

A Tyrannical Rector.

RAISES A STORM OVER THE EXCOMMUNICATION OF AN OLD FARMER.

The New York Herald's London telegram says church and state divorce promises to be a burning question at the coming elections. Both church and clergy, by their conduct, are almost daily helping the Radical cry of "Divorce the Church and State." The newspapers continue to bring charges against members of the clergy for drunkenness and in some cases loose morals on the one hand and bigotry and clerical oppression on the other. On the 3rd inst., a most flagrant case, belonging to the latter category, came to the surface in the parish of Lahamstone, in the County of Norfolk, twenty miles east of Norwich. The parish has 1,300 inhabitants. The value of the living is £1,052 annually, almost a sovereign per head of the population. The incumbent is an Oxford man, imbued with the ecclesiastical spirit of the age of the Stuarts. His name is Coker-Adams, and he has been rector since 1876. In his congregation an old farmer, well to do, named Payne, now eighty two years old, of patriarchal appearance and beloved by his neighbors, is suffering somewhat from the infirmities of age. Lately he did not go to church, though for half a century he was a regular communicant, nor would he see the rector to whom, it is said, he had taken a valetudinarian dislike. The rector last week wrote to Patriarch Payne a letter, telling him: "I feel it my painful duty to pronounce you cut off from Church communion," and concluding, much after the fashion of an assize judge, who has donned the black cap and is sentencing a murder, "and I pray God to have mercy on your soul."

The patriarch, being a practical man, conceived the idea that this was done because some part of his tithe remained unpaid, and he asked with some naivete if this was not the reason of the rector's conduct. The Rev. Coker-Adams than wrote another letter, repeating his black cap prayer, and then on Sunday, to the surprise and indignation of the congregation and in the tone and manner of Cardinal Becket, he applied a species of Anathema Maranatha to the reverend octogenarian, who really has one foot in the church-yard turf, using the sad, soul-echoing words of excommunication in the prayer book, which is quite obsolete in the Church of England. The farmer thus treated meditates obtaining legal redress, believing the attack to be one made upon his personal character. Meanwhile the people of the whole diocese of Norwich, appeared to be intensely excited, and undoubtedly the whole radical press of the realm will adopt the aggressive incident as a pivot for renewed attacks upon a union of Church and State that invites bigotry and ecclesiastical autocracy. Parliament will also be asked to inquire into the affair.

Honesty is the Best Policy.

Mr. Black, the eminent and wealthy coal dealer, called one of his oldest drivers into the office the other morning and tendered him quite a large sum of money. What is this for? asked the astonished driver. Merely a token of appreciation for services rendered, replied Mr. Black kindly. But, sir, you've always paid me well for my services, and that was appreciation enough. There is really more than that in it, John, continued the gentleman, I really owe you the money. I don't understand. Let me tell you, and he dropped his voice to a whisper, you have been with me for twenty years, working 300 days every year and averaging three loads a day; that makes 18,000 loads. You weigh about 160 pounds, John, and we have never failed to weigh you in with every load of our superior coal; that makes two million seven hundred thousand pounds, or 1,350 tons. This, at $3.50 per ton, John, represents $4,725. The package you hold in your hand contains $472.50, or ten per cent, which we think is yours by right. We are honest men, John, and don't desire to defraud any man out of what is justly his. John bowed in humble submission and is now waiting for the next dividend.

Stanley Huntly.

Stanley Huntly, the author of the Spoopeydyke Papers, who has just gone over to the majority, did his first work for the press as a reporter of the New York Tribune, for which he wrote but one article. He was assigned to report the meeting of the Farmers' Club. Without trying to obtain any information by questioning members of the club, he wrote a sarcastic article poking fun at the Chairman, and dwelling upon the hayseed in that worthy's hair. The next day he was informed that his services were no longer wanted; and the fact was explained to him that Horace Greeley had presided at the Farmers' Club.
