

MOVIE * REVIEW

WITH

Bert and Ernie

Three weeks in the SUN, Who would've ever thought we'd ever have this long. Anyways once again we're back and I think we've got some good news for you besides the fact that Spring Break is only three weeks away.

This week's review takes a look at "If You Could See What I Could Hear." starring Mark Singer and Sarah Torgov and is now currently playing at the Charlottetown Mall. This movie is probably going to surprize you, because it's really not bad at all. The story line focuses on the story of Tom Sullivan, a blind entertainer who you've probably seen before in such shows as Mork & Mindy, David Letterman, and the late great Airport '77. Well, come on, give the guy a break, I mean he probably needed the money bad or something like that.

Anyways, the movie follows Sullivan's life mostly in college and basically concentrates on how he managed to lead a life that totally neglected any self-regard for his blindness. It's a question of handicap and apparently Sullivan's reply is "What handicap?" After seeing this movie, probably most of you will wonder if some of the hobbies that Sullivan has in this film are real, and the answer is yes. The real Tom Sullivan is quite a remarkable guy and many of the stunts pulled in the movie were in fact well documented as having been actually done by Sullivan in real life.

Mark Singer plays Tom Sullivan and does a reasonable job in turning in this performance. He manages to capture some of the super-

GO WEST HOME ECers- GO WEST!

In February, the Home Economics Department of U.P.E.I. will be taking part in a student exchange with some twenty home economics students from the University of Saskatchewan. This exchange is being funded by an Open House Canada Grant and it is a first for the Home Economic Dept. of U.P.E.I. Plans have been in the works since this summer of 1982 and students are getting very excited about the upcoming exchange.

Both universities have active home economics student organizations whose main objective is to increase awareness of home economics and the profession in general. This exchange will be extremely eye-opening and valuable to the students from both universities and many new friendships will develop.

On February 13, the Sask. gals will arrive on P.E.I. and they will be billeted with the U.P.E.I. home-ec students. A busy week is in store for our visitors. Some of the activities planned include a tour of the Confederation Centre and our new Queen Elizabeth Hospital hyper activity that's characteristic of the real Tom Sullivan and gives you a good idea of what kind of person he is. There is one flaw, however, I mean Singer is one hell of a lot better looking than Sullivan is. Hollywood strikes again! This is a minor point but Ernie and myself have agreed that after we finished our own autobiographies and we make a movie of it, Tom Selleck will play me, and Mr. T. will play Ernie. I mean if they can have Mark Singer playing Tom Sullivan, then they can certainly get Tom and Mr. T. for us.

Okay, back to business, the bottom line here is that this is a half decent movie. It carries a light mood through most of the script and supplies a good bit of comedy to keep you smiling. Sometimes it's a little sad in parts but in no way will you walk out depressed. So if you like a few good laughs mixed with a little sentimentality then this is the picture for you, otherwise it rates worth a look just for interest sake. Well that's it for now but stay tuned because next week we're going to try for number four.

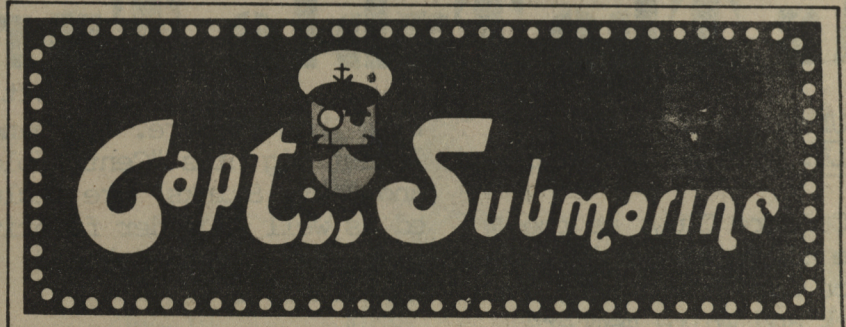

as well as a guided bus tour of the North Shore area. (Hope it doesn't storm) There will also be early evening seminars and speakers throughout the week. Dr. Francis Bolger of the U.P.E.I. History Dept. will be speaking to us about L.M. Montgomery and Anne of Green Gables. Georges Arsenault, Canadian Studies with U.P.E.I., will be giving the home-ec students and faculty a broad overview of Acadian culture on P.E.I. and members of the U.P.E.I. Home-ec faculty. Profs. Anne MacDonald and J. Estelle Reddin, will talk about food and clothing in the Maritime provinces. Other speakers have been booked as well.

The girls will be put to work at a dancercise class on Tuesday morning and in addition to all of this, the Sask. students will have the grand opportunity to attend some of our classes. We can't let them go back without giving them a taste of Island entertainment and recreation. I'm sure the U.P.E.I. students will do their best to show their billots a good time.

Then on Feb. 20, UPEI and Sask. students will board the plane together and head for Saskatchewan. Who knows what they have in store for us. We return Feb. 26, and will, no doubt have lots to tell. New friends, new experiences, fresh ideas, and a greater understanding is what an exchange trip is all about.

When the girls from Sask. arrive in less than 2 weeks, we know the students of UPEI will make them feel very welcome. (However we feel we should warn them about our engineers!) Just kidding guys. BON VOYAGE!
