Kinkora 4-H Club recently conducted an interesting debate entitled: Resolved that one room schools should be consolidated.

The judges decided in favor of the negative which was upheld by Judy Clow, Mary Mulligan and James McCabe. Speakers for the affirmative were Teresa McCabe, Leaming Mulligan and Ronnie Greenan.

Mrs. Hugh McIver, president of the Home and School Association thanked the teachers and pupils. The club members were treated to ice cream following the program.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Neil Hooley Montague have returned from a combined business and pleasure trip to Montreal.

Miss Stella Driscoll, RN, of the Charlottetown Hospital and Mrs. Charles MacKinnon RN, of the P.E.I. Hospital have returned from Arnprior, Ont., where they attended a course for nurse educators at the Canadian Civil Defense College.

Charlottetown Lionettes met recently at the Rendezvous Restaurant for their regular meeting. Mrs. Eileen Bagnall presided and 14 members were in attendance.

Members agreed to sell tickets on an Island scene during the Lion's Convention which will be held in Charlottetown the latter part of May.

Catering committee appointed for March were Ruth Cross, Kathy Ford and Mary Gill.

An official release from the State University of Iowa to hometown newspapers discloses that Sally Osborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Osborne, Brackley Point Road, has won an invitation to the annual University "Smarty Party" because of her scholastic average.

Miss Osborne, who is majoring in psychology placed third in her class of 800 at the end of her first semester. She also holds a part time secretarial job in the College of Medicine and is a member of the university's champion bowling team which won 14 straight victories over competing universities.

Mrs. Harvey MacRae and son Jackie Montreal, are visiting the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cobb Kensington.

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE W. COLE

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Ontario Couple

A wedding of interest to Island friends took place at Islington United Church, Ont. when Carole Jane MacNeill, daughter of Mrs. Basil MacNeill and the late Mr. MacNeill of Elmsdale, P.E.I. was united in marriage to Clarence William Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cole of Picton, Ont. The double - ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Stewart East.

Bouquets of bronze and gold mums adorned the church and the guest pews were marked with matching miniature mums and satin ribbons.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother Thane MacNeill, wore a floor length sheath gown of white peau de soie with straight cut matching jacket and three quarter length sleeves accented by white lace appliques. Her bouffant finger tip veil of French silk-illusion was held by a crown of seed pearls and rhinestones. She carried a cascade of white gardenias and stephanotis entwined with ivy.

The bride was attended by her sister, Betty MacNeill as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. William Hutchings, sister of the bride, Audrey Morrison and Marilyn Ross. They were identically gowned in olive green two - piece velvet dresses with matching circular headpieces. They carried semi - cascades of 'mums in shades of bronze and gold.

The best man was LeRoy Cole, brother of the groom. The ushers were Richard Cole, brother of the groom, John Rankin and Jim Johnson.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at 72 Wells Hill Ave. for 150 guests. The bride's mother received wearing a beige lace dress, brown accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother chose a raspberry wool dress with matching three-quarter length coat, black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Following a honeymoon trip to Mexico, the bride and groom are residing at 72 Wells Hill Ave. Toronto, Ont.

WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS

Full Programme Marks Irishtown WI Meeting

Mrs. Clayton Stavert was hostess for the March meeting of Irishtown Women's Institute with 13 members and one visitor present.

"When Irish Eyes are Smiling" was sung. The "thought for the month" was read by Jean Stavert, and roll call answered with an Irish joke.

A paper on "Education and Citizenship," prepared and read by Mrs. C. Marshall, was submitted.

Usual reports were given with new visitation committee to be Mrs. Clair Campbell, Mrs. H.B. MacLeod, Mrs. Clair Profitt. The teacher reported the need of a new globe for the school, and members approved of its purchase. Mrs. Archie Johnstone volunteered to do the buying also to be the school visitor. The sum of $84. was passed in from proceeds of card parties and sale of cards.

A request came from the Canadian Mental Health Association for a donation of books for the new library at Riverside and it was agreed to take books to the next meeting; $1.00 is to be sent towards the Korean boy's adoption fee.

The convener's letter on Education was read by Mrs. Borden Campbell. Education Week was observed in the school one afternoon when the parents enjoyed a program put on by the teacher and pupils. The 4 - H Garment Club has entered the spelling and debate Centennial contest for July.

One Red Cross sweater was handed in and new work handed out.

An auction sale of canned food with Mary MacLeod as auctioneer realized the sum of $6.75.

The April meeting will be held in the Community Hall.

A special feature of the programme was an instrumental duet by Mrs. Charles Marshall and Mrs. Borden Campbell, who also put on a Shamrock contest. Lunch was served.

SPRINGFIELD WI

Mrs. Sutherland MacKay was hostess for the March meeting of Springfield Women's Institute when 13 members and 2 visitors answered roll call by naming a member of the federal cabinet.

The Red Cross committee reported receiving 2 jackets, 3 nightgowns, 3 sweaters and 1 quilt.

The community project committee suggested improving hall property and procuring sign for hall.

A donation was sent to "Pennies for Friendship."

A request for books and magazines for the library at Riverside Hospital was received. Contributions are to be brought to the next meeting.

The program convener, Mrs. John Hagen, read a paper on "Education" and also told stories of some children in other lands. An interesting "question and answer" period followed with Robert Jorgenson furnishing information on his native country.

A contest "parts of the body" was won by the president, Mrs. Crawford Sinclair.

Lunch was served by hostess and committee.

CRAPAUD WI

Members of Crapaud Women's Institute voted in March to make a donation for the Korean orphan boy adopted by the Island Institutes and also for shares in the Curling Rink to be built in Crapaud.

It was also decided to supply a first aid kit for the school.

Roll call at the next meeting will be books for the Riverside Hospital.

New committees appointed are: school, Mrs. George Nicholson and Mrs. Jack Leard; sick, Mrs. Robert Dawson and Mrs. Barry Dawson; lunch, Mrs. Kenneth Paynter, Mrs. G. Nicholson and Mrs. J. Leard.

The March topic "Education" was discussed and questions answered.

ELMIRA WI

Remodelling of the hall and improving the hall grounds was the highlight of the March meeting of Elmira Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. A. P. McPhee.

Each member is to bring two books for the library at Riverside Hospital.

A donation was sent to Mrs. Reg McEwen for the Korean boy's adoption fee. Some crafts are to be sent to the display center.

A hooked rug and a patch work quilt are being made by the members to be sold at a later date to increase the funds.

Several new projects were discusesd but were postponed until a later date.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

MT. STEWART UCW

Mrs. Eldon Glover conducted the worship service at the Feb. meeting of Mt. Stewart United Church Women. Assisting her were Mrs. Earl Jay and Mrs. Donald MacLennan.

Roll call was answered by 16 members, and plans were made for a concert to be held March 31 and April 2. A report of the UCW Presbyterial in Charlottetown was given.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Wallace Birt and Mrs. Harold Affleck

American Raisins Rise In Danish Baked Bread

"CALIFORNIA raisin bread," said a news item, "introduced in Copenhagen, Denmark, recently as part of the foreign promotional program of the California Raisin advisory Board, has been so well received that Denmark's bakers already are using more than a ton of California raisins per day!"

The Danes love our raisin bread because it contains so many fine raisins! It is made by small bakers who "bake-in-back, sell-in-front."

The Danish "California Rosenbrod" is not spongy and light-textured like American raisin bread because of the difference in flour used in the two countries. But it's chock-full of raisins! And it is sold out the same day it is baked and always with an identifying paper band around it.

EQUIVALENT COST

It costs the equivalent of about 18 cents for an 11-ounce loaf in American money.

Copenhagen people carry home this bread in a shopping bag, or in a basket on the handlebars of their bicycles.

Similar raisin bread programs have been successfully introduced in the United Kingdom, Sweden and Japan, and negotiations are being made for introduction in France and West Germany.

A big step ahead in acquainting other countries with American raisins and one of our country's favorite breads!

Measuremnts are level

CALIFORNIA RAISIN YEAST BREAD

(2 loaves; about 3½ hrs. time)
2 c. milk, scalded
2 pkg. or cakes active dry or compressed yeast
½ c. tepid water
3 c. sifted all-purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ c. sugar
¼ c. melted butter or margarine
2 eggs, beaten light
4 c. all-purpose flour, additional, sifted before measuring
1½ c. dark seedless California raisins

Cool milk until tepid. Add yeast dissolved in tepid water. Beat in 3 c. flour. Cover; set in warm place for about 30 min., or until batter looks "bubbly."

Beat in salt, nutmeg, sugar, butter or margarine and eggs. Then beat in 3½ c. of remaining flour. Last, add raisins stirred to coat with ½ c. flour.

Turn onto well-floured surface, and knead until dough feels elastic to touch. Replace in lightly - oiled 4-qt. bowl. Cover; let rise again until doubled in size.

Punch down; cut in halves; shape into loaves and place seam- side down in 2 oiled loaf pans. Cover with waxed paper; set to rise until again doubled in size. Bake 40 to 50 min. in mod. oven, 375 degrees F.

When done, remove from pans; brush loaves lightly all over with melted butter or margarine; cool. Let stand few hrs. or overnight before slicing.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Young Cattle Loaded Aboard Waiting Truck

"How fast the time goes! In just a week from today, the cattle will be going in to the Fat Stock Show" we overheard James say to the younger farmer this morning, some surprise in his voice.

"Yes, I reckon so" the younger farmer nodded.

"After this fine spell of weather we've been having, I shouldn't wonder if it wouldn't work up a storm by then."

"Could be... We'll just have to wait and see."

This then will be that day. The 4-H members of the family will have brushed and primped their calves. And while they will have a pride in preparing them for the show ring, we know they will also have some sad thoughts over the definite partings which will follow. At length, the excitement of the occasion over, its close brings a long farewell to such pets.

Given that all continues well at Alderlea, and that a March storm has not come to shut us a mile away from our outside world, today will see offerings of this stable being led down along the front meadow to board the waiting truck at lane's end... Mack will have been excused from his classes in school, as, it is not unlikely, will Alex, as well. And perhaps Jamie (eldest grandson) and Gage will have happened by from in the road to assist at the loading.

We think that James will watch from the yard. Only a long moment, however, scanning each animal led by, and commenting "They don't seem to look their size outdoors, Ellen", before he takes the shortcut down to join the others of the family, on their way to lane's end.

"Give a farmer his farming!" we shall smile.

And Scampie seated on a drift nearby, which gives him a nice view of the interest at hand, will turn toward us with a knowing look, almost a nod. When the machines have moved away, leaving a vacancy there, and a silence, we shall come indoors to remember that this is a happy business; our farming.

The March sun was brilliant today. It pressed kisses that were pretty freckles on little lads' and maids' cheeks.

"Ah, ah, better watch out!" we advised a little fellow who put a nosey toe of his overshoe into a yard - puddle this afternoon.

"It's not deep!" he grinned.

There was a clean blue in the sky, and a chuckle in the wind that blew us blithe crow-call from a far field.

"When the snow settles away, we'll have to get to our wood-cutting" James offers now from the old armchair. "They tell me it's deep in some places there."

"Bring home some cat - sticks to cut at the chopping - block" we suggest.

"Why, Ellen?" he queries.

"Just for old - time's sake" we chuckle.

Until tomorrow — Diary — Good - night.....

MARY HAWORTH

Wife's Primary Devotion Annoys Jealous Husband

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My wife and I have been married 28 years. We have a son 27, and a daughter, 23. Both are married, with children of their own.

My wife always has been partisan towards them, which I suppose is natural in a mother. But the trouble is, the children come first with her and our marriage second.

When they were small and I would try to discipline them, she would reprove me in their presence, which I told her was wrong.

We hardly made a move unless they were included. Even now the situation continues, doubly worsened since grandchildren arrived. Her whole life seems devoted to her children and grandchildren.

When they visit us (usually every weekend, for overnight) every attention is focussed upon them. Whatever they ask, they receive; nothing they do is wrong. I feel it is putting our marriage in jeopardy.

For years we've been planning to buy a home in West Florida after my retirement (about eight years hence). It was my idea, in which she concurred. But now she is making all sorts of excuses, trying to discourage such a move.

I tell her we've raised our son and daughter, given them every opportunity within our means and the time has come to invest a little more love and effort in our own happiness and pleasure, in our remaining years. But it gets me nowhere. It's like talking to a blank wall.

If this keeps up, I am afraid our marriage is headed for the rocks. What do you suggest I do? Believe me, I am worried. Yours truly. G.R.

DEAR G.R.: I get the picture, you've been in revolt, unconsciously at least, against the taxes of parenthood since the children first arrived, as a rather unwelcome result (from your viewpoint) of conjugal intimacy.

You've been counting the days until they'd be grown and gone, no longer your rivals (according to your "big baby" concept) in vying for your wife's prime interest and devotion.

You've been missing the boat all along, missing the deepest satisfaction of married life, the essence of which is spending oneself in loving-and-giving care and concern for the welfare and happiness of cherished associates.

Instead of investing manfully in a consistently rewarding team effort of that sort, you've stood aside, half belligerently, clinging doggedly to your juvenile prospectus, holding a dream of purely personal "happiness and pleasure" yet to come, in a second honeymoon set-up, in retirement years if not before.

As in a fog, your marriage with its opportunities for meaningful sacrificial companionship with your wife and children has slipped away, lost to you because of your trance-like self-engrossment.

I would surmise that your wife, a warmly loving-and-giving person as compared to you, whose nature inexorably requires reciprocal expression of generous feeling, turned involuntarily to the children for emotional nurture when it developed that you were more petty and jealous than loving in the family relationship.

While you've been waiting to recapture her wholly, she has been growing completely away from you, intrinsically. In short, she has been growing towards maturity and you haven't.

As of today, she accepts her age and has made her peace with the life she'd had. She feels no compulsion to break up the pattern and move to Floriad, in search of Utopia or the illusion of youth.

What you hunger for, in your heart, is what you've missed, by failing to grasp what you could have experienced. You won't find fullfillment by quitting your wife. You'd only be cutting off your nose to spite your face if you took that tack.

My advice is, wake up, grow up. Get specialist help from a family relations counsellor in doing just that. M.H.
