Water skiing now leading family sport

Looking for a family boating sport that everyone can enjoy? More and more people, young and old, have found water skiing is the answer, says Guy Weese, top Canadian water skier.

There's practically no age barrier, says Guy, and equipment costs won't bankrupt the family budget. If you'd like to join the million or so Canadians enjoying this exciting sport, here's a checklist of equipment you'll need.

Almost any outboard or stern drive craft can be used as a tow boat. The only requirement is that it can travel at a minimum speed of 20 miles per hour. If your plans include slalom skiing or jumping, a minimum speed of 35 miles per hour is recommended.

Several types of brackets and tow line attachments are available. The simplest is a set of rings which are bolted to the transom on either side of the motor. Professional skiers usually use a "pylon". This is a triangular device which is mounted inside the boat. The tow line is attached at the top of the pylon.

There are four standard types of water skis - the allpurpose model, single slalom skis, jumping skis and trick skis. For the newcomer, the all purpose models will be sufficient. Your local marine dealer can advise you on the correct length and width.

In order to enjoy water skiing to the fullest, there are certain "rules of road" which should be obeyed. Every skier, expert or not, should wear an approved life jacket, and there should be an observer in the tow boat in addition to the driver. The observer then can signal the driver if the skier is in trouble and can also relay the skier's signals to the driver. A water ski warning flag is also an important safety precaution. It has a diagonal bar of white in a square red field. A wide-angle rear view mirror mounted on the windshield is helpful for the boat driver.

Skies, Tow bracket, Tow lines. Safety equipment. It doesn't take too much to get started in one of Canada's most exciting new sports.

Ferry trip big thrill

Most visitors to Prince Edward Island look forward to crossing the nine-mile Northumberland Strait—a smooth sea voyage that takes an hour or less.

The 300,000 tourists who come to the Island in their family automobiles get a big thrill out of the smooth sail on the World's largest icebreaker or one of the four other car ferries which ply back and forth all day long and well into the night.

The unofficial "flagship" of the fleet, the 355-foot-long "Abegweit" runs the year round. This luxuriously-appointed ferry carries 150 automobiles, 19 railway cars and 1,000 passengers. A second boat carries 125 autos and each of the other three carry about 65 cars each.

Two ferry routes are served by the ships. One crossing is between Cape Tormentine, New Brunswick and Borden, P.E.I. Ships on this run are: The Abegweit, The Prince Edward Island and The Confederation.

The other crossing is from Caribou, Nova Scotia to Wood Islands, P.E.I. Ferries on this run are: The Prince Nova and The Lord Selkirk.

Crossings at Borden take from 35 to 50 minutes; at Wood Islands from 1 hour to 1 hour and 20 minutes. The distance to Borden is nine miles and at Wood Islands 14 miles.

Meal service is available in the dining room or restaurant on all ferries.

Tickets for the crossing are interchangeable and are only $3 for each automobile, 30 cents for adults and 45 cents for children under 12.
