John Matheson, Treasurer — Brother Wilfred Ferguson, Marshall — Bro. Archie Shaw, 1st Lecturer — Bro. Eric MacEachern, 2nd Lecturer — Bro. John MacEachern.

The newly elected officers were installed by Bro. M. Shaw. After the installation of the officers, a delicious goose supper was enjoyed by all.

RAINING FERTILIZER

170,000 acres of pasture land in New Zealand were fertilized by airplane sprayers in the summer of 1951.

The task of arm-waving orchestra conductors has been made lighter since someone dreamed up the idea of making batons of aluminum. This gave us the notion that aluminum built-fiddles would be a lot lighter to lug around. But, sure enough, someone had thought of that, too! Aluminum certainly lightens the load for lots of people these days—and in lots of ways.

To make more of this metal available Alcan is embarked on a further long-range expansion programme which will run to a quarter of a billion dollars. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

IN MEMORIAM

WILLIAM DONALD COOKE

On Friday, Nov. 2, many friends throughout the Province were saddened to learn that William Donald Cooke had passed away to his heavenly home after an illness of four months in the Prince Edward Island Hospital.

The deceased was born in York, the son of W. H. Pope Cooke and his wife, the late Gertrude Hodgson Currie.

During his lengthy illness, he was faithfully attended by his physicians, and tenderly cared for by special nurses and members of the staff. He recovered sufficiently to return home for a short time, but was forced to return for further treatment. Advice was sought from the Mayo Clinic, but it was found that everything possible was being done here.

During the early Fall he made wonderful improvement and great hopes were held for his recovery. He eagerly looked forward to return to his home and family, whom he loved so dearly, but about a week before his passing, he gradually weakened until the end came. All through his illness he never complained, and he faced the Great Unknown with courage, trusting in his Heavenly Father.

Will, as he was familiarly known, was a man of upright and honest character, and possessed a friendly jovial disposition. His ever-present cheerfulness endeared him to all, both old and young alike. He was always kindly and considerate, therefore had many, many friends.

He was a faithful adherent of the United Church, and was always eager to help in any improvement for the betterment of the community, and was an ever ready source of help to anyone in need. His passing leaves a great blank in the life of the community. Being a devoted husband, kind and loving father and son, he will be sorely missed in his home, for here he shone for all the name "Father" means.

He was very interested in rifle shooting and for many years was a member of the York Rifle Club. He was a keen marksman, and won several trophies, medals and other prizes. It was chiefly through his efforts that the York Indoor Rifle Club was organized. Will was also a great hockey fan and took much interest in the N. H. L. games, and attended the local games when possible. He was a great reader of current happenings and could discuss intelligently on world affairs.

For several years he worked on the railroad, but gave up this position to enter the employ of the P. E. I. Potato Growers' Association, where he was an efficient agent and had many customers, to whom he was ever willing to render assistance. He also farmed successfully on the homestead with his father.

He leaves to cherish his memory, his sorrowing wife, the former Pearl Vessey, two daughters, Shirley, an employee of the Royal Bank, Charlottetown, and Elaine, at home; also his aged father at home and one brother, John C. Charlottetown.

The funeral, the largest ever in the community, was held on his 51st birthday, Sunday, Nov. 4th, from York United Church. The service which was very impressive was conducted by the Rev. John Douglas, assisted by the Rev. Thos. A. Wilson.

The hymns sung were: "Forever With the Lord" and "Safe In The Arms Of Jesus". A solo, "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" was feelingly rendered by Harry T. Vesey. Following the service, the remains were tenderly laid to rest in the adjoining cemetery, beside those of his mother, who predeceased him 28 years ago.

The pall bearers were: Ernest D. Reid, James S. Allan, Stewart MacFarlane, Peter Proud, Lorne Vesey and Frank Watis.

The many floral tributes and messages of sympathy testified to the high esteem in which he was held.

No tie as strong or sweet below, Which time will not dissolve, But when we meet in heaven above We'll part no more forever.

The following are the floral tributes:

Pillow—The Family.
Wreaths—P. E. I. Potato Growers' Association; manager and staff Royal Bank of Canada; York Rifle Club; The Boys of York.

Helen and Ivan Vessey.
Ira and Vaunda, Claude and Mildred.

Card Of Thanks

Mrs. W. D. Cooke and family wish to thank the doctors, special nurses, and staff of the P. E. I. Hospital, also all the kind neighbours and friends who helped in so many ways, and those who sent floral tributes and messages of sympathy during the illness and passing of their loved one.

Strange But True

By F. H. MacArthur

The natives of Mebenggu Island get their sweets from a wild plant called the "dracaena," which grows in profusion on the hillsides. The sugar is found in the fibrous roots, and is equal in quantity to that attained from sugar beets.

Central Africa who believe that their deceased rulers are changed into lions — their dead bodies are taken to the forest, where they lie in state for some days. At the end of that time the corpse is supposed to burst and so, a lion cub is born, containing the spirit of the dead king. The young beast is cared for till it grows up, when it is given its freedom with the wild lions.

These strange people also believe that at death the King's wives are changed into leopards. Further, the Bahkna are of the opinion that the spirits of dead princes and princesses come to life again in the form of snakes. When the young snakes have issued from the decayed bodies, they are given a diet of milk and honey till they are able to fend for themselves. And, believe it or not, snakes never bite members of the clan.

The Ababu and other tribes of the Congo region fancy that when they "shuffle off this mortal coil" their souls transmigrate into the bodies of various beasts, and on no account would a person eat the flesh of an animal of the particular kind which he expects to inhabit in the next world.

It's a gala day when one of these creatures pays a visit to the place where it formerly lived in human form. It gets a big hand from the living members of its family, and is wine and dined on that particular food and drink which it likes best. But such a happy fate is reserved only for the "elite." The scum of the population turn at death into eels, and to render the change is easy for them as it is visible. It is customary to remove the bowels from the corpse and toss 'em into a sacred lake. The eel that gets the first feed becomes the domicile of the soul of the deceased.

At Ang Send, a village of Upper Burma, the river at a point above a small bridge swarms with fish, which the superstitious folk hold sacred. They fancy the fish are their dead kindred returned to life in finny form. In former days the punishment of death was inflicted on anybody who killed one.

Siam has a quaint custom, namely: the appointment of a king for three days to take the place of the reigning monarch while the latter rests from all his kindly duties. This temporary ruler is known as King Hop, because he must stand on one foot the greater part of his three days rule. He is a sort of Minister of Agriculture whose very presence in the fields is enough to insure a plentiful crop. All disputes about fields, crops, etc., are his special responsibility. In payment for this service, King Hop can carry away "Such were the duties and privileges of the Siamese King Hop, down to about the middle of the nineteenth century or later." Under the reign of the present enlightened monarch this quaint personage was largely shorn of temporary glory and relieved of the burden of his office; and no longer is he required to stand on one foot, although public opinion still expects him to keep his right boot on his left knee during the ceremonial hours.

The invasion of the West is gradually changing the ideas and civilization of the East. But it will take many centuries before the quaint customs of the East are entirely abandoned.
