*Unseated and disqualified.

—The opinion of observing and experienced persons respecting the future of ship building in the Halifax Herald, undergoes a change. It is no longer accepted as an axiom that iron and steel ships are destined to displace wooden shipping on the ocean. On the contrary it is established that wooden vessels will still be employed if their owners are content with the percentage of profit that is made out of a Clyde or a Tyne built sailing ship. As there is no place in the world where wooden shipping can be produced as cheaply as in Canada, it is more than probable that ship building will continue to be a Canadian industry. Canada is a large country and this business, like all others, naturally centres in the localities where it can be carried on under favorable conditions.

—According to the Newcastle Chronicle, Professor Heim, the German physiologist, has been saying a good word for coffee and tea from a medical point of view. Following up the researches of Oppler and Suckas and careful experiments the careful and scientific properties of roasted coffee. He shows that coffee, the active principle of coffee, is death to micro-organisms, that effusions of animal matter in coffee may be exposed to the air without gathering mould, that the bacilli of cholera cannot live in coffee, and that, under its influence, the microbes generated in pus perish forthwith. The good results of coffee in cases of typhoid fever have been long known, but they have been attributed to the tonic effects of the caffeine on the nervous system. By Heim's showing, however, the said results are largely due to the antiseptic properties of coffee. The same properties, if to a less degree, are attributed to "chicane, the active principle of tea." In this connection, says the Chronicle, "we may remind our readers of the resuscitation lately given of Galtier's experiments, showing that the disease-giving microbes can live and thrive in alcoholic drinks."

—If the Religious Education Bill which the Emperor of Germany has inspired becomes law, primary education in Prussia will be strictly denominated in nearly all schools. If the number of children of a given creed exceeds 30 a separate school may be built for them, and if the number exceeds 60 a separate school may be provided. The teachers, save in special cases, must be of the same denomination as their pupils. Religious instruction is compulsory, and will be under the direction of the clergyman of the church to which the school is appropriated. They have a right to attend the instruction, to question the pupils, and after the lesson to "correct and advise the teacher." These privileges are confined to denominations recognized by the State, and it is difficult to see on what principle recognition has been granted or refused, as among those outside the pale are people of the most diverse views—Methodists, Unitarians, Old Catholics, Reformed Jews and Freethinkers. The Emperor has got it into his head that Socialism is increasing and imperils both government and religion, and the Prussian Education Bill is an effort to invoke the principle of ecclesiastical authority in aid of the civil power, and to band the churches and the State together in a political campaign against their common foe.

—How intelligent and influential Americans regard the question of reciprocity with Canada, may be seen from the following extract from the New York Sun:
"Aware that the Canadian farmers are smarting under the restrictive effects of the McKinley Act, the (Premier Abbott) wishes to make a show of trying to regain for their products access to the markets of the United States; and thus he would take the wind out of the sails of his Liberal opponents, who have long advocated a commercial union. So, according to a telegram from Ottawa, he means to send Sir John Thompson and Finance Minister Foster to Washington for the ostensible purpose of arranging for a reciprocity treaty between this country and the Canadian Dominion. Let us say frankly that, even if such overtures emanated from Canadian Liberals restored to power at Ottawa, it is doubtful whether they would meet with a favorable reception from our people. Not that anyone would dispute the sincerity and comprehensiveness of the proposal. The Canadian Liberals are our friends, and the large population of them, who are anti-imperialists at heart, honestly believe that free commercial intercourse would be the shortest road to annexation. They are in favor of reciprocity, moreover, which they do not disdain to admit, but historically unreciprocated, similar to the Dominion a consumer of American manufactures in return for the field opened to the surplus products of the Canadian forests, mines and fisheries. The Canadian Liberals are perfectly willing, while admitting our goods free, to lay heavy duties on imports from Great Britain, thus giving our manufacturers a practical monopoly of the Canadian market. That is the utmost they could offer short of annexation and we would not, therefore, be surprised to feel the slightest distrust of their good faith when we say that their concession is no equivalent for the benefits we are requested to confer."

Rest Ahead

He was always active and hurrying, Of something ever in quest;
Why not take time to rest?
'Oh, no, I can't rest now,' said he, 'I'm far too busy, as you may see.'
"But, my friend, you are wearing your life away."
Having over an anxious breast, An I greatly fear you will die some day,
"Be ye've had time to rest."
"If I do," he said, as he dipped his pen in the ink, "I'll have time for resting then."

Wedding Bells.

We have special pleasure in chronicling a very pleasing event which took place at New Glasgow on Wednesday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. We refer to the marriage of Arthur D. Gibson, Esq., to Miss Harriet Broadbent, of New Glasgow. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Crawford at the home of the bride. The bride was attended by Miss Jane Shaw of this city, niece of the bride, the groom being supported by Mr. John Houston of South Rustico. A large number of friends witnessed the nuptial ceremony. At eight o'clock the bridal party repaired to the groom's home, where a large wedding party, consisting of about 75 guests, was held. Quite a number of friends were present from Charlottetown, and a most enjoyable evening was spent. THE EXAMINER tender its hearty congratulations to the happy couple.

The Riot in Berlin.

Commenting upon the riot which took place a few days ago in Berlin, the New York Press says that it evokes the desperation of the common people, ground under the heel of military tyranny, and living, even when employed, on the brink of want and misery. The men who marched up to the Kaiser's palace with hostile intent must have measured the risk that they dared to face and have chosen almost certain punishment in preference to a wretched existence. It was such a mob as this that started the great movement which brought a French king to the scaffold and resulted in the extermination of the French aristocracy. "It is a revolution," said Louis XVI as he listened to the roar that approached the Tuileries. "No, sire," said a candid courtier, "it is a revolution." Yesterday's movement was not a revolution, but it may have been the premonitory rumble of an upheaval not far in the distance. Only the night before the Kaiser made a speech at a banquet in Brandenburg in which he asserted in language bold and clear that he had used at any previous time his claim to autocracy and his indifference to population and party agitation, while he held that the Fatherland was not a safe place for those who dared to oppose him. The workingmen's march upon his palace may not have been intended as an answer to the monarch's haughty threat, but it was a warning which he would do well to heed. When men become so desperate that life loses all attraction, then no rule, however powerful, is secure from their assaults. The French Revolution succeeded because the people had drunk the cup of oppression to its dregs. The King and court despised the masses, who afterward became masters of the State. They used the people as a Samson to furnish their pastime, and the people, awakened to their strength, shook down the ancient pillars of royalty and turned the pastime into tragedy. The German Emperor, if he is wise, will note and profit by the signs of the times. As a constitutional monarch he may have before him a long life and a reign of honor and usefulness. But if he attempts to turn back or to stay the wheels of progress they will crush him.

Personal

Henry Fielding Dickens, a son of the great novelist, is making good progress at the English bar and has recently been appointed a Queen's Counsel.
M. Delessers, the great French engineer, is failing rapidly. His memory is very poor, and his physicians say he may die at any time.
Sir Morell Mackenzie wore a small scarf pin which Queen Victoria once presented to the Emperor Fredrick in memory of her jubilee celebration. After the unfortunate King's death, it was given by the Empress to the physician who had been so devoted to her husband. The pin is of diamonds, forming a '60,' and surmounted by a crown. Sir Morell valued it highly.
The gift of $1,000,000 to Chicago University by John D. Rockefeller is shortly to be made. His income as it stands is well bestowed. The cause of education is the cause of progress, and he who uses his money to promote education proves himself a genuine friend of humanity. If Samuel J. Tilden had carried out before his death the intentions expressed in his will the city of New York to-day would be in possession of a magnificent free library constantly increasing in usefulness and perpetuating the memory of the donor with honor. But Mr. Tilden, unlike Tilden or Rockefeller, chose to retain his millions to the last, and they went where he did not intend them to go.
The Royal Gazette announces that His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, has been pleased to reappoint to the Board of Health for Townships Numbers Thirty and Sixty five, as follows, namely:
Gyrus Crosby, Bonshaw, Lot 30, Chairman.
James Robertson,
Robert E. Stewart, Strathgartney, Lot 30.
John McNeill, Black Point,
James Gordon, Appin Road,
Peter McKinnon, Line Road,
T. A. Stewart, West River, Lot 65.
James McLean, Long Creek,
Thomas Murphy, South Shore,
Alexander McKinnon, Canoe Cove, Lot 65.
William St. John, Long Creek,
Donald McEwen, Rice Point,
Alexander Murchison, Esq., M. D., Clyde River, to be Health Officer for said Townships.

Horse Notes.

Yesterday was a great day for the flyers on the road. Among the horses which were given a chance to show what was in them were John McCy's Thorndale Echo, W. B. Ganong's Shamrock Boy, Sir Charles, William Gordon's colt Creamer; Thomas Donah's four-year-old colt, by John; George McAvity's mare, Walter Jewell's Kitty Wilkes, Robert St. Ad's (Wheatley River) colt, George Ketchum's black mare, S. T. Golding's black mare, H. H. M.'s chestnut mare, James McKinney's Sim colt, and A. F. La's colt.
The above paragraph, which we copy from the St. John Sun, shows that our friend Mr. Stead ably represented his Island home during his visit to the sister Province.

We wish this slip was a sample of any one of the 155 patterns of embroidery Stanley Ross are showing. Every lady reader would see at a glance the value there is in them.

FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for their children while cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best-known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup," and take no other kind. Try
