Wedding Vows Solemnized At St. Dunstan's Basilica

The altar at St. Dunstan's Basilica, with fitted bodice, scooped neckline, and three quarter sleeves. Her headress was of matching lace and she carried a nosegay of feathered blue and white carnations.

The best man was Paul O'Rourke of Charlottetown. Allan M. Doyle, and Daniel L. O'Rourke, brothers of the bride and groom, ushered the guests to their seats.

For the reception at Basilica Recreation Centre, the bride's mother received wearing a three-piece dress of ribbon lace, in a cranberry shade. Her hat was of flowered navy straw and she wore a brown squirrel cape, and corsage of white carnations.

For a honeymoon to Quebec City, the bride wore a walking suit of cinnamon beige with pastel mink collar, matching hat of straw-tipped mohair, and brown accessories.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Fireside, Food, Friends Make Winter Nights Cozy

An all-white day, for the most part, this Friday was in blown flurries against the windows. It is about to turn away. Snowfall has been, and is our lot. We are having what one with whom we talked this evening, called "a bit of a February storm."

We think of those abroad, even when James reminds us. "It's not any wicked storm, Ellen. Why if horses and sleighs were still being used, one could get to Land's End! But machines are less dependable. They soon become caught in the snow."

So, the indoors is. We think gratefully, that even if in our house-keeping we have reached that state which is to have only half a loaf on hand, the household will not go hungry.

With Mack for our company, the night eased pleasantly away. The fire sang a pretty tune. We could see trilliums-painted ladies—in the mould of maple groves, feel gentle summer winds up ferny woods' paths, see wild strawberries ripening in sunny woodland dells, in its song.

In a silence while the two awaited a program on TV, "I have a wish" Mack observed. "A wish?" he echoed.

"Yes," she smiled wittily, "for a piece of bread toasted over that fire!"

"It's odd," James grinned, "but wasn't I thinking myself of the same? Buttered toast and a cup of tea—the right lunch for a night like this?" he nodded.

James lifted himself from her cushion on the couch, blinked, flexed jaws in a way cats do on awaking, came to the floor, and padded to the door. Was she listening there to a passing gust? Disappointed perhaps over the weather, yet accepting it logically as a wise mother-cat should. In any event, she moved back, neared the hearthfire. By way of joining in the lunch we gave her the toothsome piece of cracknel, we had saved for her, before this.

Snow edges and mounts higher on the panes. We think how pretty the morning was with only a breath of wind moving, the sunny fields covered anew with the eiderdown of a light night-fall. We stopped on the lane-bridge on our way to the mailbox to listen to the musical ripple of the stream. Ice-free, clear to the depths it ran, every stone and pebble there combined in an interesting mosaic of colors, the white banks beautifully molded before long, the rushes at the edge would put on new green, the alders bring forth their queen-crinkled leaves.

"It's good we got things straightened away this morning at the stables—stalls and box-stalls cleaned," James says. "If tomorrow is stormy, we'll have that to our credit!"

The fire sings of woody places. A stormy wind blows. Until tomorrow—Diary—Good-night....

Montague School Concert To Be Staged By Students

Pupils of Grades 2 and 6 of the Montague Elementary School are hard at work preparing a concert for parents and friends, to be staged in the school auditorium.

Included in the program is a "Toyshop" production in which 43 grade 2 children play the parts of dolls, wooden soldiers, etc. Grade 6 will be presenting musical number, skits and the Mad Hatter's Tea Party from "Alice in Wonderland".

Excitement is running high and several mothers and Home and School members have caught the spirit of the show and are busily making costumes and props to add colorful touches. The concert was originally scheduled for Thursday evening but has been postponed until Wednesday, March 3rd.

This is the second in a series of programs being presented under the sponsorship of the Home and School Association. Grades 1 and 5 delighted their audience with a Christmas concert in December, and by the end of the school year it is hoped that all 350 pupils will have had an opportunity to develop and display their various talents on stage.

Tignish Liberal Ladies Club Elects Slate Of Officers

Prosper Arsenault, MLA for West Prince, was guest speaker at the Annual meeting of the Liberal Ladies' Club of Tignish which was recently held in the Ladies' lounge of the Royal Canadian Legion.

President Mrs. E. C. Perry conducted the business, with minutes and correspondence being read by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Roy MacLeod. Mr. Arsenault complimented the Liberal Women in the area for the work carried on in the past, and urged them to continue with their support in this field.

An acknowledgment was also received from the newly elected member in fifth Prince, Alec B. Campbell.

Newly elected officers for the coming year are: Mrs. E. C. Perry, president; first vice-president, Mrs. Leslie Malette; second vice-president, Mrs. Arthur DesRoches, St. Felix and Mrs. MacLeod, Montague.

MARY HAWORTH

Girl Who Is Two Timer Is Poor Risk As Wife

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a senior in high school and have been going steady with Bob since my freshman year. I knew when we first met that he was the one for me.

He is the nicest boy one could hope to find and I wouldn't dream of dating anyone else if he were here. But since the end of last summer he's had a job in another state. We have made plans to marry soon after I am graduated.

When he was leaving to take the job, I promised him and myself that I wouldn't go out with anyone else during his absence, because I love him. He promised the same, because he loves me.

For two weeks after he left I felt awful; then I met several nice boys and started to date them, just to get out of house and have a little fun. I didn't feel guilty then, but when the time came to tell Bob I was terrified and very sorry about the whole thing.

He has been home several times since he took the job and each time I promise I'll never date others again; but after a week I jump at the chance when someone asks me out. As for Bob, I know he hasn't gone out with anyone else since being away.

Last time he left he told me if I date others again it will be the end for us. Then he said he loves me too much ever to give me up, no matter what I do. In all the time we've been going together, the longest we've ever broken up was for a week.

I know I want to marry him, but what should I do meanwhile? Other boys mean nothing to me, but I just can't resist going out with them. If I ever lose Bob I would die, but I just can't change. Please advise me. C.M.

DEAR C.M.: The thing to do is fish or cut bait, one or the other. If you can't abide staying home, without beaux, when Bob isn't around to take you out, then have the guts to be frank with him about this un-grown-up aspect of your character. And let it be agreed that each of you is free to date others when you can't be together.

Your performance as described, in making promises only to break them, meanwhile swearing "never again" to fall, is dishonest; dishonorable and indefensible. It is a tricky system, you first fell into and now hang onto, for keeping Bob always on the leash while you play the field in his absence.

It is odd that Bob puts up with it (or has, so far). But I predict that he will drop out of your life, one of these days, as a necessity of self-respect, if you don't turn over a new leaf, and soon.

Undoubtedly you are greatly attracted to him, though principally due to sex appeal rather than to sympathetic kinship of mind and spirit, such as marks true love, I think.

With the rate you are going, however, with your two-timing hanky-panky, it won't be long until he gets the feeling that you can't be trusted, that your word means nothing, and that he is vaguely ashamed of, and fed up with, being the joker in a situation

Afternoon Tea To Be Held At Margate

Mrs. Arthur Proffitt gave an interesting report on the Presbyterial held recently in Summerside, at the regular monthly meeting of Margate United Church Women, held in the Church vestry.

The worship period was opened by Mrs. Keith Warren with "Brotherhood" and scripture taken from Luke 13:22-30. Hymn 388 was sung. A meditation on "Brotherhood" was given by Mrs. Arthur Proffitt and the worship closed with prayer by Mrs. Warren.

Roll call was responded to by fourteen members with one a visitor in attendance. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Bruce Clark. The treasurer gave her report and friendship secretary, Mrs. Justin Woods' id'e reported several calls had been made, and treats and cards sent.

Mrs. Keith Warren and Mrs. Hillard Woodside were appointed to be the committee to send for the choir gowns.

Mrs. Reginald Dennis received the offering which was dedicated by the president, Mrs. Robert Heaney.

Roll call for next meeting is to be answered with a verse of scripture containing the word "Will".

It was decided to hold an afternoon tea in February at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Warren.

Mrs. Heath Mayhew was in charge of the program on chapter 17 of "The Word and the Way". Mrs. Lorne Adams will charge of the program for the March meeting on "God and His Purpose".

Meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

wherein he is billed as your one-and-only, when in fact almost any candidate may date you behind his back.

Frankly my sympathies are all with Bob, as I consider the mess you are making of a mutually valued romance. If he were my son or brother I would hope for his sake that he did renounce you as a mistake.

As you ask my advice, I am willing to help you as I can, but whether you can be brought around to the right track depends upon you, nobody else.

At this time you are a poor risk as a married partner, liable to introduce intolerable confusion into the lives of husband and children (if any), owing to your peculiar lack of moral conscience, your empty-headed disregard of any considerations but your own immediate "enjoyment," and your airy, self-extenuating assumption that you "just can't help" doing as you please when "fun" beckons; "just can't change," etc.

To become fit for monogamous mutual love and marriage, you'll need emotional re-education from scratch. So get firsthand professional psychological counselling help, to hoist yourself out of your infantile "know-nothing state of self-absorption, on to the pathway of normal social growth, leading to responsible, rationally self-governing, realistic awareness of the people around you. DA BAILEY ALLEN Ladyfinger Orange Cake --Sprung From The Pan

THE most important natural grain-cereal is oatmeal—or rolled oats. This cereal contains approximately 17 per cent to 18 per cent protein.

This together with the natural minerals and vitamins which have not been previously heat-treated (which lessens their nutritive values), gives oatmeal "GPV"—which means "Growth Promoting Values"—however it is used.

Try it in our newest pan-cakes. Measurements level; recipes for 8

BUTTERMILK OATMEAL PANCAKES 1 1/2 c. sifted flour 1 tsp. sugar 2 1/4 tsp. baking powder 1/2 tsp. baking soda 1/4 tsp. salt 3/4 c. rolled oats (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked) 2 c. buttermilk 1 egg, slightly beaten 1/4 c. melted shortening or cooking oil

Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, soda and salt. Stir in oats. Add buttermilk, egg and shortening, stirring only until combined.

For each pancake, pour about 1 tsp. batter onto hot, lightly oiled griddle. Bake to golden brown; turn only once. Serve with butter and syrup.
