EXPECTS TO SOLVE CASE SOON NOW

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 23-Sheriff Lawrence E. Brown hinted yesterday he expected soon to "crack wide open" the mystery slaying of Helen Clevenger, 18-year-old New York University student. The sheriff said important developments had been uncovered, but he refused to discuss the nature of the new information.

He said he probably would question Mark Woolner, 35-year-old internationally known concert violinist, exhaustively.

The sheriff described a pass key to the hotel room where the pretty New York girl was slain as the most important clue toward solution of the case. It was found in the lock on the outside of the door to Miss Clevenger's room, while the regular key, blood-stained, was found behind radiator.

There was no specific charge against Woolner, whose studio is across the street from the fashionable hotel where the girl was criminally attacked, mutilated, and shot to death last Wednesday night.

Anniversary Services Sunday

OF ST. ANDREWS PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, CARDIGAN

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Cardigan will celebrate the anniversary of its founding on Sunday next July 26th, with special services both morning and evening. The morning service will be conducted by the minister, Rev. T. Owen Hughes B. A., and appropriate messages will be given by the minister and the Rev. H. Lincoln MacKenzie M. A. of Grand Neck, Long Island, Mr. MacKenzie is one of the children of the church and is spending his vacation in his summer home. The evening service will be in charge of the Rev. R. Moorhead Legate D. D., of St. James Church Charlottetown who will also preach the sermon.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church

St. Andrew's history goes back to the beginnings of Presbyterianism on the east end of the Island, its history can be traced back eighty years, but unfortunately owing to a disastrous fire about 30 years ago almost all the past records of the church were destroyed. The first church was known as Alley's Church, located about a mile west of the present building and the writer was informed by one of the old residents of Rossneath, Mr. Robert Shaw, that he has a faint recollection of attending services at Alley's Church as a lad of 12, and this would bring the history of the church close to 90 years.

The present church, which is beautifully located, facing the Cardigan River, was built in 1888. The church throughout its existence has been fortunate in having for its ministers, men outstanding as preachers and leaders in the church at large. One part of the congregation meets for worship every other Sunday afternoon at Lorne Valley Church and services are regularly held at Cardigan every Sabbath morning.

It is expected that a large congregation will attend both services on Sunday and many friends will also be at the Anniversary Supper and Bazaar on Wednesday the 29th. (Patriot Please Copy)

Old Folk Lore Being Revived

(By The Associated Press) LEWISBURG, Pa., July 23—The pioneer glories of the Keystone state, first western frontier of the United States, will be celebrated in song and dance at the Pennsylvania Folk Festival here July 30 to Aug. 2.

Hailed as part of the national movement to preserve the country's native lore, the festival will open with an evening devoted to racial folk lore featuring Complanter Indians, from the state's only reservation; Pennsylvania Germans, Scotch-Irish baypipers, negro spiritual singers from Philadelphia, Ukrainian dancers from Wilkes-Barre and Welshmen from the anthracite coal fields.

Coal miners, river raftmen, lumberjacks, oil well drillers and stage coach drivers will sing the songs and ballads of their crafts. The ceremonies will mark the return to the road of the famed Conestoga wagons, forerunner of the "prairie schooner" that bore the forward-pushing pioneers westward and into the southwest.

"Tall story" tellers, jig dancers, street criers, balad singers and yarnweavers will compete, a highlight being the scheduled square dancing championship of Pennsylvania.

A lost art of the coal miners, sculpture carved from anthracite, will reappear at the festival. An example is a finely-carved statuette of a negro woman's head mounted on a vase. It was made by S. A. Weiser, cutter, of Minersville, in 1856.

"This festival," says Director Dr. George Korsek, which is to be held in the Memorial stadium of Bucknell University, "has more than a Pennsylvania interest. The first western frontier in this country was in Pennsylvania. First it was the Susquehanna river; then it was pushed to the Alleghenies and finally, after the French and Indian war, it reached Pittsburgh.

"From that point the vast majority of pioneers who settled the middle west, the southwest and the far west set forth on their long perilous journeys and the original adventurers traveled in the Conestoga wagon, a distinctively Pennsylvania product that was the parent of the later 'covered wagon' or prairie schooner."

The wagon derives its name from Conestoga valley near Lancaster, Pa. It had a sloping back, front and sides, to counteract the effect of shifting loads as the wagon went up and down hill over rough mountain roads. Drawn by six horses, the driver rode on a saddle horse, placed hindmost on the left side. On the drive he rolled whole-leaf cigars which later came to be manufactured and were called "stogie," a corruption of Oestrogies, applied to the wagons.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. MacDonald and their daughter Jean of Vermont arrived in Brookfield Monday evening, en route to Charlottetown, having motored down with his nephew, Mr. Earle MacDonald.

Misses Ada and Blanche McKay, Springfield, and their niece Miss Rhoda McLeod, Long River, have returned from a motor trip to Monton. While there they were the welcome guests of Mrs. M. M. Ferguson.

Mr. Earle MacDonald, Greensboro Bend, Vermont, arrived in Charlottetown Monday evening to spend his vacation with his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Robertson, 78 Chestnut St., his father, Mr. W. G. MacDonald and brother Ronald, and Miss Margaret his sister, returned some weeks ago after spending their vacation in Brookfield and Charlottetown. Mr. MacDonald's family are greatly impressed with their father's birthplace and intend coming back quite often.

Thousands of acres in New Brunswick and the Gaspé Peninsula have been destroyed by the insects and federal authorities have started a counter-attack, releasing millions of parasites.

"ENJOYED VISIT"—Her many friends are delighted to see Mrs. Hubert Nelson back again to her home in Montague after a very pleasant visit to New Brunswick—the guest of friends in Moncton and other important centres. Having seen the lumbering province at its best, in her opinion—it is nothing compared to the scenic beauty of our own little Island. A contributory force for good in every worthy cause—ideal housekeeper—exceptionally skilled in the culinary art—rarely in these days—there is no one more deserving of an outing than Mrs. Nelson, and might we just add, that during the past spring besides attending to the duties of the household which are many and onerous in every well kept home, she has hooked nine mice, an achievement which few women can lay claim to.—Com.

Women Got Even, Began Own Games

(By The Canadian Press) NEW YORK, July 23—The most enthusiastic applauders at today's Olympics, and the most serious contestants in the Games, women, once were denied entrance to the stadia.

In ancient Greece, where the first Olympic games were held, women were prohibited from viewing the contests from hillside, tree tops or knob-holes. Many of the too-curious were put to death. The rule forbidding women to watch the Games may have been made because contestants were nothing but a grim determination for victory. But, more likely, it was enforced because the earliest Olympics were regarded as religious festivals for men only.

Ignored, the women retaliated with Olympiads of their own, which closely resembled those of the men. These were held every four years, and were called Heraea. At first only running races were included on the program. The earliest feminine Olympians ran barefoot, their hair streaming down over their shoulders.

Feminine victors received olive wreaths. In addition, each won a share of a heifer. No one knows exactly when women first were permitted as spectators at the men's competitions.

RUGBY CHAMPIONS BEGIN TRAINING WINNIPEG, July 23—(CP)—Ever since the Grey Cup rolled westward for the first time last fall behind the driving power of Winnipeggers, Manitoba's crowned Dominion rugby football champions of the players have kept in training for the task as defenders this year.

Pre-season training however, begins in earnest Aug. 5. Manager Frank Emma of the Winnipeg Rugby Club stated. He announced last year's squad would be 100 per cent intact with a possibility more players will be added because the Winnipeg Victoria Rugby Club has been asked not to operate a senior team.

The team is definitely in better condition, Mr. Emma said, because many of the players have been active either playing golf, tennis, baseball, or taking part in other sports. Joe Perlich and Bud Marquardt played basketball last winter and Greg Kabat has turned in some fine work during track and field meets here. Lou Mogul played soccer and Lou Adéman was reported to have done a little wrestling in the off season. Eddie James has been tossing barrels around in a vinegar works.

Picking Best Brood Sows

It generally is true that when a sow sows 10 pigs in one litter, she is a good mother.

Much progress can be made in breeding high producing herds when an effort is made to select carefully the breeding stock from the most productive dams and best mothers.

In producing good litters, the sire also must be considered. In fact, he may be of greater importance than the sow. A good sire should come from a litter of 8 or 10 pigs, that were early maturing, and give good qualities of the sire and dam, an efficient producing herd can soon be established.

First watch the spring pigs carefully, study their progress in growing to 150 lbs. in weight, mark them so they may easily be identified for a final selection later.

Pick the best row pigs from the largest litter, especially if the dams of those litters were good mothers.

Minard's Liniment removes stains.
