Commission Proposes UN Take High Seas Ownership

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A private commission has proposed that the United Nations take over ownership of the high seas and outer space and use them as independent sources of income.

In its 17th annual report, the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace also said UN Secretary - General U Thant should recruit and pay his own permanent, trouble - shooting force of 2,000 soldiers.

The same body also suggested that while the 17-nation General Assembly should keep its rule of one vote to eachcountry, it should have year-round working committees of limited membership weighed in favor of the countries with the greatest power, interest or responsibility.

The commission is part of the United Nations Association of the United States of America.

The report said the assembly should take to the high seas and outer space to avoid conflicts between nations, to keep their resources from being wasted, to prevent their military use, to head off their contamination, to ensure all nations benefit from their resources and "to provide the United Nations with an independent source of income."

The commission recommended the United Nations take title to the high seas and seabeds "beyond the 12-mile limit for fish (and) beyond the continental shelf for minerals" and that a special "United Nations marine resources agency" grant, lease or use rights to fishing, whaling and mineral extraction.

For UN peacekeeping purposes, the commission said, "many governments should earmark contingents of their standing armies" to make up large forces and, meanwhile, "the secretary-general should have a 'fire brigade' constantly on duty and paid for by the United Nations."

Trade Minister Discusses Canadian Ownership Needs

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP)—Canadian ownership of Canadian business should be made both desirable and worthwhile for Canadian investors, Trade Minister Robert Winters said here.

The federal minister, returning to his native province to speak to a Maritimes area annual conference of Rotary Clubs, said Canada's attitude towards foreign investment should not be one of hostility.

"Rather, we must increase Canadian ownership by making it both desirable and worthwhile for Canadians to purchase more stock in our own enterprises.

"Part of the solution will be found in the growth of the country itself."

TOUCHES NERVE CENTRES

But Mr. Winters said the problem of foreign control of Canadian industry "has touched the national nerve centres," and "we must endeavor when encouraging foreign investment to ensure that, to the greatest extent possible, it is in the form of debt money and that every reasonable encouragement is given to Canadians to participate in the ownership and operation of Canadian enterprises."

"to date, there has simply not been the investable money in this country that has been required, but pools of funds are now being accumulated and if we are wise enough in developing appropriate policies we may be confident that more of them, together with the resources of private citizens will result in increasing Canadian ownership of more of our enterprises."

Mr. Winters said the industrial growth of the Atlantic provinces is potential, large, with Newfoundland able to outstrip the others in the next few years. Formerly president of British Newfoundland Corp. Ltd., (BRINCO), the minister said he hopes that before 1966 ends, an announcement will be made that the 6,000,000-horsepower Churchill Falls power development in Labrador will proceed.

Text of his speech was issued to reporters before delivery.

Vaniers Have Active Program In Saint John

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Governor - General and Mme. Vanier left for Fredericton Tuesday night by rail after a 24-hour visit to this port city as part of an Atlantic provinces tour.

The Governor-General spoke to patients at the department of veteran's affairs hospital in neighboring Lancaster Tuesday morning while Mme. Vanier paid a visit to a hospital-school for retarded children.

Later the couple turned a sod for the Satin John University of New Brunswick campus at Tucker Park and attended a late afternoon mass at the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception.

More than 4,000 school children gave the Vaniers a thunderous welcome as they arrived at the Lord Beaverbrook Rink, where the 78-year-old Governor-General addressed the gathering. He told the children to work toward building a united Canada, a message he has repeated frequently during his visit.

KEEP SPIRIT UP

The Governor - General told veterans at the DVA hospital "the big thing is to keep up your spirit."

"I'm a one-legger myself," he said to a guard of amputees, who greeted him on his arrival, "And I know I've never felt one minute of depression or inferiority because of it.

"The important thing is not the loss of a limb, but how you feel up here," he said, tapping his forehead with his finger.

The Vaniers resume their tour today in Fredericton. They leave the New Brunswick capital Friday for Stephenville, Nfld.

Opening lead—queen of diamonds.

In tournament circles you hear a lot of stories told by experts about their strange experiences against the so-called Little Old Ladies. They are the composite, largely fictional characters who play in bridge tournaments and sometimes manage, in their own sweet way, to wreak havoc against the masters.

One of the best of these stories goes back to the time years ago when the two Little Old Ladies, bubbling with excitement, sat down to play against a couple of celebrated life masters in a national pair championship.

It was not really surprising that, as soon as the bidding was over, Little Old Lady No. 2 (East) led the queen of diamonds out of turn.

The tournament director was called and he ruled correctly that South could call the lead of any suit (that was the rule in those days) or treat the diamond queen as an exposed card.

Souh thereupon asked for a club lead from West, but Little Old Lady No. 1, somewhat embarrassed, stated that she didn't have a club to lead. Having selected his penalty, even though West could not comply, declarer had no additional rights, and Little Old Lady No. 1 was told that she could now make any lead she wanted to.

She shrewdly opened a low diamond, knowing that her partner had the queen. East won the trick with the jack— the queen was back in her hand — and returned a club, the suit West had said she had none of.

West ruffed and led another low diamond, which East took with the queen. Another club ruff resulted in South's going down one, much to his dismay.

All over the room everybody was making either four or five spades, while our expert South was the only declarer to be defeated in four spades.

The moral of the story is not entirely clear, but South is much more careful these days when he plays against Little Old Ladies.

Modern Art Collection Goes To U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Joseph Hirshhorn, who made a fortune in Canadian uranium, has turned over to the United States a collection of modern art and sculpture valued at more than $25,000,000.

President Johnson accepted the gift—which had been sought by other nations and areas of the United States—for Washington.

The president also sent a message to Congress requesting legislation so that the "Hirshhorn museum and sculpture garden" can be administered by the Smithsonian Institution.

The president called it "one of the greatest privately owned collections of contemporary sculpture and paintings in the world."

In a ceremony at noon in the White House rose garden, he praised Hirshhorn, 67, for patriotism and generosity.

Hirshhorn, who with his wife was at the ceremony, said in a brief statement to the president that he was deeply touched.

"But you know I am an American and I am giving this to the greatest capital of the greatest nation in the world," said Hirshhorn, who came to the U.S. from his native Latvia at the age of 17.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X E
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
