

THEY SAY "Alcohol addiction is one of the most devastating factors contributing to juvenile delinquency and the breakdown of the home. The real threat to our freedom comes from within—the deterioration in moral values—the failure to discipline ourselves to decent and healthful living."

W.C.T.U. NOTES

Furnished by the Order of the Sons of Temperance Says Senator Richard L. Neuberger, writing in the magazine Railway Progress: I happen to be a nondrinker. I just don't happen to like it. I am a teetotaler. If I mention this at a party when I mention that a highball I'm invariably amazed at the number of others around me who seem to take courage and add, "I'd like tomato juice, too. I'm likewise a non drinker."

PEARSON'S IMPRESSIONS

This morning we asked Mr. Pearson what he felt about Russia, having had a good night's sleep since leaving it. He carefully made clear he had seen only a small portion and had been given special hospitality, but went on: "My chief impression is one of massive collective strength, energy and wealth along with individual deprivations. This is the great contrast. There is no doubt the individual deprivations and degrading. In the countryside I went through yesterday the little towns were well kept and neater than in many parts of Canada."

There is a group of strong and able men in charge who professed no other desire than to be left in peace to build up their country and solve their own problems—which are many. It is very difficult to doubt the sincerity of the ordinary people in their protest against war and the fear of war in a city like Stalingrad must be very real. I feel my visit was of extreme interest and very much worthwhile. I feel now in a very much better position to appreciate the source of Soviet power and the nature of Soviet policy and I hope they've learned a little more about western views and policies.

New High School Opened At Souris Last Evening

Dr. L. W. Shaw, Deputy Minister and Director of Education, was guest speaker at the official opening of the new Souris High School last evening which was largely attended. In the course of his address Dr. Shaw congratulated the people of Souris on the forward step they had taken in the erection of the school which should be looked upon as an investment. In referring to the two groups which would benefit by the school he said that the scholars and teachers alike would profit by the educational development which might be looked forward to. He stressed the necessity of close cooperation between the Home and School Association which should develop and expand along with the teaching staff.

John J. MacDonald, chairman of the Board of Trustees, presided at the meeting. In his remarks of welcome to the guests, he referred to the necessity of higher education and thanked the people who had made the new school possible. He expressed his thanks to Mr. Alex T. MacDonald, a former trustee for the splendid contribution he had made towards the project previous to his resigning from the Board. His Worship Mayor Bruce L. Stewart, speaking briefly, extended the welcome on behalf of the Town Council.

Other speakers were T. J. Kichham, M. P., Right Rev. J. A. Murphy, Rev. Mr. Sharp, W. A. Acorn, M. L. A., J. B. St. John, M.L.A. and H. T. Hynes, School Inspector in King's County who first visited Souris as Inspector 35 years ago. Hon. Keir Clark, Minister of Education, who cut the ribbon and declared the school officially opened, referred in words of the highest appreciation to the splendid contribution made in the past in the field of education from the Souris area and the part played completed. It had been the underlying anxiety of all the Russians in all the conversations but when Khrushchev is anxious he speaks out. Khrushchev also said flatly that so long as there was NATO there wouldn't be German unification, and he went on to assert in short words what Russian dialectics have been saying in fancier language. Mr. Pearson picked up the rules of summerhouse discussion very quickly and replied in language his host could clearly understand. If Russia did not like NATO she must remember she created it by making the United Nations a kind of laughing stock. If Russia wanted NATO to disappear she needed only to aid in creating peaceful conditions and the United Nations could then reassume its rightful position as the world's court of justice and peace.

Besides, said Mr. Pearson, after Khrushchev had contended NATO was warmongering, NATO was a purely defensive arrangement aimed only at preventing aggression. But Messrs Khrushchev and Bulganin must clearly understand that Canada would not slacken in defence measures concerted with our friends until the political situation made that possible. It was a two hour conversation, held between eight and ten in the evening after Mr. Pearson had made an exhausting trip by air from Moscow to Stalingrad where he viewed the destruction and reconstruction of that renowned city, and from there to the usually secret seaport of Sevastopol where he was shown the great panorama of the Crimean war and driven over the storied terrain of the battle of Balaclava: And from there

Peter Stays On

"A Man Called Peter," Twentieth Century-Fox's inspirational CinemaScope production about the life of Peter Marshall, a Scottish immigrant who became pastor of the famed "Church of Presidents" in Washington, D. C., and chaplain of the U. S. Senate before his untimely death, will be held over for three extra days at the Prince Edward Theatre. Richard Todd is starred in the title role and Jean Peters co-stars as his wife Catherine. Praise for the production, rich in spiritual qualities and warm in its telling of a poignant love story, has been unstinted. Henry Koster directed, Samuel G. Engel produced, and the supporting cast is headed by Marjorie Rambeau and Jill Esmond.
