The Jack - In - The - Pulpit Preaches A Good Sermon

In the June-garden these days scented lilies of the valley blow. There too a solemn Jack-in-the-pulpit, beneath his pretty canopy, preaches his sermon to each passer-by. It treats, we fancy, of how "in the beginning" came night and day, great seas and mighty rivers and "brooks of water". Blue skies, and intriguing white clouds to dream on, above mountain and vale and hill, and the earth presently green clad and warm beneath ones feet; of mankind too and a garden, he tells... of his quirks and vanities and loyalties, his talents and blessings and how at the end all must give back in common their dust to mother earth. Only one life to live, only one death to die; a door opens and closes and... These things Jack-in-the-pulpit in the June-garden preaches these days.

From another garden we gathered first lettuce for dinner, a green most acceptable to James, with chives to spice it and make a tasteful accompaniment for our roast of beef. Yes, a small one, naturally and as James said "not bad eating" from low-to-earth breed of cattle-kind, it happened to be. And to bring the cozy meal for two to a seasonal close we ate pieces of rhubarb pie.

"Perhaps it's because as youngsters when tastes are formed, they weren't to be had—but I'm not too fond of vegetables or fruits out of season" James offered, pouring a generous dash of the cream with which we had been gifted by a dairying farm of the name, over his dessert.

"Oh, I can take them", he said, "but somehow, the flavor as I know it, isn't there. But when they're in season" he smiled, "that's the time I enjoy them!"

With "dat ole wind" of the north blowing, there was a call for warm jackets when our farmers went to their field-work. Now

Seems Simple But It Isn't

Dear Mary Haworth: This problem may appear comical to you; but to me it is very important.

I am a midshipman at the United States Naval Academy. Recently the brigade of midshipmen returned from Christmas leave, leaving behind many loved ones and memories of happy occasions.

I found myself involved in the social whirl that always accompanies this season, and several times dated a girl for whom I had cared a great deal in high school years.

As the holidays passed, I realized that I still felt about her as I had three years before; and I asked her to marry me. She declined to give a definite answer just then. When I returned to Annapolis we exchanged letters and I had only the brightest hopes for the future.

SEEMS SIMPLE

This week, however, I received a letter from the girl's mother, informing me that the girl is pregnant, and that I was responsible, and asking what did I intend to do about it? At first glance, this may seem to be a common problem with a simple solution—marry her. But it is more complicated than that. I cannot possibly be the man in the case. Other than a few kisses, there was absolutely no intimacy.

I love this girl very much, but don't believe that I could pretend to a guilt that isn't mine. On the other hand I am unwilling to lose her, as I would be refusing to accept responsibility for her dilemma. Please offer some sort of solution to this problem. I no longer know where to turn. I will be grown on this farm. In a brisk display of machines and men the spreading went on. It is in the field with alternate tractors and spreaders, the manure-lift can make short work of even the most imposing of heaps.

"That should eventually put cattle on the pastures!" we chuckled to James.

"And hay in plenty in the barns" he smiled.

Tonight under a brooding sky, how spiritedly the pond-peepers play! We listened on a veranda in the twilight, enjoying the sound of this first music which presently will be missing from the year.

And now our day is over James ends his reading in the old armchair, puts by his glasses.

"Not much strength for a working-man", he offers in a forlorn voice surveying the pickings available in the refrigerator, "in a few pieces of dried-up cake."

Until tomorrow — — — Diary Good-night.

HAPPENINGS

Mr. and Mrs. H.B. Bugden left Wednesday for London, Ontario, to attend the funeral of Mrs. Bugden's father, Mr. E.B. Ross. Mr. Ross has been a frequent visitor to this province. Mr. and Mrs. Bugden's numerous friends are extending deepest sympathy to them in this sudden bereavement.

Mr. Allison MacLean, son of Mr. and Mrs. George MacLean, Bangor, who, this year, led second year P.W.C. is to be congratulated on his success, in his studies, during the past year, and have spoken to my parents, my commanding officer and the chaplain—and none can give me any aid. — J.G.

DISORDERED LIFE

Dear J. G.: Taking your story at face value, I would consider it ill advised to marry the girl, on an impulse of love or desire or compassion. To do so would be to implicate and entangle yourself in her disordered life, without solving her problem. Because, according to the story, she is a problem to herself; she has a problem mother (as indicated by the accusatory letter); and there is a problem man in the picture.

Love is indispensable to good marriage, of course; but more than love is required to establish dependable teamwork. Emotional stability, moral fitness and habits of responsibility are essential, and both parties should qualify on this score. So I think you had better make clear to the mother that you aren't the man in the case; and that she and her daughter must apply to experts for the help they need. M. H.

Mr. MacLean, who is a candidate for the ministry of the Free Church of Scotland, and who is giving supply work for the summer months, in P.E.I., plans to return to P.W.C. this autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Gottwaldt and four children of Minneapolis, Minn., are vacationing at Road's End Cottages, Kirkwood Drive West, the guest of Mrs. Gottwaldt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H.L. Pickard.

On the evening of May 20th, friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. Joshua Arsenault, Ydubec, to tender a miscellaneous shower in honor of his daughter, Miss Dorothy one of the season's popular young brides.

The bride-to-be was escorted to a tastefully decorated seat of honor by Miss Shirley Arsenault. The heavily-laden basket of gifts was carried in by little Misses Linda and Beverley Curtis.

The gifts were opened by Miss Carole Raynor and Miss Rosalie MacIsaac, and the accompanying verses were read by Miss Yoette Gallant, while Miss Sandra Raynor arranged the gifts on the table.

Dorothy graciously thanked those present for their gifts, after which lunch was served and a pleasant evening was spent. The guests departed wishing Dorothy many years of happiness.

Mr. Earle Sawler returned to his home in Summerside on Tuesday after visiting in Kentville, N.S. He was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. W.J. Burrell and her father-in-law, Mr. O.J. Burrell of Kentville, N.S.

FIRST CLASS

Catherine Murphy received her first class Guide badge when the four Girl Guide Companies of Summerside held their local association meeting in the auditorium of the Summerside High School.

Catherine was the only guide in the four companies to receive such a badge on that occasion. She received the badge from her commissioner, Mrs. Ellis.

Catherine has been chosen to attend Guide Camp at Doe Lake in Northern Ontario beginning in July.

Baptist Church W.M.S. Held Its Annual Meeting

The Annual meeting of the Senior Women's Missionary Society of the Charlottetown United Baptist Church, was held Thursday, June 5th, at the home of Mrs. C. S. Scranton, Southport.

Mrs. H. L. Mitten opened the meeting with an inspirational worship service on "Jesus Meeting Human Needs," based on the general theme "Medical Missions". Routine business followed, and included the "Mite Box" opening; and yearly reports, which were very encouraging, and showed a keen interest in the great work of Missions.

The nominating committee submitted their report. The following Officers were elected for 1958-1959:

Honorary President: Mrs. Samuel Campbell, President: Mrs. J. A. Clark, 1st. Vice-President:

delegates to the Baptist Association in Long Creek, P. E. Island on June 21st.

A pleasing feature of the afternoon was the presentation of Life Membership Certificates by the president, Mrs. J. A. Clark, to Mrs. Samuel Kennedy, and to Mrs. Stephen Ward.

Mrs. H. L. Mitten then showed interesting colored slides on the work of our latest missionaries to India. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess. The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. David Wright, Mt. Edward Road.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

Chances are, you have an excellent bottle-deodorizer on your kitchen shelf and don't know it. A solution of dry mustard and water, allowed to stand in a jar or bottle for several hours, will leave it fresh and sweet.

Household ammonia will help cut grease in badly soiled clothes. Try suds - and - water soaking first.
