-10-10) not only increases the yield but also increases the succeeding crops of clover and timothy. The report states that apparently this combination gives the most economical returns.

FOLLOWS CRITICISM
Announcement of the new civil anti-subversion agency came just one month after the inauguration of a new army-navy-air force security program aimed at keeping the armed forces free of security risks.
Both actions came in the wake of—though not specifically in response to—criticisms by Senator Joseph McCarthy of the way the government has handled alleged subversives.
The White House said the new division also will assist in expediting court cases involving denaturalization and deportation of subversives. Justice department officials said there have been 306 cases since Jan. 1, 1953, involving deportation and attempts to deport in the subversive field.
