

Movie Night Nirvana

By Kimberley Johnston

How can you go wrong paying 500 spidey-cents to see the friendly neighbourhood arachnid in action?

Okay, you got me. I wasn't there, but I did happen upon the first movie night at the Wave, featuring the latest Harry Potter. I was totally bewitched by the cozy chairs, professional staff and yep...the all-you-can-eat popcorn.

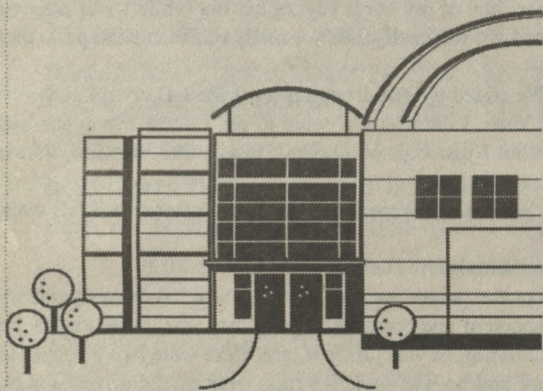

Ryan, the server, presented me the basket of artery-clogging delight with such pizzazz – I couldn't help but finish the portion and serve myself a second.

A word of caution though, while the excess salt does go nicely with the over-abundant butter, be sure to have something to wash it down with.

I would highly recommend (if you are of age) acquainting yourself with the friendly bar staff and asking for a cold one. They have drink specials on and you won't have to weasel your way through a slew of equally thirsty people. Maybe just a couple. This is how movie-viewing was meant to be. Movie Night Nirvana, I daresay.

So, if you haven't checked out Movie Night at the Wave, you should. And if you're thinking, "I have no one to go with." Well, ya do now. I'll be the girl (probably wearing a cap), drinking Keiths waiting for Shrek 2 to start. Who's with me?

If you pay cover and have a crappy time, just eat $5 worth of popcorn. Your complexion won't thank you ... but you'll get to hang out with me!
