Lady Montague Charged with Murder.

Attempt to Kill President Montt.

[SPECIAL TO THE GUARDIAN.]

QUEBEC, Feb. 17.—Col. Rhodes, late Minister of Agriculture, died to-day from la grippe.

Premier Abbott Still Sick.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—Premier Abbott is still confined to his residence and his physicians enjoin complete rest, in order that he may be fully recovered when Parliament meets.

Severe Storms in England.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—It is believed that many vessels were wrecked in the severe gales of yesterday and the night before. A large quantity of wreckage, supposed to be from the British barque Carvour, has been washed ashore near Galway.

After the President's Life.

VALPARAISO, Feb. 17.—Plots have been discovered to kill both President Montt and General Canto. On Sunday an attempt was made to wreck a train on which the President was riding, and on Monday an assassin attempted to set fire to a car in which Canto was.

A Mother's Crime.

BELFAST, Feb. 17.—Mrs. Anna Margaret Montague, daughter of Lord Robert Montague, has been arrested at Colerane, for causing the death of her three year old daughter by pinning her with a stout cord to a ring in a dark room for several hours, as punishment for a trifling offense. Great excitement prevails in aristocratic circles.

The Unemployed in Rome.

ROME, Feb. 16.—The unemployed workmen of the city and vicinity threaten to give much trouble to the authorities, and it is feared their riotous tendencies will require strong measures for their suppression. They have threatened to wait no longer for aid from the government but to demand that they be furnished with work or other relief.

University Extension.

A Moncton correspondent writes to the GUARDIAN as follows:—
"The course of University Extension lectures on biology by Prof. W. W. Andrews, which has just been opened here, is meeting with great success. The class numbers about one hundred persons, among whom, are found people of all creeds and of no creed. Over twenty of the school teachers, all the lawyers of the town, most of the physicians and many of our best citizens. It is a fine testimony to the intellectual eagerness of our people. To Dr. McCully is due much of the credit of this encouraging beginning. A large number, we believe, have signified their intention to do the weekly exercises in order that they may write on the University Examination in the spring. After the lecture of an hour's length last Friday evening, the larger part of the class remained to listen to and take part in the discussion of "the quiz." The members of the class are forming a glee club, which will entertain the sessions with college songs and national airs, and so give still more of a college flavor to the work."

Gladstone and the Dead Prince.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Mr. Gladstone has sent a letter to Sir William Vernon Harcourt, in which he pays a high tribute to the character and worth of the late Duke of Clarence and Avondale. The great Liberal leader says:—"I would like to give voice in Parliament to the universal expression of sympathy aroused by the untimely decease of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale. It recalls to me the national grief caused by the death of the Princess Charlotte. The occasion is memorable as an evidence of the attachment of the nation to the Queen and the royal family. Incidents of public life have given me many opportunities of estimating the high qualities possessed by the Duke of Clarence. I have a letter in my possession in which he announced to me the happy prospect which has now been so sorrowfully changed. He had already exhibited many characteristics which made his life of great value and promise to the empire. Let us humbly trust that the memory of them and the sense of affection they won may assist his illustrious brother in answering the calls of the high vocation."

Too Horrible to Relate.

NINE DAYS IN A CRAMPED POSITION WITHOUT FOOD OR DRINK.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Last evening the Morgan line Steamer Elmorte arrived here from New Orleans. This morning, when the forward hatch was removed, there was found outstretched a man named Charles Burzelle, 33 years old, half-dead from starvation and thirst. Burzelle was taken to St. Vincent's

THE ROYAL SUCCESSIONSHIP.

SPECULATION IN ENGLAND AS TO THE FUTURE SOVEREIGN.

A cable despatch says: "It has been practically settled that Prince George of Wales shall marry some time in October in order "to make the succession secure." Nobody knows yet who will be the favored bride, but we are assured to-day that "the universal expression of approbation of the Duke of Clarence's selection of a bride who was English by birth and training has not been lost on the Queen and Prince of Wales, and it is as certain as anything well can be that Prince George will in this respect emulate his deceased brother's example." Prince George is to have the suit of apartments in St. James palace given to, but never occupied, by his luckless brother. It will be necessary, also, to make a peer of him, and the odds are about even that he will be dubbed the Duke of York, Duke of Sussex, or Duke of Kent. It is asserted that he is raising objections to leaving the navy, having an ambition to command a big ironclad, and ultimately a squadron; but in this matter he cannot be allowed to have his own way. An ironclad might run on a rock or her boilers might blow up or she might founder in a storm, and the Prince must not run the risk of any one of these events so long as the Duchess of Fife stands third, the Duke of Edinburgh seventh, and the German Emperor 21st in the direct line of succession to the British Throne. As the sober Tory St. James Gazette gloomily remarks: "The crown of England descends like a barony in fee to the nearest heir of the last wearer, be that heir male or female (daughters, of course, being postponed to sons) and were Prince George never to marry the crown would pass to the Duchess of Fife and afterward descend from her to her daughter, Lady Alexandra Duff, at present aged one year, always supposing that a son was not born to her in the meantime. In that case the son would naturally take precedence. We might then (and the possibility is by no means remote) witness the curious sight of a Marquis of Macduff stepping direct from the guards or benches of the House of Commons to the throne. That Fife spectre is positively haunting royal and aristocratic minds, and it will not be laid until Prince George shall have married and "provided for the succession."

The Secret Out.

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—A despatch from New Orleans, La., says that at last the true secret of the withdrawal of the Louisiana state lottery from the political arena is out. A stockholder of the company has said that the Louisiana state lottery will be removed to Mexico in 1893. President Diaz has already expressed himself favorable to the project, and the lottery will make a fortune.

Civic Affairs.

Sir.—It is commonly reported that already the newly-elected councillors have met in caucus on more than one occasion, but unfortunately with the same old results: two parties have formed with four members each, bound to oppose each other if this or that course is not adopted, and which, if persisted in, will throw the whole responsibility upon the Mayor's casting vote.

I sincerely hope that the report referred to is not well founded, but that when the city representatives meet this evening they will do so with the feeling that an interested public is watching their actions in the hope that the change in representation, now on trial, will redound to the credit of the city as well as to the new Council.

Let the best men be placed on committees regardless of personal feelings, and give and take a little rather than lay yourselves open to censure for adopting any unbusiness-like tactics.

Yours, etc.,
PEACEMAKER.

A Female Fiend.

MILAN, Tenn., Feb. 8.—Charles Travis and wife have been living unhappily for some time. A few days ago the wife pushed one of the children into the fire place, burning it badly. In his anger the husband kicked his wife out of doors. She swore to kill him, and last night, while her husband was asleep, she procured a razor and slashed his face and throat in a dozen places. Travis grappled with his wife and secured the razor. He was so weakened by loss of blood, however, he died before help arrived. When the neighbors reached the house Mrs. Travis was covered with blood and in the act of shooting herself with a revolver. It is believed she was insane through brooding over domestic troubles.
