IN MEMORIAM

CROOKS—In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Willard Crooks, who departed from this life, May 12, 1948. Life comes with deep regrets. A month we shall never forget. With tears in our eyes and broken hearts.

We stood that night and saw her depart. A beautiful life has come to an end. A devoted mother and our best friend. She was dearer to us than words can tell. The mother we lost and loved so well.

Always remembered and sadly missed by son, Roy, daughter-in-law Mae, granddaughters Donna and Beverley.

Longing dear mother for you. Sadly missed by husband Willard, Ester and Lloyd.

Israel Wants To End State Of War

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion asked Dag Hammarskjold Friday to seek from Egypt an end to that country's state of belligerency against Israel.

Ben-Gurion also raised with the United Nations secretary-general the question of Egypt's ban on Israeli shipping in the Suez Canal.

Hammarskjold's reaction was not divulged. He emerged from the 3 1/2-hour talk smiling broadly.

A communique said only that Ben-Gurion and Hammarskjold had "a full and frank exchange of views" on Middle East problems. The communique said the two reaffirmed their determination to work for peace in the Middle East.

Hammarskjold leaves for New York today. If any specific agreements were reached, there was no indication of them from official quarters.

On the surface, it appeared the principal results of the two days of talks were clarification of views on both sides and more cordial relations between Israel and the United Nations.

U.K. Gov't Allows Ships To Use Suez

By FRASER WIGHTON LONDON (Reuters)—The government was reported to have reached a decision Friday on allowing British ships to use the Suez Canal, despite rumblings of a new "rebellion" from some of its own parliamentary supporters.

The nature of the decision taken, at a cabinet meeting will not be announced until next week in the House of Commons. If it is considered too much of a "climb-down" to Egypt's terms, some Conservative members of Parliament may withdraw their support from the government.

Egypt has rejected all Western moves for international management of the canal and insists on operating it herself. On Thursday, the 15-nation Suez Canal Users' Association criticized Egypt's stand but left the way open for individual governments to resume use of the canal.

REPRESENTS BIG MAJORITY The association represents about 90 per cent of the shipping through the canal. Most of the member nations are expected to permit their shipping companies to resume use of the Suez.

In British parliamentary quarters, there was speculation on whether up to a dozen Conservative members who advocate a strong line with Egypt would refuse to back the government if it accepted Egypt's terms, even under protest.

A group of Conservative members who sponsor a motion against acceptance of Egypt's terms won three new adherents Friday. This brought to 32 the number of government supporters who have signed the motion.

Many of them are members of the original "Suez group" which opposed Britain's evacuation of the canal zone base two years ago.

SINGLE POWER AUTHORITY Some MPs believe that about six of this number would prefer to sever their association with the party if it renounced the pledge of former Prime Minister Eden that Britain would not tolerate a position where canal control passed absolutely to a single power.

Government party managers in Parliament are apparently unperturbed at the prospects. They are confident that the great bulk of Conservative support in the Commons will back the government decision — however unpalatable it may appear to them—in the absence of any foreseeable alternative.

The Labor party opposition is unlikely to oppose a government decision for British ships to use the canal, but it probably will join the pressure for an emergency debate next week—which many Socialists think will put the government in an embarrassing position with its own supporters.
