Blood Donors - In reference to the Blood Donor's Clinic held at Kensington, items in the Press failed to include mention of donors from the school district of Irishtown. In fairness to the district and to the individuals, it should be said that at least three of the 118 donors at Kensington were from Irishtown school district although their addresses were given as Kensington R.R. 2, which is of course also correct. -Bur.

Rink Question Again Discussed At S'side

Last evening in the Town Hall, Summerside the citizens rink committee and a number of interested business men of the Town met once again to discuss the possibilities of finding ways and means to build a rink in Summerside.

After much discussion it was the decision of the meeting that the Summerside Council be asked again to act on the original resolution passed by the committee, at a previous meeting, to hold a plebiscite in the Town and ascertain the opinion of the general public regarding the rink question.

The meeting was presided over by Dr. H. E. Clarke and he stated that the meeting had been called for the purpose of finding out if any new suggestions could be obtained whereby the rink project might be brought to a successful issue. His committee, he felt, had made all the progress it could make, and he requested that a new chairman be appointed at this meeting to carry on the work.

Councillor T. D. Morrison reviewed the offer made by the Town Council which was that the sum of $50,000 would be subscribed and also that the new rink would have the benefit of free light, taxes and water for a period of five years also that a free site might possibly be donated.

He said he felt that everyone was familiar with the fact that the Town of Summerside was not interested in building a rink itself but that the offer of the Council was a most generous one.

There was a great deal of informal discussion and many suggestions were presented to the meeting but it came to an end with the passing of the motion that the Council be again asked to hold the plebiscite. -S.

Found Baby In Carriage
Sandford Bennett said he was one of the first men to arrive and going in through the back door went up stairs. Had to crawl up the last few steps as the smoke was so thick. He followed the wall and found the room where the child was. The door was open about ten inches and thick yellow smoke was coming out. He pushed the door open and noticed the window was open. He saw only very little flame. He could see the wheels of a baby carriage and pulled it out into the hall and downstairs. When he reached the outdoors the baby gave a weak cry. The carriage was all burned and the baby was lying on its back. He helped to put the fire out with a chemical extinguisher and it did not take much chemical to extinguish it.

Mother Gives Evidence
Mrs. William Bartle, mother of the child, gave all her evidence in response to questioning. She said that in the forenoon had done her usual housework and after dinner had washed the dishes and fed the baby, put it in its carriage upstairs and put the carriage in the little room. After fixing up the baby went down stairs and swept the floors.

She said the little room was used only at a store room. The baby was covered with a flannel blanket that extended over the sides of the carriage. She noticed an odor in the room and had opened the window and shut it again.

To kill the odor she got a piece of paper and a match and burned the paper on the foot of the carriage. "I knew I shouldn't have done it but I did," she said. She testified that she had never done such a thing before. "I stayed till the blaze was out or I thought it was out," the mother said. She closed the door and did not open it again.

She first smelled smoke after she finished sweeping and began to carry out boxes of clothing as she remembered they had not saved anything in the fire eight months ago and she forgot all about the baby. "I got all nervous up and forgot what I was doing," she said.

The witness said she sent her son Charles, 4 1-2, for help to Mrs. MacDonald.

Lorena Underwood, 16, sister of Mrs. Oliver told of going to the Bartle home and taking the three small Bartle children to Mrs. MacDonald's. She said she asked Mrs. Bartle three times if all the children were out and each time Mrs. Bartle said they were.

Dr. W. A. Shea told of examining the child at the hospital and finding it suffering from burns, some of them 3rd degree burns. A half hour after leaving the hospital he was advised the child had died. He gave shock as the cause of death.
